RECORDS.

PUTTING 'EM UP.

The ATTENDANCE at the ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW on EASTER MONDAY was a RECORD ONE, and so was that at
ANTHONY HORDERN'S,
ONLY UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS,
ON SATURDAY LAST.

EVERY YEAR the GREAT SHOW at MOORE PARK gets more and more ATTRACTIVE, and as TIME GOES ON and the months pass by, an INCREASE of POPULARITY continually falls to the lot of
ANTHONY HORDERN'S.

In NEITHER CASE is there ANY 'LUCK' or HAPHAZARD to be taken into account; in both instances—in that of the ANNUAL CARNIVAL as well as of the DAILY SHOW at ANTHONY HORDERN'S—
THE RECORDS WHICH HAVE BEEN PUT UP were the LOGICAL RESULT of EARNEST striving and BUSINESS-LIKE DEALING, and of a PROPER APPRECIATION of
THE PUBLIC DESIRE.

THE SHOW AT MOORE PARK.
nearly doubled its last year's tally of ATTENDANCE and CASH for the corresponding day, while the CROWD of BUYERS that flocked to in the short time between EIGHT O'CLOCK AND ONE on Saturday was on the same scale of ENCOURAGING INCREASE.
ANTHONY HORDERN'S

The PUBLIC found NOT THE LEAST interesting item at the great
MOORE PARK SHOW,
IN
ANTHONY HORDERN'S
EXHIBITION PAVILION,
containing, as it does, samples of MANY SORTS of goods sold BY THE FIRM, as well as EXAMPLES of the products of
ANTHONY HORDERN'S
REDFERN FACTORIES.

Thus exampled, these SPECIMENS of AUSTRALIAN INDUSTRY interested tens of thousands of people, who cannot fail to go back to THEIR HOMES IN THE COUNTRY with heaps of material for THOUGHT and DISCUSSION.

ANTHONY HORDERN'S
will CONTINUE in the same course, and when NEXT YEAR COUNTRY FRIENDS again come down to SEE THE SHOW, they will find that
ANTHONY HORDERN'S
REDFERN FACTORIES
HAVE NOT BEEN IDLE.

THE RIP-VAN-WINKLEISM
which is characteristic of the doings of so many AUSTRALIAN BUSINESS HOUSES is abhorrent to THE SOUL of
ANTHONY HORDERN'S.

ANTHONY HORDERN'S
MUST BE UP AND DOING, OR PERISH IN THE ATTEMPT.

At the OTHER END of the street, SO TO SPEAK, the public have LONG SINCE PRACTICALLY ADMITTED that
SYDNEY'S CHIEFEST SHOW IS TO BE FOUND AT
ANTHONY HORDERN'S,
ONLY UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS,
HAYMARKET (ONLY).

IT IS THE HOUSEKEEPER'S PARADISE,
because it creates a state of affairs in DOMESTIC LIFE which may be described as FINANCIALLY BLESSED.
IT IS THE PEOPLE'S MARKET,
because WITHIN ITS WALLS the people find EVERYTHING they require. Their HOME COMFORTS, their RAIMENT, their FOOD, material for their SPORTS, means of EDUCATION, remedies for most of the AILMENTS which afflict mankind, the FASHIONS in their SWEETEST GUISE; and as DAY BY DAY the people shop there, and find the LUMP IN THE STOCKING getting bigger, the HOARD in the TEAPOT growing larger, and the BALANCE at the BANK SWELLING beyond all their hopes, they—the good people of this COMMONWEALTH—ascribe these GOOD RESULTS to their TRUE SOURCE, and in all earnestness and faith
CONTINUE TO BLESS
ANTHONY HORDERN'S
FAMOUS LOW PRICES.

PORTRAIT OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

It is a striking Portrait of his Excellency Lord Hopetoun in uniform, and is a valuable addition to any Album.

The S.M. Herald, the Daily Telegraph, and the entire Sydney Press say it is the Finest Cinematograph Exhibition ever shown in Australia.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

STUDIOS OPEN THIS DAY.

The "S.M. HERALD" says:—"The first portraits of the first Governor-General of Australia have just been taken by Mr. Mark Blow, and are now being issued from the Crown Studios. His Excellency the Earl of Hopetoun granted sittings on Tuesday last, with the result that eight different poses in full official uniform were secured. The process adopted is that known as the Zomo. There is no want of life in the look, and the poses, both sitting and standing, are natural and easy. It will be noted that the details of the Governor-General's uniform have been accurately and clearly reproduced, and no difficulty will be found by the initiated in recognising the various orders and insignia worn. Especially will be noted the collar, badge, and star of a G.C.M.G., the badge and ribbon of a K.T. (the rare and distinguished Order of Knight of the Thistle), the grand badge of the Victorian Order, the Jubilee Medal, and the Diamond Jubilee Bar. No doubt these fine portraits from the Crown Studios will be treasured in many homes as historical mementos of the foundation of the Commonwealth of Australia, with which the name of Hopetoun will be ever associated." The DAILY TELEGRAPH says:—"The portraits are true to life, and give an individuality which cannot be mistaken. The lighting is artistic and effective, and the posing reflects great credit on the artist. Mr. Blow is the first photographer to be favoured with a sitting by the Governor-General."

A STIRRING LOYAL SONG.

HIS MAJESTY
THE KING.

WORDS by W. T. GOODGE.
MUSIC by NICHOLAS J. GEHDE.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

We have lost the best of Monarchs in our late beloved Queen,
And the hearts of all her people keep her noble mem'ry green;
But the nation that she ruled so well, so wisely, and so long,
Is the same old British Empire, hearty still and going strong!
For the same old Flag is o'er us,
Though the good old Queen has gone,
And we sing the same old chorus
In the same old martial tone,
And the destiny before us
Stands sublime and stands alone,
For the People of His Majesty the King!

CHORUS.—It's the same old Bunting that we fling, my boys!
It's the same old story that we sing, my boys!
And they're loyal to the core,
As they were in days of yore—
The Soldiers and the Sailors of the King, my boys!

We must show our friends and foemen—we must show the world at large—
That the Nation hasn't altered with the Monarch placed in charge
There's no time for further mourning, but we look upon instead,
Not the history behind us, but the destiny ahead,
Then no trouble should we borrow,
Or more trouble we must pay,
'Tis not ours to dwell in sorrow,
Nor to falter by the way;
For the rearguard halts to-morrow
Where the vanguard stood to-day,
With the subjects of His Majesty the King!

CHORUS—It's the same old Bunting, &c.

MR. H. E. KUGELMANN

Having REMOVED from 33 York-street—owing to expiration of lease—wishes to intimate that he may be Consulted this week from WEDNESDAY until SATURDAY at his new address, No. 15 BRIDGE-STREET, between Pitt and George streets, Sydney. All Chronic and supposed to be incurable diseases yield readily to his NEW and NATURAL METHODS of treatment without the use of mineral drugs and poisons, and those who are suffering from Tumors or Growths of any kind, either internal or external, are advised to CONSULT him in reference to CURE of same without delay, as he can effect entire gradual removal of these without operation or use of the knife, and can refer to numbers of cases so cured by him after they had unsuccessfully submitted to injurious operations and drugs. DISPLACEMENTS of KIDNEYS and all other internal displacements are also permanently CURED by him without cutting or operating, and he is the only practitioner in this country who is able to PERMANENTLY CURE CHRONIC EPILEPSY or FITS, and that terribly distressing complaint, CHRONIC ASTHMA. Having practised for over a quarter of a century, and having successfully cured every known disease, and some quite unknown to medical men, and thus, too, after all other methods had failed entirely, he claims abilities out of the ordinary and methods altogether unique, and is undoubtedly the most skilled of living Herbalists. When patients consult him they find that he possesses the power to tell them what is the nature and cause of their disease or complaint without being informed by them. When you consult a doctor you have to tell him what is the matter. Not so with Mr. KUGELMANN. Instead, he can tell you, and will state at once whether he considers your case to be curable or incurable by his treatment. Patients can then either go on with his treatment or not as they think best, and up to this point no charge whatever is made for either consultations or diagnosis. If preferred, a legal agreement is entered into for a stated sum for each case.

Dates and Hours for this week's session of Consultations are as under:—
WEDNESDAY, 10th APRIL, at 15 BRIDGE-STREET, SYDNEY.

	Hours from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., and from 2 until 6 p.m.
THURSDAY, 11th APRIL	" " 10 " " 1 " " " 2 " 5 p.m., and from 7.30 till 9 p.m.
FRIDAY, 12th APRIL ...	" " 10 " " 1 " " " 2 " 6 "
SATURDAY, 13th APRIL...	" " 10 " " 1 " " " 2 " 5 " " " 7.30 till 9 p.m.

And about every 12th week thereafter.
Mr. KUGELMANN may also be consulted at the following towns in the provinces, viz.:—
MANILLA, N.S.W.—At J. M'Nulty's Royal Hotel all day on MONDAY NEXT, the 15th instant.
TAMWORTH.—At Caledonian Hotel all day on TUESDAY NEXT, 16th instant.
GLEN INNES.—At Great Central Hotel all day on THURSDAY, May 2nd.
GOULBURN.—At Mandleson's Hotel all day on SATURDAY, May 4th.
And about every 12th week thereafter as usual.

The following Extracts of sworn certificates of cases cured after all Doctors tried had failed clearly proves the vast superiority of his system of natural treatment, and are merely specimens of any number of others:—

TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS CHRONIC EPILEPSY CURED.

Mr. H. E. KUGELMANN, Consulting Herbal Practitioner. Goyura, Victoria, Nov. 19th, 1896.

Dear Sir,—For the benefit of other sufferers I wish you to publish a statement of my case of Epileptic Fits, successfully cured by your Herbal Magnetic Treatment. I was only at the age of 13 years when the distressing disease made its first appearance, and I was a great sufferer for over 25 years. My head used to get so giddy with noises in my ears. I went to a medical doctor near Colac, where I used to live, and I continued his treatment for some time, but I found it was not doing me any good; the fits came on all the same. Then I came into the Wimmera district, near Rupanyup. I consulted another medical doctor in Stawell, and he treated me for about 18 months, and did not do me any good whatever. I got disheartened with taking so many medical drugs, that I gave it up for a time. My health grew worse, and I tried another medical doctor in Murtoa. I carried out his instructions for about two years, which did me no good. I took no more medicine for a while. I did not know what to do; it was costing me a lot of money for doctors, and I was not getting any relief nor any satisfaction as to the cause of the fits. I was then instructed by a friend to write to a London doctor. I described my case to him, and he sent me a box of medicine (Vital Renewer it was called). I took this medicine for six years; for the first three months I thought it was doing me a little good, as the fits were not so frequent, so I continued the medicine, but I found in time that it was injuring my body, would have given up the Vital Renewer before, but my husband persuaded me to continue it so long. Gave up all hope and medical aid, and wondered if all my life was going to be spent in such a miserable existence. I was worn out to a perfect skeleton, and so weak that my body was a burden to me. I then heard of Mr. H. E. KUGELMANN'S great fame. I went to consult him on one of his visits to Murtoa, and when he sounded me he told me the whole of my trouble, and satisfied my mind by telling me the cause of the disease, and that he could cure me. I there and then agreed with him, and carried out his treatment, and with good effect. People told me that he would not cure me, that I was only throwing money away. But I soon got well, and gained strength every day, and am altogether a different woman, and have had no fits nor any symptoms of them ever since. It is now four years since I have seen Mr. KUGELMANN or taken any of his remedies, so I consider myself perfectly cured, and I feel under a deep debt of gratitude to him for his kindness to me. I hope he will publish this far and wide for the benefit of other poor sufferers. Trusting this will do good,

I am, most gratefully,
(Signed) (Mrs.) D. M'LEAN.

Dear Sir,—For the sake of suffering humanity I wish to place on record for all time my testimony to the wonderful cure which your skilful treatment has so permanently effected in my case, and which I will briefly describe, so that any others suffering as I did may know what to do and where to go for successful treatment for Epileptic Fits, as I was a sufferer from this distressing disease, but, thanks to your system of treatment, I can safely say that I am cured most effectively and permanently. Mr. H. E. KUGELMANN,

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to the great benefit I have received from your treatment. I have been a sufferer from asthma for about fifteen years. When I heard of your wonderful skill, I was determined to consult you, which I did about nine years ago. You told me that I was suffering from chronic asthma, and that you could cure me. I at once went under your treatment, and I am very glad that I did. I lost many nights' sleep through not being able to lie down, but I am thankful to say that I have never lost one hour's sleep through asthma since I went under your treatment. Hoping that these few lines will lead many others to consult you,

I remain, yours sincerely,

HEALTH AND HOW TO OBTAIN IT.

FURTHER TESTIMONY FROM A GRATEFUL PERSON.

CONSUMPTION.

NIPPED IN THE BUD BY VITADATIO.

Brunswick, 10 Eveline-street, off Glenlyon-road. 27-3-1901.
To Mr. S. A. PALMER,
Dear Sir,—
My son, who is now 14 years of age, has been very ill off and on since he was 4 years, and about three years ago he was so very weak and ill that the doctor told me he was developing consumption. He had a terrible cough, which was distressing to listen to; he had fallen away to almost a skeleton. At this time Mr. Luxon, Sydney-road, Coburg, advised me to try Vitadatio, which I did. After the first bottle I saw a great improvement. I continued the medicine, he gradually improved until he became quite well. I consider Vitadatio a wonderful medicine, as it has made a different boy of my son, which I never expected to see healthy again. I can recommend it to anyone, and will be glad to give any information to anyone suffering the same complaint.—I remain,
EMILY MACKEY.

Sydney-road, Coburg, 27th March, 1901.
I hereby certify to the above. I have known the boy for four years, during which time he was in very bad health. I advised his mother to give Vitadatio a trial, with the above results.
Yours faithfully,
F. H. LUXON, Grocer, Coburg.

HYDATIDS ON THE LUNGS.
DRIVEN OUT OF THE SYSTEM AND CURED BY VITADATIO.

Frank-street, Off Munro-street, Coburg. 27th March, 1901.
To Mr. S. A. PALMER.
Dear Sir,—
For the benefit of suffering humanity I make this statement. Five years ago I was very ill and was reduced to a shadow. The doctor who was treating me said I was suffering from consumption, and he could not cure me. In the beginning of the year 1898 Mr. Thompson, who was for many years overseer in the printing department at Pentridge, who had to give up that position on account of suffering from consumption, and who had derived great benefit from Vitadatio, advised me to call at your Institute, 47 Bourke-street, and consult you. I did so, and you advised me to give Vitadatio a fair trial, as it was a sure cure for me. I commenced with the medicine, and in a short time my disease began to pass away from my system. I persevered with Vitadatio for some time, gradually getting stronger, and eventually I became quite well, and I gained (1½) one and a-half stone in weight. It is now three years since I left off taking Vitadatio, and it is a proof that the disease has completely left the system, as I have not had any return of the old trouble. I shall be pleased to give any further information about my case to anyone calling at my address.—I remain,
Yours faithfully,
ELIZABETH J. WILLIAMS.

A PUZZLING CASE.
SWELLING IN LEGS, ACCOMPANIED BY ACUTE PAINS.
CURED BY VITADATIO.

35 Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 4th March, 1901.
To Mr. PALMER.
Dear Sir,—Some six months ago I was troubled with very acute pains in my legs, which I treated as gout, and taking different patent remedies from which I got no relief, on the contrary gradually getting worse, and suffering intense pain, until at last I could not stand on my feet and had to take to my bed. My friends noticed the change which had come over me, and advised me to go to the hospital, and with their entreaties, and knowing how bad I was, I decided to go, as I would receive the best medical attention and skilful nursing. After remaining there for some time I found I was getting worse, and my complaint seemed to puzzle the medical men attending me; so I decided to leave the institution, and with the aid of sticks reached home and took to my bed again. About two weeks later a gentleman asked me to try VITADATIO, and said that it had done "wonders for him." He very kindly sent me a bottle to try. I found it act at once, and it did me so much good that I continued to take it, the result being that I can do without my sticks, and am a changed man completely. I have put fully a stone on in weight since I started to take the medicine, and I cannot say too much in praise of VITADATIO and what it has done for me. I am deeply indebted to the gentleman who advised me to take VITADATIO, and the great benefit it has been to me.
You are at liberty to make what use you like of this letter.
Yours respectfully,
FRED. W. MOODY.

TRISTRAM OF BLENT.

AN EPISODE IN THE STORY OF AN ANCIENT HOUSE.

By ANTHONY HOPE.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

THE ATTRACTION OF IT.

Misfortunes accumulated, for Neeld hated tobacco. But he was anxious to be scrupulously polite to Iver, and thus to deaden the pangs of conscience. Resigned though miserable, he went with them to the smoking-room. Colonel Wilmot Edge looked up from the "Army and Navy Gazette," and glanced curiously at the party as they passed his table. Why were these old fellows reviving old stories? They were better left at rest. The Colonel groaned as he went back to his newspaper.

Happily, in the smoking-room the talk shifted to less embarrassing subjects. Iver told of his life and doings, and Neeld found himself drawn to the man; he listened with interest and appreciation; he seemed to be brought into touch with life; he caught himself sighing over the retired inactive nature of his own occupations. He forgave Iver the hoardings about the streets; he could not forgive himself the revenge he had taken for them. Iver and Southend spoke of big schemes in which they had been or were engaged together—legitimate enterprises, good for the nation as well as for themselves. How had he, a useless old fogey, dared to blackball a man like Iver? An occasional droll glance from Southend emphasised his compunction.

"I see you've got a new thing coming out, Neeld," said Southend, after a pause in the talk. "I remember old Cholderton very well. He was a starchy old chap, but he knew his subjects. Makes rather heavy reading, I should think, eh?"

"Not all of it, not by any means all of it," Neeld assured him. "He doesn't confine himself to business matters."

"Still, even old Joe Cholderton's recreations ——"

"He was certainly mainly an observer, but he saw some interesting things and people." There was a renewed touch of nervousness in Mr. Neeld's manner.

Interesting people? H'm. Then I hope he's discreet?"

"Or that Mr. Neeld will be discreet for him," Iver put in. "Though I don't know why interesting people are supposed to create a need for discretion."

"Oh yes, you do, Iver. You know the world. Don't you be too discreet, Neeld. Give us a taste of Joe's lighter style."

Neeld did not quite approve of his deceased and respected friend being referred to as "Joe," nor did he desire to discuss in that company what he had and what he had not suppressed in the Journal.

"I have used the best of my judgment," he said primly, and was surprised to find Iver smiling at him with an amused approval.

"The least likely men break out," Lord Southend continued hopefully. "The Baptist minister down at my place once waylaid the wife of the Chairman of Quarter Sessions and asked her to run away with him."

"That's one of your Nonconformist stories, Southend. I never believe them," said Iver.

"Oh, I'm not saying anything. She was a pretty woman. I just gave it as an illustration. I happen to know it's true, because she told me herself."

"Ah, I'd begin to listen if he'd told you," was Iver's cautious comment.

"You give us the whole of old Joe Cholderton!" was Lord Southend's final injunction.

"Imagine if I did!" thought Neeld, beginning to feel some of the joy of holding a secret.

Presently Southend took his leave, saying he had an engagement. To his own surprise Neeld did not feel this to be an unwarrantable proceeding; he sat on with Iver, and found himself cunningly encouraging his companion to talk again about the Tristrams. The story in the Journal had not lost its interest for him; he had read it over more than once again; it was strange to be brought into contact, even at second-hand, with the people whose lives and fortunes it concerned. It was evident that Iver, on his side, had for some reason been thinking of the Tristrams too, and he responded readily to Neeld's veiled invitation. He described Blent for him; he told him how Lady Tristram had looked, and that her illness was supposed to be fatal; he talked again of Harry Tristram, his destined successor. But he said no more of his daughter. Neeld was left without any clear idea that his companion's concern with the Tristrams was more than that of a neighbour or beyond what an ancient family with odd episodes in its history might naturally inspire.

"Oh, you must come to Blentmouth, Mr. Neeld, you must indeed. For a few days, now? Choose your time, only let it be soon. Why, if you make your way into the library at Blent you might happen on a find there! A lot of interesting stuff there, I'm told. And we shall be very grateful for a visit."

Neeld was conscious of a strong desire to go to Blentmouth. But it would be a wrong thing to do; he felt that he could not fairly accept Iver's hospitality. And he felt, moreover, that he had much better not get himself mixed up with the Tristrams of Blent. No man is bound to act on hearsay evidence, especially when that evidence has been acquired through a confidential channel. But if he came to know the Tristrams, to know Harry Tristram, his position would certainly be peculiar. Well, that was in the end what he wanted to do.

Iver rose and held out his hand. "I must go," he said. "Fairholme, Blentmouth! I hope I shall have a letter from you soon, to tell us to look out for you."

One of the unexpected likings that occur between people had happened. Each man felt it and recognised it in the other. They were alone in the room for the moment.

"Mr. Iver," said Mr. Neeld, in his precise prim tones, "I must make a confession to you. When you were up for this club I—my vote was not in your favour."

During a minute's silence Iver looked at him with amusement and almost affection.

"I'm glad you've told me that."

"Well! I'm glad I have, too," Neeld's laugh was nervous.

"Because it shows that you're thinking of coming to Blentmouth."

"Well—yes, I am," answered Neeld, smiling. And they shook hands. Here was the beginning of a friendship; here, also, Neeld's entry on the scene where Harry Tristram's fortunes formed the subject of the play.

It was now a foregone conclusion that Mr. Neeld would fall before temptation and come to Blentmouth. There had been little doubt about it all along; his confession to Iver removed the last real obstacle. The story in Josiah Cholderton's Journal had him in its grip; on the first occasion of trial his resolution not to be mixed up with the Tristrams melted away. Perhaps he consoled himself by saying that he would be, like his deceased and respected friend, mainly an observer. The Imp, it may be remembered, had gone to Merrion Lodge, with exactly the same idea; it has been seen how it fared with her.

By the Blent the drama seemed very considerately to be waiting for him. It says much for Major Duplay that his utter and humiliating defeat by the Pool had not driven him into any hasty action or shaken him in his original purpose. He was abiding by the offer which he had made, although the offer had been scornfully rejected. If he could by any means avoid it, he was determined not to move while Lady Tristram lived. Harry might force him to act sooner; that rested with Harry, not with him. Meanwhile he declined to explain even to Mina what had occurred by the Pool, and treated her open incredulity as to Harry's explanation with silence or a snub. The Major was not happy at this time; yet his unhappiness was nothing to the deep woe, and indeed terror, which had settled on Mina Zabriska. She had guessed enough to see that, for the moment at least, Harry had succeeded in handling Duplay so roughly as to delay, if not to thwart, his operations; what would he not do to her, whom he must know to be the original cause of the trouble? She used to stand on the terrace at Merrion and wonder about this; and she dared not go to Fairholme lest she should encounter Harry. She made many good resolutions for the future, but there was no comfort in the present days.

The resolutions went for nothing, even in the moment in which they were made. She had suffered for meddling; that was bad: it was worse to the Imp not to meddle: inactivity was the one thing unendurable.

She, too, like old Mr. Neeld in London town, was drawn by the interest of the position, by the need of seeing how Harry Tristram fought his fight. For four days she resisted; on the evening of the fifth, after dinner, while the Major dozed, she came out on the terrace in a cloak and looked down the hill. It was rather dark, and Blent Hall loomed dimly in the valley below. She pulled the hood of her cloak over her head, and began to descend the hill; she had no special purpose; she wanted a nearer look at Blent, and it was a fine night for a stroll. She came to the road, crossed it after a momentary hesitation, and stood by the gate of the little foot-bridge, which, in the days before enmity arose, Harry Tristram had told her was never locked. It was not now. Mina advanced to the middle of the bridge and leant on the parapet, her eyes set on Blent Hall. There were lights in the lower windows; one window on the upper floor was lighted, too. There, doubtless, Lady Tristram lay slowly dying; somewhere else in the house Harry was keeping his guard and perfecting his defences. The absolute peace and rest of the outward view, the sleepless vigilance and unceasing battle within, a battle that death made keener and could not lull to rest—this contrast came upon Mina with a strange painfulness; her eyes filled with tears as she stood looking.

A man came out into the garden and lit a cigar; she knew it was Harry; she did not move. He sauntered towards the bridge; she held her ground; though he should strike her, she would have speech with him to-night. He was by the bridge and had his hand on the gate at the Blent end of it before he saw her. He stood still a moment, then came to her side, and leant as she was leaning over the parapet. He was bare-headed—she saw his thick hair and his peaked forehead; he smoked steadily; he showed no surprise at seeing her, and he did not speak to her for a long time. At last, still without looking at her, he began. She could just make out his smile, or thought she could; at any rate she was sure it was there.

"Well, Mina de Kries?" said he. She started a little. "Oh, I don't believe in the late Zabriska; I don't believe you're grown up; I think you're about fifteen—a beastly age." He put his cigar back in his mouth.

"You see that window?" he resumed in a moment. "And you know what's happening behind it? My mother's dying there. Well, how's the Major. Has he got that trick in better order yet?"

She found her tongue with difficulty.

"Does Lady Tristram know about—about me?" she stammered.

"I sometimes lie to my mother," said Harry flicking his ash into the river. "Why do you lie to your uncle, though?"

"I didn't lie. You know I didn't lie."

He shrugged his shoulders wearily and relapsed into silence. Silence there was till, a minute or two later, it was broken by a little sob from Mina Zabriska. He turned his head towards her; then he took hold of her arm and twisted her face round to him. The tears were running down her cheeks.

"I'm so, so sorry," she murmured. "I didn't mean to; and I did it! And now—now I can't stop it. You needn't believe me if you don't like, but I'm—I'm miserable and—and frightened."

He flung his cigar into the water and put his hands in his pockets. So he stood watching her, his body swaying a little to and fro; his eyes were suspicious of her, yet they seemed amused also, and they were not cruel; it was not such a look as he had given her when they parted by the Pool.

"If it were true?" she asked. "I mean, couldn't Lady Tristram somehow——?"

"If what were true? Oh, the nonsense you told Duplay?" he laughed. "If it were true I should be a nobody and nobody's son. I suppose that would amuse you very much, wouldn't it? You wouldn't have to come to Merrion for nothing then! But as it isn't true, what's the use of talking?"

CITY AFFAIRS.

CLEANING STREET CROSSINGS.

The Mayor (Alderman Dr. James Graham, M.L.A.) stated yesterday that he had given instructions to the superintendent of the street-cleaning department that whenever there was rain the boys who were ordinarily engaged in block-cleaning should be stationed at all the street crossings to keep them clean. Hitherto these crossings had been rendered almost impassable after rain, and the object of the present instruction was that the conditions might be made more pleasant for pedestrians.

CITY HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

After consideration, the Government has finally approved of and gazetted the 15 sanitary inspectors nominated by the City Council, and they are on duty, so that now, as the Mayor stated yesterday, the city health department may be said to be fairly under way. Dr. Armstrong had allotted to each inspector his particular branch of duty, so that the whole city would be placed under effective supervision. The council had also recommended the appointment of a lady sanitary inspector, and the name of one had been submitted to the Government, and would be gazetted in a few days.

DESTRUCTION OF GARBAGE.

Yesterday the Mayor of Sydney intimated that the health committee of the City Council, after the city rate had been struck, took the first opportunity of considering the question of garbage destruction by fire, and unanimously arrived at a recommendation to be submitted at the next meeting of the City Council. If the council gives its approval—and it is expected that it will—the destruction of garbage by machinery will be commenced almost immediately. It is proposed that at the next meeting of the health committee the question of the garbage box nuisance shall be dealt with, and that the council be asked to set apart a sum of money for the purpose.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING OF SYDNEY.

The Mayor of Sydney yesterday stated that the council was awaiting a favourable reply from the Harbour Trust with regard to a site for the electric lighting plant of the city.

A CITY LOAN.

The Mayor stated yesterday that if the State Parliament met before a dissolution an endeavour would be made to get a bill passed enabling the council to borrow £200,000. That amount would enable the council to wipe off its overdraft, besides giving sufficient for rebuilding that portion of the Belmore Markets now in a dilapidated condition.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

Yesterday the Mayor stated that several weak spots had been discovered by the Health Department in the administration of the Health Act, which would compel the council to seek an amending bill as soon as the opportunity offered. The council also desired to take the first opportunity on Parliament meeting of endeavouring to secure the control of Hyde Park. That place was essentially a part of the city, and the present system of control was too cramped and hampered for want of civic administration.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

SUBMARINE MINERS IN CAMP.

The Submarine Miners, who are undergoing a fortnight's continuous training at Chowder Bay, spent a busy day yesterday in the particular work connected with the operations of that useful arm of the service. Major Lee, the O.C.S.M., is at present absent in Newcastle, where a detachment of the force is training under the command of Lieutenant Littlejohn. Consequently Captain Horsley is in command at Chowder, and has with him Lieutenants Day, Brearley, and Calvert. The operations have been, for the second year in succession, greatly hampered through the absence of a suitable vessel in which to carry out the necessary work of laying and picking up mines. Two or three years ago the Government at considerable expense fitted up the Dawn for the use of the corps, but owing to some unexplained reason she is not available, consequently the work has been carried on in a cramped manner in the old Ohm, a vessel altogether inadequate for the service. Therefore the training is shorn of much of its usefulness. This cannot happen again, however, as a newly constructed vessel of the most modern type is on her way to Sydney, where upon arrival she will be at the disposal of the Submarine Miners and their important work in connection with the defences of Port Jackson.

Yesterday morning was spent in laying out and picking up group buoys and cables, testing them, and other accompanying work. In the afternoon the Ohm, with a detachment on board under the direction of Captain Horsley and Lieutenant Calvert, proceeded to the chosen area between Obelisk Bay and the Lightship, and laid a connecting cable between the two junction-box boats moored off the shore, and it was subsequently tested. The detachment then laid and picked up group buoys, and did other useful work.

It is the intention of the G.O.C. to make his annual inspection on Saturday next, when some interesting operations will be carried out. On Thursday the first of a series of evening lectures on technical subjects will be delivered by Lieutenant Brearley.

Major-General French, C.M.G., R.A., General Officer Commanding, is at present in Melbourne. He will return to Sydney to attend the adjourned sitting of the conference of commandants of the various States of the Commonwealth.

MUNICIPAL APPEAL COURT.

Mr. Smithers, S.M., presided over the municipal appeal court for the borough of Alexandria, which was held at the Redfern Police Court yesterday morning. Mr. Madden, council clerk, and the borough assessors, Messrs. Matthews and Cain, appeared to represent the council. In all there were 54 appellants, representing 300 properties. The majority of the appeals were dealt with by the assessors in a friendly appeal court. Of those which came before the magistrate a reduction was made in several cases. In others the assessors' valuation was confirmed.

LAND APPEAL COURT.

(Before the President and Commissioner Brandis.)

Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Crown.

RESERVED DECISIONS.

The appeal of George Lewis Austin against the appraised annual rent of his special lease No. 1900-29, Grafton, was sustained, and the rent determined at 3½d per acre per annum. Deposit to be refunded.

The appeal of Elizabeth S. Hebden against the order of the Moree Land Board that she should pay the sum of £16 13s in respect of the fencing on James Hannah Nairn's settlement lease, No. 878, Moree, was sustained, and the Court determined the sum to be payable at £25 in respect of this and the next two appeals.

The appeal of E. S. Hebden against the order of the Moree Board that she should pay the sum of £42 6s in respect of fencing on the Australasian Mortgage and Agency's Company's settlement lease, No. 898, Moree, was sustained in terms of the preceding judgment.

The appeal of E. S. Hebden against the order of the Moree Board that she should pay the sum of £6 15s in respect of fencing on William Todd's settlement lease No. 887, Moree, was sustained in terms of the two preceding judgments. Mr. Pike appeared for appellant in the three appeals.

In the appeal of G. H. and H. E. H. Gordon against the recommendation of the Warialda Land Board for refusal of their application for surrender and exchange of certain lands on Gragin and Gragin holding, No. 681, Central Division, judgment was given as follows:—The proposed exchange, which is in the nature of a supplementary one, is for 2308½ acres, portions 13, 25, 30, and 37 for an equal area on portion 40, the two areas being adjoining lands. The evidence as to nature of soil, value, and suitability for settlement is conflicting. The inspecting surveyor (Mr. Sweet) is of opinion that the proposed exchange would be advantageous to the interests of the public. The acting district surveyor thinks the Crown might with advantage exchange, if applicants paid the Crown, to equalise value, 1d per acre, and surrendered all irremovable improvements, the Crown waiving all claim to improvements on the land sought in exchange. The board, however, considering that the land asked for in exchange is more suitable for settlement, and more valuable than that offered in exchange, recommended refusal of the application. Both areas appear to be well watered, and to be distant from the Moree-Inverell line, now in course of construction, some 30 miles. The grounds of appeal were:—That the recommendation was against evidence and the weight of evidence; that no objections to the proposed surrender and exchange having been lodged within the prescribed time, Josiah Rolfe, Cornelius M'Cosker, and Dennis J. Lowe should not have been permitted to appear before the board and oppose the application, nor to give evidence against it, and that the applicants were prejudiced through having no notice of the petition, or of any objections. With regard to the ground, which may be considered as technical rather than as based on the merits, the Court holds that in the circumstances stated the persons mentioned should not have been permitted by the board to appear in opposition to the application, inasmuch as no objections thereto had been lodged. It also holds that the petition should not have been admitted as evidence. The proper course would have been for the board, if satisfied that the persons mentioned were bona fide objectors and not in default, to have required them to give notice of the grounds of their objections to the applicants, and to have postponed the hearing, subject to such terms as to costs, &c., as might seem just. Petitions, as such, should never be received as evidence, for their value cannot be ascertained or challenged; but the matter of the petition should have formed the subject of objection, and have been duly lodged. It might be well if a regulation were framed to give effect to this opinion, for the guidance of boards and suitors. On the merits of this application, the Court, though not prepared to concur with the board as to the superior suitability for settlement of the lands sought in exchange, is hardly prepared to reverse the board's recommendation, but after full consideration of the evidence feels itself justified in suggesting to the Minister that the exchange might be granted, provided applicants pay to the Crown, to equalise values, 1s 6d per acre for 2308½ acres, or thereabout on portion 40, in addition to the surrender by them of an equal area on the portions specified, and of all improvements thereon that are not removable, the Crown waiving its claim to the fencing improvements on the last mentioned portion as covered on the merits by the first ground. The appeal must be dismissed. The deposit to be refunded.

The appeal of W. Jamieson, H. F. C. Keats, and T. G. Keats against the order of the Bourke Land Board directing payment to William Robert Johnston of the sum of £127 12s 5d as half-cost of fencing the common boundary of homestead lease No. 1436 and improvement leases Nos. 76 and 77, Bourke, was sustained, the Court stating that at the hearing appellant's counsel took the objection that the board's order was void for uncertainty, as no place where the amount awarded is payable was stated in such order. This the Court overruled, and the case for the appellants was argued chiefly on the grounds that the amount of the award was excessive, and that under the circumstances the time limited for compliance with the order was not sufficient. The Court would not vary the amount at which the fencing had been valued by the board, but the order to pay that sum within four weeks was varied. The sum of £127 12s 5d was ordered to be paid by the appellants to the claimant, W. R. Johnston, in two instalments, the first half within 60 days, and the second within six calendar months. Mr. Pike, instructed by Mr. H. M. Salenger, of Bourke, appeared for the appellants.

The Court adjourned sine die.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray.)

A FENCING DISPUTE.

Webb and another v. M'Kenzie.

Mr. Garland, instructed by Mr. C. S. George (Messrs. Jones and Jones), appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Mr. L. Dobbin (Messrs. Dobbin and Uther), for the defendant.

In this case William Charles Webb and William Charles Hadley Lippmann, of George-street, Sydney, sued Hepburn M'Kenzie, timber merchant, of Abattoir-road, Pyrmont, to recover from him the sum of £50 for damages alleged to have been sustained by them by reason of their inability to let certain property and also for waste. Plaintiffs' case was that the defendant was the tenant of certain fenced lands belonging to them, and that their reversion in the land and fixtures had been injured by the defendant having wrongfully pulled down and removed the fences and converted them to his own use, and that in consequence the plaintiffs had for a considerable time been prevented from letting the land, and had lost the profits that otherwise would have been made. The defence was a denial of any injury done to the reversion or that defendant had committed waste.

His Honor gave a verdict for the defendant.

THE SALE OF AN INVENTION.

Manners v. Daniels.

Mr. Mason, instructed by Mr. Petrie, for the plaintiff; Mr. James, instructed by Mr. H. L. Langley, for the defendant.

Albert Manners, of Marshall-street, Redfern, teacher of music, sued Joseph Daniels, 55 Hunter-street, Sydney, agent, for £38 12s for money lent and payable, and for that at the time of the making of a certain agreement the plaintiff and one William Gladwin were the inventors and patentees of an invention known as "An Improved Apparatus for Advertising." The defendant agreed to purchase the invention and patent rights and 100 machines to be manufactured for £110, of which the sum of £30 was paid by the said defendant. Other payments were agreed to be made by the defendant, but the plaintiff averred the defendant did not make such payments, whereby the plaintiff lost the benefits and profits which otherwise would have arisen and accrued to him. The defence was never indebted as alleged, that the defendant did not agree as alleged, that he denied the breaches of the alleged agreement, and that it was a condition precedent to payment of the balance under the alleged agreement that the plaintiff should deliver within 30 days 100 machines in working order, and the plaintiff did not complete and deliver the said machines in working order. The defendant brought a cross action against the plaintiff for breach of the said agreement and claimed £100 damages.

After hearing the plaintiff accepted a nonsuit.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Acting-Justice Pring.)

Mr. Wade asked for an adjournment till Friday on account of the absence of certain witnesses from New Zealand, who could not arrive for some days. On Friday he hoped to be able to say when the trial could be proceeded with.

Mr. Mack offered no objection and said that it was unlikely that the case would come on before next Tuesday.

The Court adjourned to Friday at 10 a.m.

DUPLICATION OF THE MOUNTAIN LINE.

We are informed that a representative deputation will wait on the Railway Commissioners on Tuesday next, at noon, to urge the immediate duplication of the mountain section of the Great Western railway. It will be represented to the Commissioners that the Western railway traffic has now assumed such proportions that a single line is no longer adequate. It is on the mountain length, which carries the mineral traffic of Lithgow, in addition to the live stock, produce, and general traffic of the West, that the strain is most severely felt. With a double line over the mountains the congestion would be immediately relieved, and the gain would be shared by every interest in the West. The Zigzag is included in the section of line referred to. It will be remembered that about seven years ago the Railway Commissioners strongly recommended the cutting out of the Zigzag in favour of an alternative route, but the project fell through owing to an adverse report by the Public Works Committee, to which body it was referred. Since then, it is said, conditions have materially changed. Traffic has grown very considerably, and is still growing. The distance from Sydney to Eskbank is 95 miles. Of this there are about 40 miles of double line between Sydney and Penrith, Blackheath, and Mount Victoria, and Eskbank and Bottom Points, and 55 miles single line. Next Tuesday's deputation will request the Railway Commissioners to take such steps as will ensure the doubling of these 55 miles as early as possible.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

Australian was yesterday struck out of the Welter Handicap, to be run in connection with the A.J.C. Autumn Meeting.

Inverell Picnic R.C. and Wellington Picnic R.C. race meetings were yesterday granted registration by the A.J.C.

Mr. Clibborn will commence his sale of yearlings to-morrow at 1 o'clock punctually.

Entries close at 5 p.m. to-morrow for the pony and galloway races to be held at Forest Lodge on Friday next. The programme appears in the advertising columns.

A sporting medico has been fortunate enough to strike a well-known bookmaking firm here for £1000 on the double Wakeful and Dreamland for the V.R.C. Newmarket and Australian Cup and Wakeful and San Fran for the A.J.C. Doncaster and Sydney Cup.

Mr. C. L. M'Donald and Mr. "A. Williams," the owners respectively of the A.J.C. Doncaster and Sydney Cup winners, at the settling yesterday at Tattersall's Club invited the company to drink their health in wine. The toasts were proposed by Mr. P. Gloucester. The public had the better of the deal for the first two days of the meeting, and the settling yesterday passed off satisfactorily.

Mr. W. Gardiner has sold the well-known racer Severity, by Trenchant from Louma, to Mr. R. M'Kenna, the Indian sportsman. The price paid was 1000 guineas.

The yearling filly by Grafton from Loch Lava, and the yearling colt by Lochiel from Lilias, knocked down at the sale yesterday to Mr. T. Payten, were for Mr. H. Harvey, a Victorian sportsman.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphs that the following horses have been rehandicapped:—Goodwood Handicap: Royal Artillery, 8st 7lb. Trochon, 8st 5lb. Adelaide Cup: Royal Artillery, 8st 5lb.

A little fast work was done at Randwick yesterday morning. On the "D" grass track Dandy galloped a mile in 1 minute 48 seconds, but had already covered a couple of furlongs at a good half pace, having overpowered his rider. Lygon beat Whirlpool over six furlongs in 1 minute 22½ seconds, and Satanstoe ran the same distance in a second faster time alone. Coolstat and Pavilion spurted five furlongs in 1 minute 8 seconds, while Edna and Dalmore ran a mile in 1 minute 52 seconds. Melosei was too good for Earl Rosebery over five furlongs, traversed in 1 minute 6½ seconds, and Benedick ran seven furlongs comfortably in 1 minute 36½ seconds. Ariana and Hard Case negotiated a circle in 2 minutes 14 seconds. Advance spurted over five furlongs on the outer tan in 1 minute 5 seconds, finishing well, and Edna Lyall was better than Fireman over the same distance in half a second slower time. Several others did slow work.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

AUTUMN MEETING.

THIRD (CUMBERLAND STAKES) DAY.

The A.J.C. Autumn reunion will be continued at Randwick this afternoon, and the bill of fare for the occasion is a highly interesting one, including three w.f.a. events, in which all the cracks are engaged, a hurdle race, and two handicaps on the flat, consequently first-class sport is assured. The transit arrangements by rail and road will be similar to those in vogue on the preceding days, trams starting from Dent-street, via Oxford-street, and from the subway in Devonshire-street, at the Redfern railway station, via Cleveland-street, while those who prefer to travel by road will have a good service of cabs and 'buses to convey them to and from the metropolitan convincing ground. Proceedings commence at 1 p.m. with the Second Hurdle Race, for which the top weight, Moravian, is not attractive under 12st 12lb, but Marton, Redlight, Abedare, Rickshaw, and T. C. should run well, and the places may go to Marton, Rickshaw, and Abedare. It is more than likely that La Carabine will be reserved for the Cumberland Stakes, and that being so Advance should have the All-aged Stakes at his mercy, and the son of Vanguard may be escorted home by Fulminate and Dandy. A large field may be anticipated for the City Handicap, in which the prospects of Gaulson, Australian Colours, Khaki, Rabato, Aurous, Cordon, Golden Ring, and Barbarossa seem to be the brightest; and Gaulson or Rabato should claim the judge's verdict, while the most dangerous of the others appear to be Australian Colours and Khaki. The Easter Stakes promises to be a repetition of the contest for the Champagne Stakes, and Ibex, Grasspan, and Hautvillers should command the attention of the judge in the order written. A very interesting contest should be witnessed for the Cumberland Stakes among La Carabine, Advance, Clean Sweep, and Severity. The battle between the champions promises to be bitterly fought out, and the places may go to La Carabine, Advance, and Clean Sweep. A large muster may be expected at the post for the Welter Handicap, and the race seems very open. Ferryman, Durham, Bullomie, Alice Mostyn, Latona, The Kiss, and Barraguada seem to have a slight pull in the weights, and the honours may be divided among The Kiss, Ferryman, and Bullomie. The card is subjoined:—

ROWING.

The New South Wales eight-oar crew spent the four days of Easter holidays on the Parramatta River, taking up quarters at Mortlake. The weather was favourable, and a great deal of useful work was done in a tub eight. The boat is rather weak, and small for so heavy a crew, but there is a great improvement in the rowing generally. The catch is decidedly good, and the swing is solid, of first-rate length, and effective. The leg-drive is better than it was, but will need to improve, for there is not nearly enough vigour in the drive. Men such as these are, with weight and strength, should be able to put far more strain against the stretchers. No doubt this will come later, and the crew is singularly free from other faults, with over three weeks' work yet to be done. All are getting the hands away fairly well, but the hands should be thrown lower when dropped and shot out. The recovery is steady, and all the men move the slides at the same instant, reach the chocks together, and grip in excellent time and style. The blades are well covered, and the first part of the stroke is far better than has been seen in previous crews, but owing to weak leg drive there is a tendency to wash out instead of finishing up firmly right on the breast bones. However, the crew is well forward, and should be a particularly smart lot by May 4, when it should prove capable of covering the three miles course at a rattling pace. The men are very powerful, reliable, and now in good health. Mr. Brotherton has certainly moulded the rowing to the principles he advocates, and has thus shown his capabilities as a coach. The slides are held up until the swing on full blades has begun, and this should make effective leg drive comparatively easy to pick up. Bow carries his blade dangerously low, touches the water slightly as he reaches forward, and does not set his blade square until late; this is a fault at both ends of the boat, and makes the feathering look uneven. Two could reach out a bit more, finish higher on the chest. Three could be faster with his hands, hold his slide longer, and lengthen the finish by touching his guernsey with his thumbs. Four could improve his appearance by dropping his shoulders at the finish, but the peculiar carriage of the head may be due to the build of the man. Five is a much improved man, and is not shaping badly now that he has given up his old fault of cocketing when reaching for the catch. Six could sit up more, and grip quicker, also finish up further on the chest. Stroke does not do enough before the poppet, and his catch can yet be made far crisper, and the time more decisive. He also squares his blade late, and hardly drops his hands far enough. He does not feather under water, but goes dangerously near it. Seven is rowing well all round, and fills this important place with credit to himself, and is helping the crew manfully. The crew has sterling merits, and in a week or two will make an excellent showing. The new boat is due on Saturday, and is anxiously looked for. The men are placed as follows:—Furlong, Magee, Decent, Thomson, Dagot-rdi, Paull, Cater, M'Gregor (stroke).

The Victorian eight has done nearly two weeks' work, but did not go out during Easter. The crew is now seated as follows:—Ivens, Williams, Cockbill, Donald, Chamley, Potter, Scathern, Sloan (stroke). They average about 11st 10lb, and are very strong, good men, all skilful rowers taught one style of rowing. They have from the start been well together, and rowing a slow stroke in a tub eight have made good pace. They have now taken to the racing boat; this is the one in which the Mercantile Club won the Champion Eights last month, and was built by Edwards and Sons. The crew will reach Sydney a week before the race day, and has secured quarters at Ryde.

Hook, jun., John Crozier, J. E. Brewer, Willoughby Elliott, A. Hendrics, F. Wentworth, P. Bolger, J. R. Hardy, A. Gollan, Captain Clands Smith, Messrs. E. A. Smith, Lance Smith, J. M'Ewen, W. Forrester, E. E. A. Oatley, J. T. Nowlan, W. H. Mackay, H. Skinner, J. T. Carslake, J. M'Dougall, Alex. Busby, Leslie Rouse, Dr. Anderson, Messrs. R. C. Allen, J. Stewart, A. Pearce, R. M'Kenna, E. Barton, W. Clift, T. Uphill, S. F. Reynolds, S. Margetts, H. Munro, H. Raynor, J. Moore, J. Gough, G. Kiss, J. C. Bowden, C. F. Lawson, W. Kelso, J. Lucas, T. Payten, J. Earnshaw, J. Scobie, J. Finn, M. Thompson, H. Roberts, J. Burton, W. Prosser (N.Z.), J. Farley, T. Lamond, J. Mayo, J. H. Mayo, W. Noud, W. Duggan, A. Cornwell, H. Dargin, J. Foulsham, R. O'Connor, J. Allsop, W. H. Barry, J. Monaghan, E. Keys, T. Cush, W. Gollum, and many others. Mr. Hordern's Wilton Park yearlings sold wonderfully well, easily topping the averages. There was keen demand for the Haut Brions, and 10 of them sold at an average of 326 guineas. The top price of the sale was realised by a beautiful black sister to Haulette (Haut Brion—Novelette II.), who was knocked down to Mr. J. L. Brown, of Cuigan and Wallerawang. The Victorian buyers were very much in evidence. James Scobie purchased a sweet filly, by Haut Brion from the Chester mare Trieste, for 850 guineas, and this filly of course goes to Ballarat. The brothers to Hautvillers (Haut Brion—Narara, by Goldsbrough) and the Haut Brion—Princess Olga colt also go to Victoria, the former having fallen to the nod of I. Foulsham, the Caulfield trainer, at 340 guineas, and the latter to Mr. "H. Hawkins" for 510 guineas. The bargains of Mr. Hordern's lot were the Hindoo—Spite filly and the Haut Brion—Miss Westbourne filly. The former came in with a reserve of 300 guineas, and was snapped up by Mr. W. H. Mate at that figure, and the Miss Westbourne filly fell to Mr. Lance Smith for the very low figure of 70 guineas. T. Payten also got a bargain at 180 guineas for his patron, Mr. W. Bailey, of Ballarat, in a very fine filly by Haut Brion from that splendidly bred Chester mare Trafalgar. I. Earnshaw and J. E. Brewer were busy bidders all the afternoon, and half a dozen fell to the former at moderate prices. Brewer gave the highest price realised by Mr. James Thompson's lot, viz., 250 guineas for a black brother to Amiable (Lochiel—Affection). The veteran Harry Raynor did well to get two such nice youngsters as the Lochiel—Silverhair colt and the Lochiel—Scotch Mary colt at 100 and 200 guineas respectively. Earnshaw got a bargain out of the Olinda lot in a rather grand brown colt by Grafton from Disgrace; and P. Bolger, of Western Australia, picked up two bargains in the youngsters out of The Field and Xantippe; and taking a line through previous prices obtained Mr. John M'Master, of Binnia, may be said to have paid only a tithe of the value of the Grafton—Profane colt, whom he secured for 110 guineas. J. Prosser, the trainer of Advance, got a full brother to Amourette for 110 guineas. Messrs. Thompson, of Widden, were represented by a very shapely lot of yearlings by Projectile, but they did not fetch very great prices. A grand black colt, by Projectile from the flying Loch Maree, looked full worth the 200 guineas paid for him by H. Dargin, and J. E. Brewer got a fine gelding by the same horse out of Gymkhana, for 105 guineas. Having received a kick on the hock in the train, the Projectile—Hirondelle yearling was at a disadvantage, but he found an admirer in that astute judge, W. Brennan, who took him at 150 guineas. The consensus of opinion among visitors was that the Projectiles were the most shapely and most even yearlings paraded. Mr. R. C. Allen obtained 750 guineas for a splendidly grown brown colt by Bill of Portland from Martingale. This fine youngster fell to James Scobie, who was acting on behalf of Sir Rupert Clarke; and a sturdy bay colt (with a deal of Carbine's style), by Wallace (son of Carbine) out of Juanna, went to I. Foulsham for 205 guineas. Mr. Albert Thompson's four sold well, a shapely brother to Brantwood going to Mr. C. L. Macdonald for 150 guineas; and T. Payten got a choice Grafton colt (out of Loch Lava) for 170 guineas. Mr. Hooke's nice little band of yearlings went cheaply, and Mr. H. C. White's very well-bred lot were simply sacrificed. A very fine colt by Haut Brion from Galvina, the property of Mr. W. H. Dean, did not reach the very moderate reserve of 200 guineas, which was also the reserve—but not reached—on a charming filly by Haut Brion from Giril, the property of Mr. P. Reynolds, who let a splendid colt by Medallion from Donna De Vere go to Mr. F. Silva, of Queensland, for 40 guineas. Mr. E. R. White's lot were not got up for sale like the majority of the drafts sold, and buyers looked askance at their rough, healthy coats and hardy appearance. Messrs. Moses did not receive satisfactory prices for their highly bred quartet, J. E. Brewer getting a fine big Medallion colt from Urana, for 100 guineas, and Dandy's big half-brother (by Medallion) went to Mr. R. M'Kenna cheaply enough at 95 guineas. Mr. A. E. Anderson got a very fine great colt, by Holbrook out of sister to Lone Star, for 55 guineas. This colt was bred on Widden by Messrs. Harris and Bradford, and was among the three first of the aristocratic Holbrook's get. Mr. E. E. A. Oatley's little draft sold fairly well, Earnshaw securing the Bowmont—Acushla colt and the Niagara—Faith colt; while Mr. Philip Russell paid 150 guineas for the well-bred filly by Gossoon from Wheel of Fortune. The Wilton Park draft of 24 realised a total of 4545 guineas, or an average of 189⅜ guineas, while the 10 youngsters by Haut Brion averaged 326 guineas. The Dorchester draft of a dozen brought an aggregate of 1451 guineas; the Widden draft of 19 brought 1640 guineas; Messrs. J. and W. Thompson's nine lots realised 836 guineas; Mr. E. E. A. Oatley's consignment of five brought 482 guineas; and 37 miscellaneous lots totalled 2476 guineas, or a grand total of 11,430 guineas, with a general average for the 108 lots of 107½ guineas. Appended are the lots disposed of:—

At a meeting of the Adelaide City Council yesterday it was stated that the council was willing to vote a sum of money for the expenditure in connection with the visit of the Duke and the Duchess of York, but it had been advised by its solicitors that any such expenditure would be illegal.

The twenty-first annual session of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales (Independent Order of Oddfellows) was opened at the Oddfellows' Temple, Elizabeth-street, yesterday. The Grand Master presided and submitted his annual report.

During the week ended April 6 the exports of wheat from the port of Sydney totalled 162,028 bushels. The exports of flour were 986 tons.

The Collector of Customs gives the imports of butter during the week ended April 6 as 23,720lb., and the exports as 161,528lb.

The customs revenue received at Sydney yesterday amounted to £6208.

MR. SEE'S CABINET-MAKING.

Mr. See apparently finds the formation of his Ministry not a particularly easy task. It must be admitted that he makes his attempt under novel as well as somewhat unfavourable circumstances. His first difficulty, indeed, arises out of the very conditions which have rendered necessary the reconstruction of the Ministry or the formation of a new one, according as we may choose to regard his action. The Federal Parliament, which has attracted so many of the best men in the public life of the State, has not only drawn away Ministers but those politicians of whom Ministers are usually made. The result is that there are comparatively few men regarded as of Cabinet rank left in the public life of the State. That class has been depleted, and the Premier who would gather a team of Ministerial colleagues about him to-day finds himself compelled to extend his range of choice. New men have to be brought forward, or in the alternative the Premier-elect must reconcile himself to the necessity of overstepping the old lines of party and reconstructing his Cabinet on entirely new principles. This is the course which Mr. See appears to have been meditating, with the ultimate outcome made public in our columns this morning. Twenty-one members of one branch or other of the local Legislature have been elected to the Federal Parliament, and such a number as that, including as it does some of the best known men in the public life of the State, must have restricted the range of choice and embarrassed the Premier in his selection of suitable colleagues. So that we need not look far for Mr. See's reasons for inclining towards a coalition Ministry.

As the Premier-elect doubtless recognises by this time, the formation of a coalition Ministry is seldom achieved without difficulty. In selecting colleagues from the ranks of his own party a Premier enjoys the advantage of dealing directly with men of sympathetic political and party aspirations. They have been accustomed to work together, and they can meet each other on the common ground of parliamentary accord. Each prospective colleague knows what is expected of him, and the leader of the Cabinet is usually on sure ground in knowing exactly what to expect from them in his turn. The case as regards the formation of a coalition is different. A coalition seeks to bring together men whose politics and whose party sympathies have been openly antagonistic. The critics and the criticised are gathered together into one fold, and the political lion is invited to lie down with the political lamb. If the difficulties can be overcome no doubt there are compensating advantages. It was once said by an experienced politician, in one of those catchy phrases which often secure the fulfilment of the prophecies they imply, that England does not love coalitions. The same might be said up to a certain point of those English-speaking communities which have acclimatised British political institutions abroad. Yet the history of Parliaments, both in England and abroad, furnishes many instances of coalition Ministries which have commanded greater measures of success and longer terms of office than would have been possible to Cabinets otherwise constituted. The Parkes-Robertson coalition in New South Wales, the Service-Berry coalition in Victoria, and the Griffith-M'Ilwraith coalition in Queensland are all instances in point, without travelling beyond the boundaries of the Commonwealth to seek them. But in each of these cases it would be possible to show that special circumstances existed which rendered the course taken by party leaders not only the best that could have been followed in the circumstances, but actually the only course possible in the interests of good and stable government.

Mr. See's non-success in the task to which he addressed himself will have convinced him that the conditions now existing in the local politics of this State are not such as to favour a coalition. Coalitions are only possible when the grounds of rivalry between parties are for the time being exhausted. That is not yet the case in New South Wales. Although the fiscal question has been relegated to the Federal Parliament it still remains a party issue with us. The course of the late federal election and its result demonstrated that, Freetrade is very much alive indeed in New South Wales, and the party leaders are exhibiting points of strategy in view of the future when they insist on the desirableness of keeping the issue well before the mind of the country. It is not easy to see how that end would be secured by effacing the lines of party in regard to the fiscal question, in the Ministry or in the Parliament. We require these agencies to act as educators of the mind of the country, for freetraders owe it to themselves not to forget that the representation of freetrade from this State in the Federal Parliament will depend on the earnestness of their own desire to elect such representatives. For party purposes, therefore, and for the purpose of conserving the triumph which freetraders have just won, it is not advisable to efface the lines of party in a coalition Ministry. Protectionists have all to gain and freetraders all to lose by such a move just now. The movement towards coalition comes from the side which more plainly perceives how its political and party interests lie, and it is possible that the solidarity of the Ministerial following will not have been strengthened by the disaffection arising out of certain unavoidable suspicions that the individual interests of members of the protectionist party would have been set back in the interests of the proposed coalition. At any rate, the first duty of freetraders just now, whether in the House or out of it, is to guard the fruits of the victory they have won at the federal polls, and do nothing to weaken the educative effect of that result on the public mind of the country.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT IN AUSTRIA.

Our cables recently have contained numerous references to the unfortunate state of affairs in the Austro-Hungarian Reichsrath, and our Vienna correspondent has dwelt on the position in greater detail. The troubles would not be of such great importance if it were not for the complications created by dynastic possibilities. The Emperor Francis Joseph has been by singular tact and ability enabled to maintain throughout his long and arduous reign some semblance of cohesion in the body politic. Men of all schools of thought agree that he has been the main force to bind together opposing parties, and to give to the unwieldy Empire over which he has so long presided a rallying point for the efforts of patriots. In the natural course of things Austria-Hungary cannot expect to have the advantage for many more years of the high statesmanship and profound knowledge of affairs which the Emperor Francis Joseph has been able to place at the disposal of the various races of his great dominions. If he were able to hand down the crown which he has so nobly worn to a son trained in his own school and imbued with the same principles—as Queen Victoria was able to hand down her crown to King Edward—there would not be this amount of unrest and turmoil in the State. But the mysterious tragedy of the death of Crown Prince Rudolph blocked all hopes in that direction. The difficulties gather round the aged monarch, and he cannot but know that the cohesion of his Empire is largely bound up with the duration of his own life.

The present condition of affairs would seem to be unparalleled in its intensity, unless indeed a parallel were to be sought in days of actual revolt. The other day a deputy said openly that he and his fellows of the Pan-German party desired to belong to the German Empire. Some members exclaimed against his want of patriotism, and his answer was: "Let us be frank; we are not patriots, nor are you, and whoever calls himself a patriot in Austria nowadays is a simpleton." The answer went unchallenged, so that the Reichsrath possesses now the unenviable reputation of an assembly which allows members to boast of their want of loyalty to the Constitution. In all deliberative assemblies there are persons who—perhaps from conviction or perhaps from a desire to earn a cheap notoriety—declare their hostility to the Constitution of which they form a part. But in hardly any European assembly has a member been allowed to declare such sentiments without being rebuked by his fellow-members as well as being called to order by the Chair. Before the Reichsrath had been three weeks in session its notice paper contained 83 Government bills, 51 motions of urgency by members, 274 interpellations, and 319 private motions. Not one of these had been disposed of, and at the rate of progress indicated there was little chance of any of the more important of them being reached in an ordinary session. What is meant by an interpellation of the kind submitted to the Reichsrath can be best understood by the fact that one of the Czech interpellations consisted of 58 pages and was read right through from the German translation of the original. The time which is not occupied in this way is wasted in personal recriminations between members of the various parties. The Anti-Semites and the Social Democrats easily excel the larger parties in the virulence of the language which they hurl at each other. The air bristles with such expressions as "unsavoury Jew" and "deliberate liar," whilst the administrators of justice are labelled as "scoundrels who sell their good offices." The President sits calmly by for the more part, ignoring these breaches of the ordinary laws governing social intercourse, not to mention the special rules made for the conduct of debate. Once, when a particularly outrageous remark was made, the President ventured to call the speaker to order, with the result that the objectionable remark was repeated with the addition: "The President's call to order can be disposed of with a shrug of the shoulders." Meanwhile, outside Parliament House the unemployed are clamouring for work, and people of all classes are imploring that a definite end shall be put to this state of affairs.

What lends additional interest to the abuse of parliamentary powers by certain parties in the Reichsrath is the fact that the fortieth anniversary of the Austrian Constitution was celebrated during the few weeks in which the present Assembly has sat. When the Emperor opened the new Reichsrath on May 1, 1861, he declared freely in favour of the representative system of government, and he promised then to uphold this system so far as was in his power. It will be admitted by students of Austro-Hungarian history that the Emperor-King has fulfilled his obligations in the face of obstacles which he could not have foreseen. But now he sees some of the members of the Lower House deliberately obstructing legislation. He sees progress thwarted in every direction. He sees systematic attempts made to set various parts of his Empire against each other. He reads of some members openly advocating the advisability of creating a schism in the Empire in the German interest, and of others who plainly declare their adherence to Russian rule. When, at the opening of the session, the deputies, asked to pass a vote of condolence with the family of a Sovereign who had for nearly two generations governed a friendly Power, chose the opportunity to insult the people over whom she had reigned so long, it was evident that the disorderly element in the Reichsrath would be restrained by no ordinary rules of decency. The upshot is that people of the better class are now advocating a return to the old system of autocratic government. This would be a step so grave in its consequences that an experienced statesman such as the Emperor Francis Joseph would hesitate long before taking it, however great might be the temptation and however eager he may be to put a stop to the present scandal of representative parliamentary government.

FRENCH SUGAR BOUNTIES.

An official return of the operation of the sugar bounties for the year 1899-1900 again brings into prominence the loss imposed by them on France. An aggregate of 869,201 tons of sugar is produced. On 249,641 tons of this a rebate of £2,995,720 was allowed; while on 100,000 tons of colonial £851,480 was conceded, making the total bounty £3,487,200. This is the amount that was given to the producers at the expense of the people of France. The bounties and duties enabled the producers to do two things most effectively. They permitted them to sell in their own market 460,000 tons of sugar at such prices as make the article dearer than it is in any other country in Europe, and in the second place they enabled them to sell the balance of 509,200 tons of sugar abroad, much of it in England at very low prices in competition with other equally low priced Continental sugar. Although not produced in England, the English consumer buys sugar at a much lower price than his Continental neighbours, who manufacture more than they can afford to consume at the high prices that can be claimed in consequence of their closed ports. It is not surprising to read of the complaints of the French people at such exactions. Sometimes it is said that the profits of this State-provided monopoly are divided between the capitalist and the workmen. How the artisans who produce the sugar fare may be judged from the fact that they are now paid lower wages than they were in the earlier period of the industry. In 1884 men were paid 19s 6d per week, women 9s 7d, and children 8s 7½d. Last year men were paid 19s 4d per week, women 10s, and children 8s 3½d per week. Where under the open competition of all kinds in the United Kingdom there has been a general rise of wages, in France under this highly protected sugar industry there has been a reduction except in the case of women, of whom, however, there were only 3246 employed as against 6749 in the earlier year. That the industry is not a satisfactory one for workpeople may be seen from the fact that there were last year only 42,812 men employed as against 43,896 in 1884. Stagnation such as this shows the unsatisfactory state of the business that costs all the people of France nearly four millions sterling as a direct bounty to the producers, a great many millions more as an indirect bounty to them in the extreme prices they have to pay for the sugar they use, and doubtless a heavy loss of trade in consequence in confectionery and like productions in which sugar is an ingredient. The United Kingdom benefits enormously by these bounties.

GAINSBOROUGH'S DUCHESS.

A quarter of a century ago the world interested in art was startled at learning that Gainsborough's "Duchess of Devonshire" had been cut out of its frame and carried away. Numerous conjectures were made as to the object of the theft, for the picture was so well known that it was practically unsaleable anywhere. Even the most hardened buyer of goods known to have been stolen would hesitate before acquiring a work which, however valuable in itself, could not be sold for any money in any part of the civilised world. Outside the civilised world there would be no market for it. And now we learn from our cables that the picture has been concealed in a town in one of the Western States of America, that authorities have duly identified it, and that it has been carried back unhurt to England. There is no information available as to the terms on which the picture has been recovered, but presumably the thieves, or their representatives, made some money out of the transaction. When the picture was stolen liberal rewards were offered for its recovery, but these did not tempt the holders, who probably thought that an advance would be made. They must have learned since that the world is a smaller place than they supposed, and that, thanks to the press, a remunerative market was impossible anywhere. It is gratifying to find that this beautiful specimen of Gainsborough's genius has been restored to its owners, and that students of British art may, after the lapse of so many years, be able to establish or renew their acquaintance with the masterpiece.

The "Sydney Mail."—The "Sydney Mail" of this week is a great pictorial record of the incidents of the holidays, but particularly of the "record" show of the Royal Agricultural Society still in progress, and of the races at Randwick. In the views many of the visitors who are thronging Sydney will find that they have come before the cameras of the numerous body of "Mail" photographic artists. As a thing to send abroad to show friends outside what New South Wales institutions and exhibitions are like, and the extent of our resources, the present issue of the "Mail" will be admirable. The London representatives of the paper have sent out a number of most interesting portraits relating to our fast approaching Royal visitors and the party accompanying them on the Ophir. Among the number reproduced are portraits of the Duke and the Duchess of Cornwall and York in various guises—with the consciousness of State ceremonial, and the unconsciousness of rural enjoyment. The portraits include those of Sir Arthur Bigge, Sir Donald Mackenzie Wallace, and the new Governor of Western Australia, Sir Arthur Lawley and Lady Lawley. Among general portraits are those of the late Mr. James Scott, the well-known golfer, and of Mr. Newell, the American pianist with Madame Dolores. An interesting set of pictures relates to the sale of the "Table-top clip" in Sydney by the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company.

Cable Communication.—The following cable notifications, we are informed, have been received from Berne:—"The Korean Government notifies that all telegrams to Ang-hin and Tungshin should, till further notice, bear remarks—'Sender's risk.' The Taku-Chefoo cable has been restored."

Parliament further Prorogued.—A proclamation was published in a "Government Gazette" issued yesterday further proroguing the New South Wales Parliament to May 21.

Assent to Acts of Parliament.—It is notified in the "Government Gazette" that the Secretary of State for the Colonies has intimated in his despatch of February 22 last that the King will not be advised to exercise his power of disallowance with respect to the following Acts passed by the legislature of this State:—"An Act to enable the Government of New South Wales to join with certain other Governments in the cost of the construction and maintenance of a cable across the Pacific Ocean, and for purposes consequent upon and incidental to such objects," and "An Act to amend the procedure of the Supreme Court."

Ministerial Visit.—The proposed Ministerial visit to Grafton and further north will be carried out despite the fact that the Premier's task of forming a government is still unfinished. The steamer Captain Cook will leave with the party this afternoon, and if the progress of events warrants it Mr. See will be one of the party.

The Freetrade Party of New South Wales.—The opinion is held by leading members of the freetrade party of New South Wales that the organisation of the party should be maintained at its full fighting strength until a genuine revenue tariff is secured. As to State politics the fighting organisation should take an interest in them to the extent to which they affected the fiscal question—that is, there need not be a rigid party organisation based on the fiscal question alone, but that the basis should be so elastic as to embrace in its range the care and consideration of fiscal matters.

Letter-boxes on the Electric Trams.—Since the change from the steam to the electric system on the Leichhardt line, representations have been made by business people to the Deputy Postmaster-General to have letter-boxes affixed to the electric cars, as was done on the steam trams. Alderman T. E. Colebrook, who interested himself in the matter, has been notified by the Deputy Postmaster-General that, owing to the difficulty and danger which would be involved in posting letters in and attempting to clear such boxes on the electric cars, and also in view of the fact that the existing boxes are not suitable for the cars, and that a greater number would be required, to clear which an additional number of officials would have to be provided, it had been definitely decided not to attach the posting-boxes to the electric trams.

The Naval Contingent.—The steamer Chingtu, of the China Navigation line, which has been chartered by the Imperial Government to convey the Australian naval contingent to Sydney, is now at Hongkong where the vessel is being rapidly fitted for the accommodation of the troops. The contingent is expected to embark this week, and the steamer will afterwards commence the homeward voyage. Being under charter, it is probable that the steamer will come direct to Sydney. The voyage from Hongkong to Sydney should therefore occupy about 19 days.

The Sailing of the R.M.S. Sierra.—When the Sierra left the Quay yesterday the company's wharf was crowded. The Oceanic, or A. and A. line of steamers, has increased in its popularity since the new fast ships were put on—the Sierra, Sonoma, and the Ventura. In addition to the names of the passengers published yesterday there left for San Francisco Mr. Joseph Tapley. Mr. H. C. Bell was seen away by his numerous friends, he having started on a tour round the world. The Sierra is the first steamer despatched under the auspices of the new agency of Messrs. Burns, Philp, and Company. The managing owner of the line, Mr. J. D. Spreckels, who was lately here, opened new offices opposite to the Sydney Exchange, and they are under the management of Mr. D. O. Ramsay. Mr. Cockcroft, the chief passenger agent of the Oceanic line, at present on a visit, speaking yesterday as to the business outlook under the new three-weekly service, said that a marked improvement had taken place, and before the expiration of the 10 years' contract with the United States Government, the Oceanic Company would have established a mail service that would quite equal the fastest between Australia and Europe.

Trades-union Demonstration.—A well-attended meeting of delegates from various trades-unions was held at the Trades Hall last night, to make preliminary arrangements for a labour demonstration in support of Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan's labour policy as State Minister for Works. The meeting was convened by the Stonemasons' Protective Society, and Mr. D. L. Cremen, the president of the society, occupied the chair. Several speakers addressed those present, and referred to the endeavours of Mr. O'Sullivan to advance the interests of labour. A motion in favour of holding a demonstration at an early date was carried unanimously, and a working committee to make the necessary arrangements, was elected.

National Art Gallery.—The attendance of the public at the National Art Gallery during Easter this year shows a very large increase on that of Easter last year. On Good Fridays the Gallery remains closed, so that the days enumerated are from Saturday to Monday, inclusive. The attendances during those days in Easter of last year were:—Saturday, 461; Easter Sunday, 1623; and Easter Monday, 1948. Total, 4032. This year the public patronage was represented by the following figures:—On Saturday, 994; Easter Sunday, 2250; and Easter Monday, 3603. Total, 6847, being an increase of 2815.

St. Stephen's Church, Willoughby.—On Easter Sunday a handsomely designed memorial pulpit was dedicated at St. Stephen's Church, Mowbray-road, Willoughby. The pulpit is the gift of Mr. W. H. Hoskings, and has been erected by him in memory of his daughter. To the memorial pulpit has been attached a beautiful brass lectern, subscribed for by the recent confirmation candidates.

Wills for the Week.—The amount paid in stamp duty on probates of wills and letters of administration for the week ended April 6 was £136 12s.

Death of Mr. William Gardiner.—Mr. Wm. Gardiner, governing director of Messrs. W. Gardiner and Co., Limited, of Sydney and London, died at his residence, Rochshaw, Merstham, Surrey, on the 6th instant, and the funeral will take place to-day. Deceased was born on April 19, 1831, at Gloucester, and was educated at a private school. In 1852 he and his brother, Mr. Samuel Gardiner, left England for Australia, and founded the firm of W. and S. Gardiner, which for many years carried on business in George-street, Sydney. Subsequently premises were secured in York-street, and Mr. W. Gardiner returned to London and superintended the operations of the firm in England. Deceased had been chairman of the Sydney Lloyd's in London, member of the Australasian section of the London Chamber of Commerce, of the Royal Institution, and the Royal Colonial Institute. The deceased gentleman leaves a widow, two sons, and four daughters, all residing in England. One son, Mr. Harold Gardiner, is managing director in London. Mr. W. H. Hosking is the managing director in Sydney.

The Zig Zag Railway Accident.—A departmental inquiry has been held into the circumstances of the derailment of an engine at the Top Points of the Lithgow Zig Zag on April 4, and the board of railway officers have arrived at the conclusion that the accident was brought about by the injudicious use of the brake, which resulted in the train getting beyond control.

Fatal Accident at a Foundry.—At Prince Alfred Hospital yesterday the City Coroner held an inquest into the circumstances connected with the death of an engineer named William West, aged 44 years, who died at the institution on Monday. Deceased was employed at Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins' engineering works, Watt-street. He was at work on a boiler on the 1st instant, when the steam forced the plate off, knocking him down and severely scalding him about the body and arms. He was removed to Prince Alfred Hospital, where he remained until he died. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Found Drowned.—The City Coroner (Mr. J. C. Woore) held an inquiry at the Lloyd Hotel yesterday respecting the death of a man named John M'Dermaid, whose body was found floating in the water at the foot of Margaret-street on Sunday. An open finding was returned.

Suicide at Surry Hills.—The circumstances connected with the death of a man named Patrick M'Namara, aged 44 years, which occurred at his residence, Foveaux-street, Surry Hills, on Monday, formed the subject of an inquiry by the City Coroner yesterday. The evidence showed that death was due to poisoning by carbolic acid, and a finding of suicide was returned.

The Tyndale Estate, Clarence River.—The auction sale by Richardson and Wrench, Limited, of the Tyndale Estate, Clarence River, is to be held on next Friday, the 12th instant, not as advertised, by a typographical mistake, on the 19th instant. The property will be offered for sale at Sydney.

Commencing on Monday next, the early morning train at present leaving Picton at 8.15, will be altered to leave Picton at 9.45 a.m., and will arrive in Sydney at 12.12 p.m. instead of at 10.40 a.m. In consequence of the later running of the Picton train, several alterations will also be made in the Camden tramway service. Particulars are advertised in this issue.

Excursion tickets are announced to be issued to Parkesvale to-day by the 2.10 p.m. train from Sydney. We are informed that there will be no General Gordon excursion trip on the Hawkesbury River to-day.

In connection with the Randwick races to-day the tramway authorities notify that a frequent service of trams will be run to the racecourse from Bent-street and the railway subway, commencing at 11 a.m. The first-class tram will leave Bridge-street at 12 noon. A frequent service will also be run to the Show Ground.

Some amendments in the regulations for Public Service examinations have been gazetted. Regulation 85, which sets forth the subjects for examination for admission to the clerical division, is amended by the substitution of "400" for "200" opposite the word dictation as its full mark value, and the words "page value together with the numbers thereunder "240, 120, 240, and 180" are omitted. In regulation 91, which deals with maximum marks and qualifications for admission, the second paragraph is amended so as to read "no candidate for admission to the clerical division shall be considered qualified for appointment unless he has been awarded a total of at least 1000 marks in the examination."

James Daley, a carpenter, aged 54, who was admitted to the Sydney Hospital on Wednesday last suffering from injuries to the spine, caused by falling down the hold of the steamer Omrah, died yesterday afternoon. An inquest will be held to-day.

A correspondent signing himself "A Resident of Marrickville," writes complaining of the number of boys whose ages range from 7 to 12 who infest the back streets and lanes, throw stones and generally annoy the residents. He suggests that a plain-clothes constable or one or two foot inspectors would effect an improvement if they visited the streets and lanes off the main thoroughfares.

The following is the Prince Alfred Hospital report for the week ended April 6:—Number of in-patients at last report, 230; since admitted, 68; discharged, 60; died, 10; remaining in hospital on April 7, 228. Number of out-patients treated during the week, 370; number of casualty cases treated but not admitted, 330; total, 700. There were 15 cases of typhoid in the wards.

The report of the Sydney Hospital for the week ended the 6th instant is as follows:—Admitted, 56; discharged, 46; died, 7; remaining, 206; outpatients treated but not admitted, 107; casualty cases treated but not admitted, 606; number of typhoid cases in hospital, 6.

FAREWELL TO MR. C. W. DARLEY.

About 50 officers of the Public Works Department, accompanied by Mr. O'Sullivan (Minister for Works), were conveyed to Chowder Bay yesterday in two of the Government launches, that spot being chosen as one where the gentlemen concerned might testify to their appreciation of the services of Mr. C. W. Darley, late Engineer-in-Chief for Public Works, during his connection with the department. Light refreshments were laid in the pavilion. Mr. O'Sullivan presided at the gathering. The Minister spoke at some length of the position which Mr. Darley is leaving the State to fill in England—that of adviser to the Government in all matters connected with ironwork contracts and advising engineer generally. He also referred to Mr. Darley's long and creditable connection with the department in this State, and called on Mr. A. B. Portus, superintending engineer in the dredge service, to make a presentation to Mr. Darley on behalf of the officers of the department. Mr. Portus, in so doing, bore testimony to Mr. Darley's sterling worth as a man, and said that to his efforts was mainly due the present excellent state of the port of Newcastle as the second port in New South Wales. Mr. Darley had also been successfully identified with the Sydney water supply scheme and with several other engineering works.

Mr. Joseph Davis, Under-Secretary for Public Works; Mr. T. W. Keele, Principal Engineer for Harbours and Rivers; and Mr. Leslie Ward, Principal Engineer for Sewerage, also spoke of Mr. Darley's services and his engineering capabilities.

The health of the guest was then drunk, and an illuminated address was presented to him.

Mr. Darley responded. He said the loyalty and industry of the officers of the department were things of which one might be proud, and spoke of the pioneering work which he had had to perform in connection with some of the works which had been carried out. He then asked the company to drink the health of the Minister, and referred in high terms to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. O'Sullivan to push on public works in New South Wales, and to his impartiality in dealing with all, whether they were citizens, workmen, or contractors.

Mr. O'Sullivan, in replying, said he considered the position of Minister for Public Works the highest to which one could aspire in the State except one. He had for many years felt that the carrying out of work such as roads, railways, and water conservation and river works would be for the advantage of the colony, and he hoped that the policy of development would be carried out until New South Wales was capable of supporting a population of six millions instead of a million and a half. It only required energy in the public men of the country to enable that goal to be attained.

GAINSBOROUGH'S "DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE."

RECOVERED BY THE POLICE.

LONDON, April 9.

The Scotland Yard authorities, in conjunction with an American detective Pinkerton, ascertained that Gainsborough's picture of Georgiana Duchess of Devonshire, which had been bought by Messrs. Agnew for £10,100, and which was stolen from their house in Bond-street on May 25, 1876, was concealed in a town in the Western States.

Mr. Morland Agnew visited Chicago and identified the picture, which had been recovered and taken to that city.

The picture was unhurt, and it has been brought to England.

The picture referred to in the cable was bought by Messrs. Agnew at the sale of the late Mr. Wynn Ellis's collection, for the astonishing sum of £10,100. It was cut out of its frame and stolen from Messrs. Agnew's gallery, No. 39B Bond-street, where for some weeks it had been on exhibition. It appeared from the account given by Brewer, the porter, that the picture was safe when the gallery was closed on the night of May 25, 1876, and the doors secured as usual. On the following morning, shortly before 7 o'clock, Brewer proceeded to open the shop door, and found that the bolts had been tampered with. On entering the Gainsborough room, however, he saw the frame in its accustomed position, but the picture gone. The stretcher, entirely denuded of its canvas, was resting carelessly in front of the frame, and the lower sash of the adjoining window looking into Old Bond-street half opened. Information was immediately given to Mr. Agnew, and the police were quickly on the spot, but no clue could be found towards the perpetrator of the theft or the fate of the picture. Messrs. Agnew offered a reward of £1000 for its recovery, and bills were printed and circulated with a photographic copy of Mr. John Scott's engraving. Mr. Wynn Ellis bought the picture for a very low price—£60 or guineas, it is said. It is a three-quarter length, painted in 1783 or 1784, of a lady who might rather be called a Duchess of Devonshire than the Duchess of Devonshire, whom Sir Joshua Reynolds portrayed about the same time. The Lady Elizabeth Foster, Gainsborough's subject in this and another picture, was a widow at the time when she was thus depicted, in walking dress, and it was not until a later period that she bore the title of Duchess of Devonshire.

Mr. Linden Bates, the harbour specialist, is making an examination of the different harbours on the south-east coast of this State, and will furnish a report to the Government.

A peculiar point has arisen in connection with the Public Service Provident Fund. The rules provide that those joining shall be members of the Public Service of South Australia. Lately many officers associated with the fund became federal servants. On joining they gave an irrevocable order, which empowered the Government to deduct from their monthly salaries the amount of the levies, and pay it to the secretary. Since the Commonwealth has taken over several departments the salaries of the officers of those departments have been paid by the federal authority. The secretary of the fund has written to Mr. Barton asking if the Federal Government will accept an irrevocable order. If so the difficulty will be removed.

An inquest was held to-day into the origin of the fire which partially destroyed the premises of Messrs. John Martin and Co., Limited, on Saturday. The jury agreed that there was no evidence to show how the fire originated.

FAREWELL TO THE N.S.W. MOUNTED RIFLES.

HIGH APPRECIATION BY COLONEL DE LISLE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

CARNARVON (Cape Colony), February 20.

Yesterday the New South Wales Mounted Rifles entered on their second year of active service in South Africa, and the anniversary of their landing at Capetown was celebrated last night by an open-air concert, at which there was an immense attendance of soldiers and civilians, the latter including many of the prominent townsmen, and the former being representatives of the Western Australians, the Durham, Essex, Wilts, Welsh, and Gordons, Loch's Horse, Irish Yeomanry, Kitchener's Fighting Scouts, and Capetown cyclists. Captain Bennett presided, Lieutenant-Colonel Knight not having yet rejoined the regiment, and among those present were Colonel De Lisle and the members of his staff, as well as nearly all the officers of De Lisle's and Colenbrander's forces. The space reserved for the purposes of the entertainment was brilliantly illuminated by means of lanterns, torches, and a huge bonfire, and the arrangements in every respect were excellently carried out. In the course of the proceedings Colonel De Lisle paid a high and memorable tribute of praise to the New South Wales men—praise all the more worthy of record because of its having been publicly given in the presence of representatives from many parts of the Empire. After explaining the origin and nature of the war, strongly emphasising its Imperial character, Colonel De Lisle proceeded:—

"Now, I want to say a few words to the men of New South Wales. I look upon you all as personal friends, and it is with very, very deep regret I realise that in the course of a few weeks I shall have to bid you farewell. You should be proud of New South Wales, which has sent to the assistance of the Empire more men than any other colony, and which is now sending out a further force, so that you may be relieved and enabled to return to the homes from which for more than 12 long, weary months you have been separated. I wish every soldier could be relieved after 12 months' service, but that cannot be. You, however, will not be here much longer, and however pleased I may be for your own sakes, I repeat your departure will mean a serious loss to me. When your comrades of the First Contingent left some three months ago it was a very severe wrench, but I found some consolation in the reflection that the Second Contingent was remaining. Now your time has almost come, for it is pretty certain that in the course of two or three weeks you will be leaving me; and it is with the greatest possible pleasure I take the opportunity of declaring in the presence, it may be said, of representatives of every part of the Empire, that to the bravery and high soldierly qualities of the New South Mounted Rifles I owe the position I occupy to-day. (Cheers and shouts of 'Bravo, New South.') I know it full well, and may God bless you one and all. You have done nobly, and I have no hesitation in asserting my belief that the New South Wales Mounted Rifles have done more hard work, and done it better, than any troops which have come to South Africa. (Cheers.) Australia has proved itself the home of the finest mounted infantry material in the world, and well may you be proud of your country. Well, too, may you be proud of yourselves, and I tell you again, men, I am sincerely proud of having been associated with you in this campaign, and I hope it may be my good fortune to have the command of those who are now on their way to relieve you. (Cheers.) When you return do sometimes think of your comrades in South Africa, for I assure you you will not soon be forgotten by us."

At the close of the Colonel's speech considerable enthusiasm was manifested, and cheers for "New South" were called for, and most heartily given by the 6th M.I. and other regiments. Captain Bennett thanked Colonel De Lisle for his appreciative remarks, observing that the New South Wales men, whose one fear on landing at Capetown a year ago was that they would not reach the front in time to actually share in the war, had been actuated throughout the campaign by a desire to do their duty under all circumstances.

The "Cape Times" of March 11 publishes some despatches of General Butler, in which he mentions, among others, as having performed special acts of bravery Lieutenant J. M. O'Brien and Lieutenant E. Johnston, residents of Sydney, who are serving with the South African Light Horse.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

THE DUCHESS OF CORNWALL AND YORK.

DESCRIPTION OF HER DRESSES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the dresses which will be worn by the Duchess of Cornwall and York during her visit to the colonies (says the "Morning Post") the richest and handsomest materials have been used, and wherever possible, by the express wish of her Royal Highness, only British or Irish manufactures have been employed. The dresses and trimmings in every case are necessarily black, but so varied are the different materials that there is no monotony of uniformity. A day gown in spotted crepon is made with a double skirt, and trimmed with lace worked in medallions intersecting each other, while a large collar of lisse embroidery in points has the ends almost reaching the waist. The bodice is laced with velvet over a soft chiffon front, the collar being transparent. The ceinture, slightly pointed in front, is of velvet. Another day gown of the Princess pattern is in panne cloth, with strappings, finished with others upright and graduated. The bodice is prettily laced at each side of the front and down the centre of the back over a full under bodice of crepe de chine tucked in a downward direction in clusters of five narrow tucks. There is a yoke of lace strapped, and narrow folds of crepe de chine, each one finished with a small fancy button, the under sleeve being made after the same fashion. To wear with this dress there is a small cloth coat with a short basque cut in curves. The revers and the cuffs are faced with fine silk embroidery on peau de soie, and the garment fastens with salambo buttons. Very pretty and simple is a poplinette costume. The skirt is finished with a deep flounce run with many rows of silk galon. The bodice is in lace, over which there is a short bolero falling in points and trimmed with fancy braid. The shaped yoke and collar are outlined with a line of narrow ribbon velvet. Grenadine composes another charming day dress, which recalls the period of 1830. The gracefully hanging skirt is trimmed with long lines of lace insertions, while the bodice, opening over a vest and collar of lisse crossed with folds of pleated batiste, is finished with triple collars of batiste, edged with insertion and lace. The long gathered undersleeves are of lace, and insertions arranged in graduated lines. A cashmere gown for morning wear is woven with lines of fancy gauze, which give an effect of open work. It is trimmed with a large lisse collar run with the narrowest ribbon, and bordered with silk embroidery. Over this are small revers of peau de soie, the vest and collar being striped in undulating lines of satin ribbon. The skirt is trimmed to correspond with here and there upright lines of narrow ribbon velvet. A black silk dress in stripes has the skirt trimmed with two long waving rows of Chantilly lace in a design of roses down the front and down the back, these being crossed with other encircling rows above the hem. Lace edges the long fronts of her Royal Highness's bodice, above which are narrow bands of stitched black taffetas, and it fastens with tiny straps of taffetas caught with small buttons over a vest of the silk prettily gathered in scallops. The sleeves are trimmed with lace. For the ceremony of the opening of the Commonwealth Parliament an extremely handsome dress has been made. It is of black brocaded gauze in the princess style, with a very long train and a border deeply woven in a design of flowers and leaves. The bodice has soft folds across the front and fastens under a jet ornament at the left side, and is finished with a yoke of net finely embroidered in jet, the high collar being transparent. The sleeves to the elbows, almost tight, fall a trifle loosely over closely fitting long under-sleeves of fine embroidery. The mantle to be worn on the same occasion is of black velvet bordered all round with Chantilly lace in a very beautiful floral design, this being let into the velvet, which is cut away under the lace, showing black lisse underneath. The mantle circular in shape fits well over the shoulders and is bordered all round with a deep gathered frill applique with lace. The yoke and high collar drawn into several gatherings are trimmed with lace. Long ends of chiffon relieved with white chiffon softly frilled fall from the neck, and the lining is of white satin. This is the only garment on which any white is seen. The evening dresses include one in moire mousseline embroidered with flower-shaped applications of Chantilly lace finely worked with jet beads and bugles. The bodice is finished at the shoulders with folds of jet-embroidered net, held in the centre with a jet ornament, a large black rose being fastened on the left shoulder. The black velvet ceinture like all those worn by the Princess is slightly pointed in front. A soft black satin dress has the skirt draped with a deep flounce of lace, caught at intervals with clusters of black cherries and headed with narrow garlands of the cherries. The bodice crossing in softest folds to the left side has the upper side arranged with jetted lace, and one of the short satin sleeves is trimmed with a bunch of cherries. A third evening dress of the richest brochart in bold design has the skirt, which opens down the front, edged with jet; each side over the under dress black net all softly ruched and frilled, there being a similar opening on each side rising only as high as the knee. The bodice, entirely of embroidered jet, has the upper part filled in with finely tucked tulle, the belt is of jet, with fringed ends, and the sleeves of tucked tulle end in a bow with a little jet falling on the arms. A dress of soft striped moire of princess shape crossing over to the left from the neck to the hem is bordered with a trimming of jet, which is continued round the edge of the skirt. The bodice is formed of folds of fine argentan lace crossed with folds of moire, three graduated bands of black velvet appearing to hold down the lace where they cross at the top. The edge of the lace is brought up the real opal border, making a dainty finish. Black gauze embroidered with large sprays of carnations composes yet another evening dress, which is finished with a flounce run with row on row of gauze ribbon, and edged with many tiny frills above. Others inserted underneath and [illegible] worked in ruches of gauze head the flounce, which is trimmed with bunches of black carnations resting here and there. A narrow front tablier of plain gauze is edged with jet trimming, a little pointed bolero of brocaded gauze falling over the bodice, which is trimmed with lisse worked in French knots, and is edged all round with ruchings; a band of the gauze passing under the arm is tied in a little bow on the outer side, while a band of black velvet forms the sleeve on the opposite side. The sixth gown of the 1830 period is in soft black moire, with a design of true lovers' knots. The front of the skirt opens over folds of chiffon, and is trimmed with medallions worked in twists of black satin, entirely bordering it with knots of black velvet ribbon sewn at each point where they intersect each other; the perfectly flat bertha of moire is cut out in scallops over black guipure; the full front of pleated black chiffon is caught with black velvet bows.

MEETING AT THE TOWN HALL.

The Mayor presided over a well-attended meeting of the Citizens' Royal Reception Committee in the Town Hall yesterday. Among those present were:—Messrs. J. St. V. Welch, W. Trotter, R. Teece, J. M. Sandy, A. P. Robinson, G. E. Russell-Jones, Alderman Mullins, Dr. Burton Ludlow, Messrs. B. J. Lukey, H. S. Levy, D'Arcy Irvine, H. W. Henderson, A. Forbes-Angus, G. E. Fairfax, Rev. E. T. The name of Mr. Marks was added to the executive on the motion of Alderman M'Elhone. It was resolved that from this date no further names should be added to the executive. Subscriptions to the amount of £359 19s were announced. A letter was read by the secretary from the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, covering a cheque for £21. It was resolved that the selection of Messrs. Hardy Brothers' design for the souvenir should be endorsed by the executive, the total cost not to exceed £400. Mr. Hennessy reported that Mdlle. Trebelli had been engaged to sing two songs at the State concert in the Town Hall. A plan of the revised line of route was exhibited so marked as to distinguish the portions which the Government Architect's department wished the citizens to decorate. It was decided that a general meeting of the citizens' committee should be held in about a fortnight's time, when matters in connection with the concert arrangements and the street decorations would be in a more advanced stage.

It was resolved that the finance committee should be requested to act with the organising secretary as an invitation committee, and that a sub-committee be appointed, consisting of Messrs. H. H. Brodrick (city architect), H. S. Thompson, W. P. Waters, E. L. Davis, J. M. Sandy, and the secretary, to supervise the decoration of the Town Hall for the State concert to be given in the presence of their Royal Highnesses.

THE ADELAIDE CITY COUNCIL.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

At a meeting of the City Council this afternoon the town clerk read the following letter which he had written to the Chief Secretary:—"I have the honour to refer to the approaching visit of the Duke and the Duchess of Cornwall and York, and to say that the council, though anxious and willing to pay their fair share of the expenses, are face to face with this position—their solicitors advise them that any expenditure in the proposed direction would be illegal, and that the members of the council voting for the expenditure are personally, jointly, and severally liable for the amount, and members of the council can be hardly expected to incur this liability. The council is willing, however, to expend a sum not exceeding £1000 if the Government undertakes to introduce and pass a bill covering that expenditure, and also undertakes that if the bill is not passed during the coming session to reimburse the council funds for the amount expended." The Cabinet is considering the matter.

THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

PROPOSED COALITION ABANDONED.

FREETRADERS REFUSE TO JOIN MR. SEE.

THE PREMIER MAKES ANOTHER BEGINNING.

The negotiations which for the past two weeks have been in progress between Mr. See, the Premier designate, and members of the direct Opposition and some of the occupants of the cross-benches, the object of which was to secure the formation of a coalition Ministry, have ended abortively. The desired freetraders have declined to join the new Government, and the cross-bench members will not accept office.

Mr. See, though naturally disappointed at the loss of so much valuable time, has still a strong faith in the possibilities of forming a good working Ministry, and he has begun the task of Cabinet-making afresh. To help him he has as remaining colleagues Mr. O'Sullivan and Mr. Perry for certain, and probably Mr. Crick and Mr. Wise. The latter, under other circumstances, were to have retired, but now it is believed they will continue in office. The one aspect of the whole business which strikes the political observer as unusual has been that the Opposition has not been approached as a party with an offer to the leader to join the Premier designate in the task of forming a Ministry. Had that course been followed the overtures might have resulted differently. What was done, however, was to "sound" individual members of the Opposition and from an early stage it seemed that Mr. Carruthers and Mr. Garland were agreeable to serve under Mr. See's banner, provided, of course, that the principles of the party to which they had so long given adhesion were fully conserved.

Yesterday Mr. Brunker, who also had been invited to enter the new Ministry, returned from West Maitland, where he had been staying. He first called on Mr. Reid, K.C., and then proceeding to the Colonial Secretary's office informed Mr. See that he could not accept office with him. That led to the final breach, for Mr. Garland, Mr. Carruthers, and Mr. Ashton, who also had been invited to form one of the coalition, all withdrew from the sphere of negotiation. It is understood that subsequently Mr. M'Gowen made his final statement to Mr. See. Previously, it is believed, he had stipulated that before he gave an answer one way or the other an offer ought to be made to a second member of the labour party, but in view of the developments he let it be definitely understood that he was not a prospective member of the Government.

Exactly what course Mr. See will now follow in the formation of a Government cannot be safely guessed at; Mr. See himself is extremely reticent on the subject. But it is believed that he will look solely within his own party for his colleagues, and rely on the country to justify his selection as soon after the departure from New South Wales of the Duke of Cornwall and York as an appeal to the country can be made. There is just a possibility that after the freetrade party has defined its views on the position of State politics an avenue for a legitimate coalition may be created, in which case the complexity of the situation would be dissipated, and Mr. See could make another and more profitable attempt at uniting both sides of the House in the Government.

MR. BRUNKER'S REFUSAL TO JOIN.

The attitude taken up Mr. J. N. Brunker was simple. He recognised as legitimate such coalitions as those of Sir James Martin with Sir Henry Parkes, and the latter with Sir John Robertson, because they were leaders of parties, and by coalescing brought together a reasonable fusion of political parties. He could not, however, tolerate the idea of leaving the party with which he had been associated for 20 years in order to assist in breaking it up altogether. Therefore he could not forsake the principles he had advocated so continuously for the profits of office.

MR. G. H. REID'S VIEWS.

APPLAUDS THE FAILURE OF NEGOTIATIONS.

OVERTURES TO INDIVIDUAL FREETRADERS CONDEMNED.

Mr. G. H. Reid, K.C., who is still leader of the State Parliamentary Opposition, was interviewed with reference to the situation last night. He said: "With reference to the intelligence that the negotiations had been broken off, I received the news with great satisfaction. I have a strong opinion that there should be no approach to the existing Government at all, unless it was with the full consent of the united party. Any offer of portfolios made to individual members of the Opposition on a basis which does not admit of consultation with the party or taking the party into the confidence of those invited to join should not be accepted. If any members of the Opposition had been actually induced to join the present Ministry I should have been very sorry, as I should think it a very serious mistake, both for the party and the individual concerned. There could be no pretence of a coalition under these circumstances, nor even of a combination. It would simply be a private arrangement between individual members of the Opposition and the remnant of the Government, and I do not think that such an alliance could commend itself to the country, nor do I think it would be productive of any good results to anyone. Whilst I hold those opinions very strongly I may say I did not interfere actively in the negotiations which were pending, as I felt my position to be one in which I could scarcely do so with propriety. There are some, however, who knew my opinions on the subject, and who knew them when first I heard the project."

MEETING OF THE OPPOSITION.

A meeting of members of the Opposition in the State Parliament has been convened by Mr. Reid for 7 o'clock to-morrow evening, at St. James's Hall, Phillip-street. Mr. Reid then proposes to tender his resignation as leader of the Opposition, so that the party may be enabled to elect a new leader.

A meeting of the executive of the Federal Freetrade and Executive Committee has been called for the same place at 8 o'clock.

PRESBYTERY OF SYDNEY.

The monthly meeting of the Presbytery of Sydney was held last evening in St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church, Phillip-street. The Rev. A. Miller (Acting Moderator) occupied the chair. There was a large attendance of ministers and elders. The Rev. John Ferguson said he desired to introduce to the Presbytery three gentlemen who were anxious to ask that a Welsh Church should be started in Sydney under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales. He thought that the Presbytery ought to lend all assistance to this movement. They had the national Churches of Scotland, England, and Ireland, and there was no reason why they should not have a national Church of Wales. There was every prospect of a successful Welsh cause being established in Sydney if the matter was taken up at once.

Messrs. W. H. Roberts, E. Jones, and D. Jones then addressed the Presbytery in support of the movement. These gentlemen assured the Presbytery that Wesleyans, Baptists, Presbyterians, and others coming from Wales were willing to join the proposed cause. Already several services had been held, at which there were large attendances, and there was every prospect of success.

The Rev. John Ferguson moved,—"That a committee with sessional powers be appointed to give effect to the desire of the Welsh residents." The motion was carried.

A call was presented from the Hunter-Baillie congregation, at Annandale, in favour of the Rev. J. Scott, of Inverell, as colleague and successor to the Rev. P. F. MacKenzie. Commissioners from the congregation were heard; the call was sustained and forwarded to the Presbytery of New England. The Revs. T. W. Dunn and P. F. MacKenzie, and Mr. A. Martin were appointed commissioners to prosecute the call.

The Rev. Dr. Clouston moved the following overture to the General Assembly of New South Wales:—"Whereas there are many Protestant churches working in Australia for the advancement of the kingdom of Christ, and whereas they are preaching practically the same gospel and the theological differences which have hitherto separated them have ceased to have a living interest, and they now differ from each other mainly on matters of church government and forms of worship which none of them regard as essential of the faith, and whereas of late years there has been a marked advance in the friendly relations of many of these churches so that interchange of pulpit services have been frequent to the mutual satisfaction and profit of the congregations concerned, and whereas in the country districts especially the pastoral work of the ministry could be more effectively overtaken if parishes were more compact and of less extent, and whereas it would be an immense gain to the Christian Church if a united front could be presented in this land to the forces of sin and unbelief, it is, therefore, humbly overtured by the Presbytery of Sydney to the venerable the General Assembly of New South Wales to overture the Presbyterian General Assembly of Australia to take these premises into consideration and appoint an influential committee to devise a scheme for the federation of as many as possible of the Protestant churches of Australia, with power to confer with the representatives of the other churches so as to promote closer fellowship and organised co-operation with a view to the ultimate formation of one grand Church of Australia."

The presbytery adopted the overture and appointed the Revs. Dr. Clouston, John Ferguson, and James Lamont commissioners to support the overture in the assembly.

SECOND EDITION

A SCENE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

NATIONALIST MEMBERS EJECTED.

A STRUGGLE IN THE CHAMBER.

DEFYING THE SPEAKER.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Newspaper files to hand by the English mail to-day contain a full report of the scene in the House of Commons on March 5, when 12 Irish members were named by the Speaker and forcibly removed from the chamber by a posse of policemen. The trouble arose through the Chairman of Committees (Mr. J. W. Lowther) endeavouring to follow the usual course of business in limiting debate on certain supply votes to one, leaving a full discussion on the details to a later stage, when each item comes up again in committee of supply. The vote on March 5 amounted to £17,000,000 £2,000,000 of which related to Irish affairs. The House discussed for seven hours the subject of education only, and at midnight Mr. Balfour moved the closure, which was carried by 220 to 117 votes. This was so warmly resented by members on the Nationalist benches and led to so much confusion that the Chairman decided to call in the Speaker and report the whole of the circumstances to him. The Speaker entered the House, amidst great excitement, and on the matter being reported to him, he "named" the following members: Mr. Crean, Mr. Flavin, Mr. Cullinan, Mr. P. White, Mr. M'Hugh, Mr. Lundon, Mr. W. Abraham (Cork), Mr. M'Govern, Mr. Doogan, Captain Donelan, and Mr. Gilhooly, and directed the 12 members to withdraw from the Chamber. He first called upon Mr. Flavin, a strongly-knit man about 6ft. 4in. in height, the tallest man in the House.

Mr. Flavin: You have named me, and I refuse to go.

The Speaker: The Sergeant-at-Arms will see that adequate force is used to compel the hon. member.

Mr. Flavin lay back in his seat for better resistance, and invited the Deputy Sergeant to bring all the men he could. The Deputy Sergeant sent for the three messengers to help him, and Mr. Crean who was sitting in the gangway resisted them. While the tussle was proceeding the Speaker proceeded to name members in order, beginning with Mr. Crean.

Mr. Crean: I will not leave the House. (Nationalist cheers.)

The Speaker: Then the hon. member must be removed.

The messengers who had ceased tackling Mr. Flavin, now seized Mr. Crean, who clung to his seat and defied them to take him out. A number of policemen who had been sent for now passed the bar of the House and went to the assistance of the messengers, and Mr. Crean was dragged out of the chamber. Cries of "Shame!" arose from the Irish benches, and cheers rang out from the Government side of the House, members standing on their seats to get a better sight of the row. The Speaker now called on Mr. M'Hugh to withdraw. "I refuse," said that gentleman. After some further wrangling, Mr. M'Hugh was forcibly carried by the police and deposited in the outer lobby, while Messrs. M'Govern, Doogan, and Captain Donelan were next removed, some of the members resisting upon being carried. As Captain Donelan was being thus disposed of the remainder of the members on the Nationalist benches struck up some of the words from "God Save Ireland." It was a terrible struggle to remove Mr. Crean, and he was carried out kicking and shouting, face downwards. Mr. M'Hugh struck out right and left before he could be disposed of. The House and seats of Conservatives and Liberals were crowded with members, most of them standing. Some loudly cheered the police, as first one and then another of the more violent Irishmen were hustled past the bar. Cries of "Boo," "Shame!" and "Gag" came from the Irish benches. The removal of Mr. Flavin, the tallest man in the Chamber, was left till nearly the last. Nine or ten policemen gathered round him. He planted himself deep down in his seat. Someone shouted "Nineteen bobbies to one Irishman—shame." One of his colleagues kept exclaiming "murderers," but Mr. Flavin blandly assured them that he would not give them too much trouble. After a deal of panting and struggling he was hoisted out of his place like a log, and policemen carried him down the gangway and along the floor of the House, while he delivered himself of a stanza of "God Save Ireland."

NEWCASTLE.

THE WICKHAM ELECTORATE.

A PLETHORA OF CANDIDATES.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Although the vacancy in the representation of the electorate of Wickham created by the appointment of Mr. J. L. Fegan to the position of Under-Secretary for Home Affairs in the Commonwealth Government was only announced yesterday, there are already several candidates in the field. The Rev. R. M. Bowles, seamen's chaplain at Carrington, has announced his candidature, and a strong committee has been formed to secure his return. Mr. Harry Evans, a prominent protectionist, is also in the field, and Mr. J. M. Shedden, council clerk of Wickham, is now making arrangements for his campaign. Mr. Eden George is also announced as a candidate. Mr. C. J. Royle, of Sydney, is regarded as a probable candidate; and Alderman J. Gilbert, of the City Council, will, it is understood, be nominated. The Labour League has decided to contest the seat, and it is thought likely that Mr. Hogan will be the selected nominee of that party.

A preliminary meeting of the friends and supporters of Mr. J. L. Fegan was held in the Wickham council-chambers to-night for the purpose of making arrangements for suitably recognising his past services to the electorate. The Mayor of Wickham (Alderman Welford) presided, and there was a representative gathering. It was resolved to present Mr. Fegan with an illuminated address. Arrangements were made for a public meeting of residents for Thursday evening next, when it is expected Mr. Fegan will deliver a farewell address to his late constituents.

CITY COUNCIL.

The fortnightly meeting of the City Council was held in the council-chambers to-night. The Mayor (Alderman W. J. Ellis) presided. The finance committee recommended that the lighting rate should be increased from 3d to 4d in the £. A heated discussion ensued. It was pointed out that within six years there had been a loss on the electric lighting system of over £1900 in maintenance alone, and irrespective of depreciation or of interest on the borrowed capital of £10,000 there had been a direct loss last year in lighting alone of over £300. It was stated that by increasing the rate by 1d an additional sum of £550 would be received, which would make the electric lighting system self-supporting. The finance committee estimated the revenue of the council for the current year, providing that the lighting rate was increased as proposed, at £17,966, whilst the expenditure was estimated at £18,080. There would it was pointed out still be a deficiency of £120 even if the lighting rate was increased. During the course of the discussion several aldermen pointed out that the appeal court had not been held, and that therefore the estimated revenue might not be fully realised. Attention was also called to the fact that there had been an actual deficiency on the operations of the past year of £1500. The council divided on the proposal to increase the lighting rate from 3d to 4d, with the result that voting was equal. The Mayor thereupon gave his casting vote against the increased rate. The council has therefore accepted an estimate of expenditure which exceeds the anticipated revenue by a sum of £680, notwithstanding the heavy deficiencies created during past years. Subsequently the general rate for the current year was fixed at 1s and the watering rate at 1½d.

A letter was received from the Railway Commissioners, through the Department of Justice, refusing an application for a site for a lock-up at Honeysuckle Point on the ground that the lands held by the Commissioners in that locality would be required for traffic arrangements in the near future. The council decided to again address the Minister for Justice on the subject. The secretary of the Public Works Committee telegraphed to the effect that the committee would again visit Newcastle within three weeks to conclude its inquiry with reference to the proposed system of sewerage for Newcastle and district, and stating that the committee would be glad if the public meeting of ratepayers, which the City Council had proposed to call, was held prior to the date of the visit of the committee.

THE CITY COURT.

At the City Court to-day a seaman named Joseph Bouchimol, 30, was fined £3, with the alternative of two months' imprisonment with hard labour in the Maitland Gaol, on a charge of having at Carrington stolen a macintosh-cape, a pair of opera-glasses, an accordeon, and an umbrella, of the total value of £3 10s, the property of John Richardson.

Louis Gunderson, 42, a seaman, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour on a charge of vagrancy.

Frank Fisher, a boy, 14 years of age, was charged under the provisions of the Industrial Schools Act, and was ordered to be placed on board the training ship Sobraon.

In the Summons Division, Sergeant Thompson proceeded against the proprietor of a certain oyster saloon for having committed a breach of the Early Closing Act by keeping his premises open after midnight. Defendant was fined 1s, with 5s 6d costs of court.

At a meeting of sympathisers with the Very Rev. Dr. O'Haran held in St. Mary's Schoolroom to-night arrangements were completed for a public meeting to be held in the Victoria Theatre on Tuesday next. Resolutions expressing sympathy with Dr. O'Haran in the ordeal through which he has just passed will be submitted and a subscription list will be opened.

The detachment of Submarine Miners from Sydney, now in barracks at Fort Scratchley, continued their course of training to-day.

Snapshots at the A.J.C. Race Meeting at Randwick, with photographs of the winners of the principal events, appear in this week's "Sydney Mail."—Advt.

THE COMMONWEALTH.

PREPARING FOR THE SESSION.

A CHAT WITH MR. BARTON.

BUSINESS TO BE SUBMITTED.

Mr. Barton, the Federal Premier, returned from his Easter vacation yesterday, and was hard at work at his office throughout the day. During the time he was at National Park he occupied most of his time in dealing with confidential papers.

He leaves for Melbourne this evening by the express. Ministers are likely to have an exceedingly busy time during the rest of the week, as it is expected that all will be present to attend Cabinet meetings. Mr. R. E. O'Connor, the Vice-President of the Executive Council, goes with Mr. Barton to-night; Sir William Lyne is in Melbourne already, and so are Mr. Kingston and Mr. Drake. The other members of the Administration—Sir George Turner and Mr. Deakin—reside there. It is Mr. O'Connor's intention to remain in Melbourne until next week in order that he may attend the Cabinet meetings. He will then return to Sydney, and visit Melbourne as occasion may arise. Asked yesterday as to any reason for visiting the sister city, he merely said he wished to attend the Cabinet meetings.

THE UNDER-SECRETARY FOR HOME AFFAIRS.

MR. BARTON ON THE APPOINTMENT.

In view of the remarks by Mr. Reid, leader of the Opposition in the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth, upon the appointment of Mr. J. L. Fegan as Under-Secretary for Home Affairs, Mr. Barton was asked yesterday whether he cared to make any remarks in reply to them as reported in yesterday's "Herald." He replied:—"I have nothing to say in answer to Mr. Reid, nor do I care to make any remarks except this—that the position of Mr. Fegan in public life, his experience, and his ability, do not seem to be factors which take away from Sir William Lyne's right to nominate Mr. Fegan as his Under-Secretary. For my own part I believe that results will show that Sir William Lyne was justified in his selection."

Mr. Barton was then asked whether there was not an implied understanding that prominent officials for the Commonwealth Government should be drawn from officials of the various States. To this he replied: "I have heard nothing of it. There is of course always a disposition on the part of every Government to make appointments from the Civil Service where no special occasion to do otherwise has arisen, but I have never learned that where a Minister believes that he can make an appointment for which he considers the prospective appointee particularly eligible he should be deprived of the opportunity of exercising his opinion. In fact such a course has been taken on several occasions in New South Wales. It is enough to mention only three—Mr. Geoffrey Eagar, Mr. William Owen, and Mr. Critchett Walker, C.M.G. I certainly have seen no reason why I should go so far as to attempt to veto the appointment."

MR. FEGAN'S APPOINTMENT CRITICISED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The appointment of Mr. Fegan as permanent Under-Secretary for Home Affairs to the Commonwealth is sharply criticised here. It is argued that the appointment is one of the most important in the gift of the Commonwealth, and can only be properly filled by an officer of long experience and proved capacity for affairs. Mr. Fegan, it is contended, is without experience in this respect, and his appointment is regarded here as solely due to the fact that he is a politician.

STANDING AND SESSIONAL ORDERS.

The Houses will have to pass Standing Orders and rules governing debates, and this work will probably be one of the first duties undertaken, unless it be agreed to carry on for a time under the Standing Orders of one of the provincial Parliaments. Mr. Blackmore, Clerk of the Senate, has been entrusted by the Commonwealth Premier with the task of drafting a set of Standing Orders for that Chamber, and Mr. Jenkins, of the Lower House, with those of the House of Representatives. Each set will be subject to consideration by the Government, and Mr. Barton expects that they will be laid before him in a few days.

THE MACHINERY BILLS.

"All these bills are drafted, or nearly so," said Mr. Barton yesterday. "They will be considered in Cabinet as soon as we have wiped off some important questions which are awaiting settlement. We shall have a sufficient programme of legislation to keep both the Houses busy for some time."

The machinery bills are to give legislative authority for the Government to administer the departments which have been taken over from the States—the Customs, Post Office, and Military. These departments are at present being administered under six different Acts of local Parliaments. In addition to these there will of course be bills dealing with the Public Service of the Commonwealth. There are some departments which can probably be most profitably worked partly as State and partly as Commonwealth departments—that of Quarantine, for instance. Such departments as these are at present mainly dealt with under tribunals appointed in the interests of the public health, and it is possible that the State officers will continue to have oversight of quarantine stations, receiving therefor a consideration from the central Government. All these matters will have to be dealt with during the first session.

THE ALIEN RACES QUESTION.

It is too early as yet to speak authoritatively on the order of business for the Parliamentary session. Mr Barton himself says that it will be for the consideration of the Cabinet which measures shall take priority, but legislation on the question of Asiatic races and South Sea Islanders will not be relegated to the end of the session. Speaking on the subject yesterday Mr. Barton said that it would probably be found convenient to bring in a separate measure dealing with each subject. The Asiatic races question is admitted to be the more important of the two, and though Ministers make no official pronouncement on the subject as yet, it is well understood that they are considering the practicability of following the lead of Natal in dealing with the subject—to exclude from the Commonwealth those members of coloured Asiatic races who are unable to pass a defined scholastic standard. As regards South Sea Islanders Mr. Barton has already announced on several occasions the lines on which he proposes to legislate. He will regard vested interests in Queensland, but will enact that pending the abandonment of the traffic in kanakas there shall be no greater number allowed in the State at one time than are now here. The number will have to diminish year by year, until all are sent away. It has also been announced by Mr. Barton from the public platform that the series of years during which the men of these races shall diminish in number shall be less than 10.

ELECTION NOTES.

Returns from the few remaining polling places in the State are coming in so slowly that it is highly improbable that any further official figures will be issued until the complete ones are finally made up and are ready for publication. This it is hoped will be in the course of a few days.

Our correspondent at Bourke telegraphed yesterday that the returning officer for the Darling electorate declared the poll yesterday. Mr. Spence polled 2206 votes, Dr. Bertram 1537, and Mr. Quinn 1221 votes. Mr. Spence was therefore declared elected. The returning officer also intimated that 128 informal votes had been registered.

From Brisbane it is stated that it has been ascertained up to the present that about 1600 informal votes were cast during the poll.

THE SOUTH AUSTRALIAN ELECTIONS.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The writs for the federal elections were returned to-day. The final totals, for the leading men for both Houses are as follows:—Senate: Sir J. H. Symon, 37,642; Mr. T. Playford, 36,892; Sir R. C. Baker, 35,233; Sir John Downer, 30,495; Mr. D. M. Charleston, 29,153; Mr. G. M'Gregor, 26,264; and Mr. A. A. Kirkpatrick 25620. House of Representatives: Mr. C. C. Kingston, 41,477; Sir Langdon Bonython, 39,434; Mr. P. M. Glynn, 37,450; Mr. F. W. Holder, 37,424; Mr. E. L. Batchelor, 31,614; Mr. V. L. Solomon, 27,040; Mr. A. Poynton, 25,864; and Mr. T. Price, 24,019.

The poll will be declared at the Town Hall at noon to-morrow.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

At the meeting of the Commonwealth Cabinet on Thursday a decision will be arrived at as to whether the regular meetings of the Commonwealth Parliament will be held at Parliament House, Bourke-street, or in specially prepared chambers in the Exhibition Building, the Victorian Government having placed either building at the disposal of the Federal Cabinet. Those who will be responsible for reporting the proceedings of Parliament earnestly hope that the Exhibition Building will be selected, for ample accommodation is provided there for pressmen. The press accommodation in the Bourke-street building is inadequate.

A proposal has been put forward that various State Governments should combine in providing funds for the erection of an arch to represent the Commonwealth in the scheme of street decorations. This matter will be further considered to-morrow.

Mr. Barton is expected to arrive to-morrow, when he will go fully into the plans drawn up by Mr. G. H. Jenkins for opening the Commonwealth Parliament. Mr. Barton will also confer with Mr. Watson, secretary of the Government celebrations committee, on the revised programme for the general festivities, which the Premier will afterwards submit to the Governor-General for his approval.

Mr. T. G. Watson, secretary of the Commonwealth celebrations committee, has received a reply from the Governor of Fiji expressing the regret of his Excellency that he will be unable to accept the invitation of the Government to be present at the opening of the Commonwealth Parliament. The date of the fire brigades' demonstration in connection with the Commonwealth festivities has not yet been definitely fixed. The latest proposal is that it be held on Tuesday, May 7; and that the fireworks display, originally fixed for May 7, be held on the following evening.

It is considered probable that Mr. George L. Allen, accountant of the Victorian Treasury, who has been assisting Sir George Turner since the establishment of the Commonwealth in the management of the affairs of the Federal Treasury, will this week be appointed Acting Under-Treasurer, and that later on he will become permanent head of the Federal Treasury. He has been an officer of the Victorian Treasury for many years, and during the last decade assisted successive Treasurers in the preparation of the annual Budget statement and in placing small loans on the local market.

Sir John and Lady Forrest, who are coming to Melbourne for the Commonwealth celebrations, arrive to-morrow by the Ortona from Fremantle.

NEW ZEALAND FEDERAL COMMISSION.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The members of the New Zealand Federal Commission arrived from Melbourne this morning, and were entertained at luncheon at Parliament House by local representatives of the Federal Parliament. The Commission assembled at Parliament House in the afternoon. The inquiry was conducted in camera. It is understood that Sir John Forrest and Mr. C. C. Kingston will give evidence. The Commission will leave for Sydney on Friday.

The Premier (Mr. Holder) was the only witness examined, and the commission rose at 5 p.m. The members will visit Gawler to-morrow, and inspect the iron factories and vineyards of that district.

TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE RATES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Mr. Drake, Federal Postmaster-General, is busily engaged in revising the Federal Postal Bill, drafted by the recent Inter-State Postal Conference. He is giving attention to the subject of uniform telegraph and telephone rates with a view to the possibility of including them in the machinery of the measure framed by the permanent heads, which will be laid before the Commonwealth legislature. Mr. Drake says he has not yet made up his mind to ask the Cabinet to vary the present rates, and before any alterations are proposed they will have to be submitted to the Ministry as a matter of course.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Railways has received a communication from Mr. Drake, Federal Postmaster-General, intimating that Colonel Besy, of Melbourne, and Mr. Mauger, M.H.R., intend visiting Queensland to investigate the sugar industry. They are expected to arrive in Brisbane towards the end of the week.

THE MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.

ALLEGED UNCONSTITUTIONAL PROCEDURE.

A largely-attended public meeting was held last evening at the Protestant Hall of citizens and members of Parliament favourable to the immediate meeting of Parliament. The gathering included many ladies, who evinced considerable interest in the proceedings. The chair was occupied by Mr. T. F. H. Mackenzie (Mayor of Strathfield), who was supported on the platform by Messrs. A. G. Ralston, R. D. Meagher, M.L.A., David Storey, M.L.A., J. Fitzpatrick, M.L.A., John Haynes, M.L.A., E. Terry, M.L.A., J. Longmuir (Mudgee), A. Thomas (Goulburn), W. H. Webb (Bathurst), and many others.

The chairman stated that the Mayor of Sydney was unable to be present, therefore he had been requested to preside. He read several letters of apology from other gentlemen unable to be present, after which he explained why the meeting had been called.

Mr. A. G. Ralston moved the first resolution,—"That in the opinion of this meeting, Parliament should forthwith be called together for the constitutional purpose of securing, prior to the general elections, an official statement as to the present condition of the finances of this State." He said they were all agreed that for upwards of four months they had experienced a form of government never before witnessed. The position was absolutely unconstitutional. Some time ago Sir William Lyne accepted an important federal position, and instead of at once resigning the premiership of the State he continued to hold the two offices. This he should not have done without calling Parliament together, for the purpose of giving its approval or otherwise to the numerous important acts he continued to carry out. The position had been adversely commented upon in all quarters, and he ventured to say that under their Constitution no one had a right to do as he (Sir William Lyne) had done without the sanction of the people. (Applause.) Now they found Sir William Lyne proposing to hand over to another gentleman the position he had occupied. They were present that night to ask Mr. J. See to take a proper view of the constitutional position, and call Parliament together to see if it approved of the action of Sir William Lyne or not. He was confident that Parliament would severely criticise the actions of the late Premier. During the last few months important resumptions had been made—he referred to the Rocks area and the wharfs resumed by the late Government—and the financial matters in regard to such resumptions were in a most unsatisfactory state. He might go further, and say that the affairs of the State were in a condition of chaos. (Applause.) When such questions as he had referred to arose they should be referred to the representatives of the people, and discussed at the earliest possible moment. The fact was that Sir William Lyne feared the result had he adopted the only constitutional course, and called Parliament together. (Applause.) Had he done so the late Premier would have been sent about his business. Parliament was entitled to know the true state of the finances of the country, and for that purpose alone it should be called together at once, and not, as appeared to be the intention of Mr. See, allowed to exist unconstitutionally until it was dissolved. There were other reasons for calling the House together—to pass a few necessary measures, notably a bill to reduce the number of members in the State Parliament. (Applause.) He would certainly like to see such a measure passed before the general elections. In regard to the finances of the State they were told that all was flourishing, yet it was a fact that people having business with the Government were unable to get their accounts settled. They were therefore forced to the conclusion that either the statements made were false as to the flourishing condition of the finances, or that money had been squandered, or some leakage had occurred which they could not understand. The only way to thoroughly sift the question was for members to insist on a proper explanation. Speaking on the question of the important appointments made by the late Premier, he said he considered such appointments were made by a dead Government. Those appointments to the Harbour Trust and Resumption Board were made by a man who was practically dead. He concluded by saying that it was their duty to see that Parliament had an opportunity of ratifying those appointments or otherwise. (Applause.)

Mr. John Haynes seconded the resolution. He said he hoped the meeting would show the gentlemen in Macquarie-street, that they were still the servants of the people. What they first required was a true statement of the finances of the State, and an opportunity of seeing whether the money voted by Parliament had been legitimately spent. They required to know the worst or the best. Parliament had been in recess since Christmas, and it was now proposed that members should continue to draw their salaries until Parliament expired. He would certainly never be found supporting the Government behind the backs of the people. (Applause.) There were a number of other matters requiring attention and investigation. In his opinion all appointments and administrative acts should be open to criticism. He referred in scathing terms to the appointment of Mr. Fegan to a position and office carrying with it a salary of £1000 a year. He said that gentleman was not fit for the position he had been selected to fill. Never had so surprising an announcement been made in the public press as that three leading freetrade members were in consultation with the Government with a view to their inclusion in a coalition Government. If any of the gentlemen of the freetrade party he had mentioned joined Mr. See he was confident that when they went before the people they would be thrown out.

The chairman put the motion to the meeting, and it was carried unanimously.

Mr. W. H. Webb (Bathurst) proposed the second resolution—"That the representatives of city and country districts here present heartily endorse the action of Mr. John Haynes, M.L.A., in convening the present meeting, and pledge themselves to assist in such future work of organisation as may be necessary to give effect to the previous resolution." In doing so he said they were all of opinion the Government for the past two years had played down very low, and had sailed on under freetrade principles even while protecting they were protectionists. In his opinion the country required no coalition, but was able to fight the battle of freetrade without them. He referred to the proposal to reduce the number of members in the State Parliament, and said he thought a House of 60 members was all that was required to carry on the work of the State. He was sure the country electorates would support such a movement.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. A. Thomas (Goulburn) and supported by Mr. David Storey, who said that the true object of the meeting was to get the doors of Parliament open to see how the public funds had been expended. Since the first day of the year a merry game had been going on with the public purse. He thought Ministers had neglected their duty, and that large sums of money had been recklessly expended in the plague area. Parliament should without doubt meet and discuss the unauthorised expenditure since January 1. Sir William Lyne and his Government had expended £90,000 over the Commonwealth celebrations, a great deal of it going in champagne, imbibed by people well able to pay for it. The Government was but a fragment of a Government, and if Mr. See did the right thing he would call Parliament together. The House might enter into an honourable contract not to move a vote of censure until the Duke of Cornwall and York had arrived and distributed his gifts. (Laughter.) He complained that by bad financial management the country had lost a sum of £40,000 in connection with the floating of a loan. He concluded by saying that he did not think any public man could so far degrade himself and abandon his political principles as to enter into a coalition with the enemies of his party. (Cheers.)

Mr. E. Terry, M.L.A., also supported the resolution, which upon being put to the meeting was carried unanimously.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman and three cheers for the cause of New South Wales.

SYMPATHY WITH DR. O'HARAN.

GREAT MEETING AT THE TOWN HALL.

OVATION TO DR. O'HARAN'S COUNSEL.

A FUND TO PAY LAW COSTS.

OVER £1900 SUBSCRIBED

A very large meeting, mainly composed of Roman Catholics, taxed the accommodation of the Town Hall last night to its utmost. There must have been between 4000 and 5000 persons in the main hall, whilst great overflow gatherings took place elsewhere. The chair was occupied in the hall by Mr. R. E. O'Connor, K.C., a member of the Federal Ministry. Amongst the many leading citizens present were Mr. J. H. Want, K.C., counsel for Dr. O'Haran during the late trial, Judge Heydon, Messrs. E. W. O'Sullivan, State Minister for Works, T. M. Slattery, M.L.C., solicitor for Dr. O'Haran, P. E. Quinn, M.L.A., W. J. Spruson, M.L.A., F. Clarke, M.H.R., Sir W. P. Manning, J. T. Toohey, M.L.C., J. Hughes, M.L.C., R. D. Meagher, M.L.A., D. O'Connor, M.L.A., A. W. Nathan, A. G. Ralston (one of Dr. O'Haran's counsel), T. Curran, F. B. Freehill, Monsignor O'Brien, Dean Healy, Dean Slattery, the Very Rev. P. Le Rennetel, and Dr. MacCarthy. More than half of those in the hall were ladies.

The chairman said he was proud to preside at such a demonstration of the feelings of the Roman Catholic community which had been pent up for months. (Cheers.) No praise could be too high for the restraint that had been exhibited under the very trying circumstances of the two trials. (Loud cheers.) A great deal of business had to be done by the meeting. Three resolutions would be submitted, but the speakers would be limited to the mover and seconder in each case, with an exception which he thought they would consider allowable. (Cries of "Jack Want," and cheers.) During the meeting an opportunity would be given persons who wished to contribute to the fund to recoup Dr. O'Haran to do so. Persons duly authorised by the committee would move amongst the audience to whom contributions could be given. Before concluding he would read a letter from the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth sympathising with Dr. O'Haran—(cheers)—which was as follows:—"National Park, April 8, 1901. My Dear O'Connor,—I understand you are to preside at a meeting to be held at the Town Hall to-morrow to express sympathy with Dr. O'Haran in view of the ordeal which he has passed through in two recent trials. I am unable to be present, but I hope you will be the bearer of my congratulations to Dr. O'Haran on his vindication. He has no doubt the sympathy of a large majority of the unprejudiced citizens who throughout have kept themselves informed of the proceedings in the case. As one of these I have already expressed to Dr. O'Haran, through the medium of a friend, my agreement with the verdict of the jury. But as the meeting is one of active sympathy I do not wish to have it supposed that I stop at cold concurrence with the verdict. That concurrence was a mere conclusion of reason; but I have a warmer feeling of welcome for the exoneration of a man whose duties are of the gravest, and whose responsibilities are of the heaviest, from charges which I am bound in honesty to say that I never saw reason to believe. Always yours sincerely, Edmund Barton." (Prolonged cheers.)

The Hon. E. W. O'Sullivan (Minister for Works) moved,—"That the sympathy of this meeting of citizens of Sydney be conveyed to the Very Rev. Dr. O'Haran in the mental anguish he has suffered pending the vindication of his innocence of the diabolical charges made against him in recent legal proceedings; and, further, that the congratulations of this meeting be expressed to him upon the satisfactory result of the recent trial before Mr. Justice Owen and a mixed jury of his fellow-citizens." He said that the meeting with the overflow which was being held in the catacombs below was a splendid vindication not only of the Catholics of N.S.W. but of all tolerant and liberal-minded men in the country in the innocence of Dr. O'Haran. (Cheers.) A searching inquiry had been held into what the resolution properly called diabolical charges levelled against one of the Church's highest dignitaries. That inquiry showed that those statements had been based upon falsehood. (Loud cheers.) Therefore it was right that all tolerant and liberal-minded men and women, no matter to what persuasion they belonged, should assemble to show their utter detestation of the charges and their jubilation at the splendid vindication of Dr. O'Haran. (Cheers.) Their religion taught them to live in bonds of charity with all mankind, and he trusted that that sentiment actuated every liberal-minded person outside their community as he was certain it did those within its fold. When they remembered the scandalous character of the charges, the position of Dr. O'Haran as a dignitary of the Church, and that the history of civilisation and Christianity was associated with their Church, they could well rejoice in overwhelming numbers. As pointed out by the eminent King's counsel at the trial, there was more than Dr. O'Haran on trial; there was the great principle underlying trial by jury if 12 citizens of various denominations could not agree upon a verdict of acquittal in the face of the evidence brought forward in rebuttal of those charges. (Loud cheers.) The trial was not only a vindication of Dr. O'Haran, but a magnificent triumph of the principle of trial by jury. Say what they may about the abuse of the jury system, but when a man was placed on trial before 12 of his peers he had a chance of getting a verdict if he was innocent. When the excitement and bitterness aroused by the trial had passed there was not a man of whatever persuasion who would not rejoice that these diabolical charges had been disproved. (Loud cheers.) Holding that view, he had no hesitation in submitting the resolution, and asked for a triumphant expression of opinion whether they were in sympathy with Dr. O'Haran. (Prolonged cheers.)

The Hon. J. Hughes, M.L.C., prefaced his remarks in seconding the resolution by reading telegrams from Narrabri, Lithgow, Tumut, and Picton expressing sympathy with the meeting. (Cheers.) He said he could only re-echo the words of the chairman in testifying to the pleasure it afforded him to stand before the largest gathering which had ever been held in the hall of the citizens of Sydney on such an occasion. They recognised that Dr. O'Haran, in fighting this fight in the law courts, had been fighting their fight. If any vindication were wanted of Dr. O'Haran, the present meeting was the best reply to Dr. O'Haran's traducers. Dr. O'Haran had been one of the hardest workers and most devoted in the service of the Church to which Roman Catholics were proud to belong. (Hear, hear.) People had spoken of Dr. O'Haran as being worth plenty of money, but he believed if Dr. O'Haran died that night he would not leave a penny-piece for payment of his burial. That was because every penny Dr. O'Haran had received from the Roman Catholics of Sydney had been spent in their cause and for the benefit of the Church in Sydney. To charge Dr. O'Haran, of all men in the community, with desecrating that fane that was so dear to his heart was the most ludicrous accusation which could possibly be levelled against Dr. O'Haran. (Hear, hear.) He hoped no one would leave the hall without contributing to the expenses to which Dr. O'Haran had been put in fighting the fight of the Roman Catholics for them. (Cheers.) He had much pleasure in seconding the resolution.

Mr. J. H. Want, K.C., on rising to speak was greeted with enthusiastic applause from the entire meeting, every man and woman standing, cheering, and gesticulating. He said if he ever needed any compensation for the humble efforts which he had put forth for the protection of the Roman Catholic community and Dr. O'Haran he had received it in the magnificent reception which had just been given to him. (Cheers.) He would not deny that during the many weeks in which he and Dr. O'Haran had been engaged in fighting the charge made against Dr. O'Haran he (Mr. Want) had felt anxiety. He thought he might claim to have the distinguished privilege of Dr. O'Haran's friendship. (Cheers.) It was a fearful onus which was thrown upon his shoulders. He felt first of all that he was fighting for the honour and reputation of a brave and honest gentleman—(cheers)—but he also felt he was defending the good name of the Roman Catholics of the city, amongst whom he was glad to say, he numbered some of his dearest and best personal friends. He felt, also, there was something equally important to be considered, and that was the vindication of the administration of justice and the welfare of every human being. (Cheers.) The magnificent victory which was won was fraught with a great amount of consolation. Whilst he believed that through all that occurred Dr. O'Haran had made still more friends amongst the Roman Catholic community, he wanted the Roman Catholics never to forget, when they were so generous towards him, that there had been a gentleman associated with him in the defence of Dr. O'Haran whose energy had never flagged, whose industry had never failed, whose loyalty had never left him for a moment, and that man was Thomas Michael Slattery. (Cheers.) After the last trial there were a few busybodies who took it into their heads to attend to matters that did not belong to them, but from start to finish "Tom was doing splendidly." (Laughter and applause.) He was very glad indeed that he had been allowed an opportunity of saying a few words to the meeting, because he did not suppose there was any man in Australia who could say so truthfully as he did, with the knowledge that he (Mr. Want) had, "I know absolutely that Dr. O'Haran is entirely innocent of this charge." (Great cheering.) All through the terrible ordeal which Dr. O'Haran had undergone he (Mr. Want) could say Dr. O'Haran met what he had to meet unflinchingly. Dr. O'Haran had proved to be the personification of splendid courage and magnificent determination. He (Mr. Want) would add that all through the trial he had facts and documents in his possession which, if they had been admissible in courts of justice, would have stood there as vindications of themselves of Dr. O'Haran's innocence. Unfortunately the laws of evidence kept them from being admitted, and fortunately they were not now wanted. A jury of 12 of Dr. O'Haran's fellowcitizens of all classes had shown that the fountains of justice were still pure in New South Wales. That jury had vindicated the honour of a good man, and had placed on the scroll of fame amongst the record of heroes the name of Denis Francis O'Haran. (Great cheering.)

The resolution was carried with immense enthusiasm.

Mr. W. P. Crick, M.L.A., said it must indeed be a matter of great consequence that could draw within the portals of the hall an audience so vast after the surfeit of talk that the people of Sydney had suffered during the federal election canvass. If ever a larger meeting assembled in the building most of those who were in excess of the number present must have hung on by their eyebrows to the skylights. It was seldom that he betrayed his presence before a Sydney audience, but on the present occasion he thought, irrespective of religious belief, everyone who had the slightest regard for fair play should have no hesitation in expressing his opinion. Dr. O'Haran had spent one-third of his life in Sydney, and he was known not only amongst his co-religionists but amongst people of other denominations. Roman Catholics and others had been startled by the charge which had been hurled against Dr. O'Haran. That charge involved the dignity of the Roman Catholic Church, and Roman Catholics felt that it must be probed to the very bottom for the sake of the Church. To those who did not belong to the Roman Catholic Church and who had thought that something might be done to hush up the matter, he would say that no Roman Catholic who understood his religion had any desire to hush it up. No one would be more severe on a member of the clergy who was guilty of what had been ascribed to Dr. O'Haran than the Roman Catholics themselves would be. (Hear, hear.) Whilst the floggings which were received by the early pioneers of certain parts of Australia left a smart which was of ephemeral duration, and their bodies healed quickly afterwards, the pain and torment of Dr. O'Haran, had he been found guilty of the charge which was made against him, would have been continued on this side of the grave; and he would have been awarded God knew what punishment on the other side of it. Roman Catholic mothers and sisters and daughters had to go and lay bare their lives in the confessional to their clergy. What man would desire to see his wife or daughter or any other woman go to confession to a clergyman who he was satisfied was guilty of what had been charged to Dr. O'Haran? It was utter rot, on the face of it, then, to suggest that there would be any desire on the part of Roman Catholics to shield such a man. On the first trial the jury was set to try the most complicated questions regarding the doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church. That jury was stunned with questions which had exercised the thoughts of the best and most comprehensive brains, with the consequence that its members were unable to agree. The chairman had talked about the wonderful way in which the Roman Catholic population had curbed their passions when insults had been hurled against their religion at the trial. In his opinion, that was a great testimony to their power of self-restraint. When the case was before the public a second time the whole matter had become, as Judge Owen had said, a question of national importance. Thousands of Dr. O'Haran's co-religionists in all parts of the country and elsewhere watched the progress of the second trial. After the first two or three days' evidence level-minded men turned sick with disgust at the testimony which was given. The jury included a couple of Roman Catholics, a couple of the chosen race, and eight others. It was drawn from all ranks of the community. During the hours in which the jury was separated the individuals composing the jury were able to mix with fellow-citizens, and could, if they thought fit, discuss with them the merits of the case; but after a trial which extended into the third week, to the eternal credit of that jury and to the jury system, which was regarded as the bulwark of the palladium of British liberty, he was informed at the end of two hours' consideration it unanimously without the slightest qualification expressed its opinion of the petitioner and those connected with him. The eulogy passed on Dr. O'Haran by Mr. Want he re-echoed. Dr. O'Haran knew what he had to face, and met it. Many men in public and social life had failed in meeting scandalous charges. Take the case of a public man who might be innocent, but in the interest of his family he might put his hand into his pocket and buy off a blackmailer. (Cheers.) The more touchy the position of a public man the more likely was he to be the object of persecution. Dr. O'Haran must have known that before his vindication was accomplished he would have to wade through oceans of mental anguish, but he not only fought his own battle but that of his co-religionists, his Church, and his God. (Loud cheers.) It did seem as if the power of some hand greater than human sometimes interfered in their mundane affairs, and so prevented the first jury agreeing whether the Council of Trent was right or expressing an opinion as to the infallibility of the Pope. (Laughter and cheers.) And that trial having been abortive, it left Dr. O'Haran time to go properly into the camp of the enemy—(cheers)—with the result that it must be admitted in all fair play that Dr. O'Haran had established his innocence of the charges made against him. (Cheers.) And attached to the verdict of the jury, who represented the country, they had the Judge, who sought no man's favour, and feared no man's frown. Mr. Justice Owen—(cheers)—saying with all the responsibilities of his high judicial office that he endorsed the verdict of the jury. (Loud and prolonged cheers.) Dr. O'Haran had gone through oceans of trouble and sorrow, but at last he had landed on shores that proclaimed him a hospitable welcome. If he could see that vast audience and its unlimited enthusiasm it would in some measure compensate him. If it should ever be his (Mr. Crick's) lot to be a respondent—(laughter and cheers)—he trusted he would come through it as well. (Cheers.) But the man who had borne his part so well should not be money out of pocket in this transaction. (Cheers.) There were plenty of people in the community able to assist, and he trusted they would do so. Poor people who could not afford to give had given what was more valuable to Dr. O'Haran than money, namely, one of the best testimonials of their sympathy ever given to a man in the colony. (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

Sir William Manning, in seconding the resolution, said he hoped a most powerful response would be made when they were asked to subscribe to the expense of this suit so that a monument would be erected by the fact that not one penny of expenses had fallen upon the reverend gentleman who had been assailed, or upon Cardinal Moran, who gave Dr. O'Haran carte blanche to draw upon him. (Loud cheers.) They had the deepest sympathy with Cardinal Moran in the great trial he had passed through as a Prince of the Church. The effect of that great meeting would be felt throughout Australia, because they had asserted their right as citizens to speak. He did not want to consider the matter from a religious standpoint alone, but as citizens, when their Church was assailed. He would like their conduct in the matter to be extremely temperate, especially when speaking about this case. If they had their rights, let others have their rights also; but they must ask their fellow citizens to have regard to their public and commercial lives. Did anyone in their hearts really believe the scandalous charges made? If the question was put in reason and moderation and with prudence and judgment they would have the great mass of the community with them. (Cheers.) He asked every one to subscribe something as a protest against the charges, and as an expression of entire sympathy of the Roman Catholics of the community with Dr. O'Haran. (Loud cheers.) He moved,—"That an address be presented to the Very Rev. Dr. O'Haran conveying the sense of the foregoing resolution, and that the address be accompanied by such contributions as may be received by the hon. treasurers for the purpose of defraying the costs incurred in his defence." (Prolonged cheers.)

Mr. Quinn, M.L.A., said wherever he had been lately throughout the country the opinion he had heard expressed as to the case against Dr. O'Haran was such that its triumphant termination in his favour he was persuaded would be a matter for rejoicing. That feeling was not held alone by people of the Roman Catholic faith, but by many connected with other denominations. (Hear, hear.)

The resolution was carried with acclamation.

Mr. F. B. Freehill moved,—"That the Roman Catholic citizens repudiate with abhorrence the infamous doctrine attributed to them that perjury is justifiable under any circumstances whatsoever." He said he hoped that the same response would be made in New South Wales as was made in England 50 years ago, when an appeal was made to compensate Cardinal Newman, then an Anglican clergyman, in a case which was brought against him in the law courts. To the accusers who had worked so industriously for many months past in the endeavour to destroy the Roman Catholic Church he would point out that the way to do it was to induce the sacred congregation to adopt the abominable doctrine that was charged against the Church, namely, that perjury was justifiable under certain circumstances. If that could be done there would be an end of the Roman Catholic Church for ever. The sanctity of the oath was beyond question. Even now throughout the British Empire there were 60 different forms of oath administered in the courts. He hoped that no citizen would enter the temple of justice with any feeling of prejudice towards him on account of his religion, whatever it might be. (Cheers.)

Mr. Spruson, M.L.A., asked that the vote that was about to be given should be an answer by the Roman Catholic laity to the charge that the Church approved of perjury in certain cases, the answer being that the laity denied and repudiated the doctrine attributed to the Church.

Mr. T. M. Slattery said that from the commencement of the prosecution he had not the slightest anxiety that Dr. O'Haran would come out all right. (Cheers.) He ventured to say before all the lawyers of Australia that there had never been a more perfect case prepared for a client. (Cheers.) All good men and women of whatever creed, he thought, would join in congratulating the Cardinal Archbishop and Dr. O'Haran, and the whole of the Roman Catholic clergy, on the triumphant issue of the last trial. (Cheers.) Before sitting down he wished to recognise the great work done in favour of Dr. O'Haran by Messrs. Want and Ralston.

Mr. A. G. Ralston said that the disagreement in the first trial had been a blessing in disguise. They had now the triumph of a unanimous verdict, in which the presiding Judge agreed.

The resolution was carried with enthusiasm.

The Chairman announced that the collection during the evening, with amounts collected during the past day or two, had amounted to a little over £1900. This included £500 subscribed by the priests of the archdiocese of Sydney. (Cheers.) Successful meetings had also been held in the country, and substantial sums subscribed.

On the motion of Mr. F. Clarke, M.H.R., a hearty vote of thanks was carried to the chairman.

Mr. O'Connor having suitably responded cheers were given for Dr. O'Haran, and the meeting closed.

OVERFLOW MEETING IN THE BASEMENT HALL.

When it was seen that the immense gathering would overtax the holding capacity of the Town Hall, the committee in charge of the meeting hurriedly arranged for an overflow meeting to be held in the basement. This hall was opened at 7.45. Immediately the place began to fill rapidly. The great crush around the doors of the upper hall, almost stopping all ingress to the building, became relieved as the people found their way to the second meeting. By 8 o'clock there were upwards of 600 persons downstairs. The Mayor (Dr. Graham) temporarily occupied the chair, and announced that the proceedings would be similar in every respect to those at the great meeting which was proceeding above. Mr. P. E. Quinn, M.L.A., was the first speaker. On rising he was greeted with cheers. In the course of his remarks he said it was not only the people of Sydney who were rejoicing with Dr. O'Haran, but the people throughout Australia. The great overshadowing case had been watched with deep interest, but the cloud had passed away, happily for the cause of truth and justice. There were many people whose sympathy they could not expect to gain, because they were prejudiced against prejudice they could war in vain. The case had caused an ecclesiastic great suffering and mental anguish, but his courage, born in the knowledge of his own innocence, had brought him out of the meshes of conspiracy in a triumphant manner. (Cheers). He moved the first resolution, which was couched in identical terms to that submitted at the large meeting.

Mr. Freehill seconded the resolution, and dealt principally with Dr. O'Haran's honourable emergence from the position in which he had been placed.

Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, M.L.A., moved the second resolution. He was most cordially received. After referring to the enormous gatherings both inside and outside the Town Hall, which he said was evidence of the devotion—the very shamrock of devotion—of the people to justice, he stated that every unbiassed man and woman must rejoice at the verdict that had been given. The verdict had not only relieved the tremendous strain on Dr. O'Haran, but had swept away the slough that had been heaped upon the Church itself. The case had also been a great triumph for the principle of trial by jury. People throughout the world, he ventured to say, would have lost faith in the jury for justice and fair play had it failed to do its duty at the second trial. But on that occasion the true attributes of the British character came uppermost, and they secured such a verdict from a mixed jury as left no possible doubt as to the innocence of Dr. O'Haran. Mr. D. O'Connor moved the third resolution, which Mr. Crick seconded. As Mr. Crick stepped forward he was enthusiastically cheered, and it was a few minutes before he could make himself heard. His remarks were brief, to the point, and were frequently applauded. Mr. John Hughes, who acted as chairman for the latter half of the meeting, followed with a few remarks, after which the meeting closed with cheers for Dr. O'Haran.

CONGRATULATIONS TO DR. O'HARAN.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

A public meeting was held in the Town Hall tonight to consider the advisability of extending congratulations to Dr. O'Haran. There was a good attendance. The Hon. John Meagher, M.L.C., occupied the chair. There were also present the Very Rev. J. Byrne, the Rev. J. O'Dowd, Messrs. Meagher, F. B. Kenny, G. E. Machattie, J. H. M'Intosh, J. Cruise, and Drs. Edmunds Brooke-Moore and W. P. Basset. The following resolution was passed,—"That this meeting desires to convey its heartiest congratulations to the Very Rev. Dr. O'Haran on his victory in the recent divorce proceedings, the result of which completely proved his innocence of the charges brought against him."

A subscription list was opened and £70 was collected in the room. The Hon. J. Meagher subscribed 10 guineas and Father Dunne 3 guineas.

LAUNCESTON, Tuesday.

At a meeting of Roman Catholics sympathy was expressed with Dr. O'Haran, and it was decided to call a mass meeting to start a fund to recoup him for his heavy expenses.

WINDSOR, Tuesday.

After mass in St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church on Sunday morning, it was unanimously resolved that the Roman Catholics of Windsor depute the Rev. Father Power to convey to the Very Rev. Dr. O'Haran their congratulations upon his recent vindication. The Rev. Father Power was also deputed to represent the congregation at the public meeting to be held in Sydney. A resolution was also unanimously adopted that the Roman Catholics of Windsor co-operate in any arrangement made to indemnify the Very Rev. Dr. O'Haran in any expenses incurred in defending himself against the charges brought against him.

A SOUTH AFRICAN WARNING FROM CANADA.

One of the first, as one of the most vital, of the questions that will confront the new Government of the annexed South African provinces is (the "Saturday Review" says) that of language. Are both Dutch and English to be recognised officially, or only English? for we doubt if even Mr. Courtney would advocate the exclusive recognition of Dutch. We have before now expressed our opinion that only English should be recognised. Against this view the example of bi-lingual Canada is constantly cited, and is cited in such a way as to leave the impression that the best Canadians are all agreed in attributing the Dominion's prosperity to the duality of its official tongue. In view of this argument, which of all those adduced in favour of allowing the official use of the two languages has probably told the most, it will be well to look at the history of the question in Canada, and see if Canadian opinion really has been so unanimous on the point.

The first official permission to use dual languages in Canada is to be found in section 134 of the British North America Act of 1867, which runs as follows:—"Either the English or the French language may be used by any person in the debates of the Houses of the Parliament of Canada and of the Houses of the Legislation of Quebec; and both those languages shall be used in the respective records and journals of those Houses; and either of those languages may be used by any person or in any pleading or process in or issuing from any court of Canada established under this Act, and in and from all or any of the courts of Quebec." That is to say the permission was restricted so far as the Legislature was concerned to the Dominion Parliament and to the Assembly and Legislative Council of the Province of Quebec. A similar provision, both in the Manitoba Act of 1870 and in the North-west Territories Act of 1877 enjoined the use of the dual languages in those provinces respectively. In 1890 the Legislature of Manitoba enacted that: "Any statute or law to the contrary notwithstanding, the English language only shall be used in the records and journals of the House of Assembly for the province of Manitoba, and in any pleadings or process in or issuing from any court in the province of Manitoba. The Acts of the Legislature of the province of Manitoba need only be printed and published in the English language." In the same year the late Mr. Dalton M'Carthy moved in the Dominion House the repeal of the provision in the N.-W. T. Act of 1877 enjoining the use of the dual languages in those territories. The debate that ensued on this motion lasted for several days, was marked by considerable acrimony on both sides, and practically covered the whole field of discussion in the history of the question in Canada. Finally a sort of compromise was reached by an amendment of the late Sir John Thompson which relegated to the Legislative Assembly of the N.-W. T. "power to regulate, after the next general election of the Assembly, the proceedings of the Assembly, and the manner of recording and publishing such proceedings."

French sentiment and national pride were, quite naturally, opposed to the abrogation, and clerical influence was, of course, thrown into the scale against it. There is little doubt, however, that the English-speaking Canadians to-day, with the exception of those whose interests would be directly involved, would be unanimous against the adoption of the two languages—certainly in the case of framing a constitution for a new country. Even the French members acknowledged the obvious advantages to be derived from the use of one language, and ironically recommended the adoption of French. The benefit to children of learning English was almost universally recognised. "It is true, sir" (said M. Robillard), "that we speak French, but we are learning English as fast as we can. . . . I say that every sensible French-Canadian would wish to have his children learn English as well as French." Later in the debate Mr. (now Sir Wilfrid) Laurier made use of these words: "The French-Canadian father who to-day does not give an English education to his son does not do justice to his child, because he compels him to stand back in the hard struggle for life." Another objection to the system is its tendency to encourage combination on race lines—an action always to be deplored—and on this point the words of Mr. Charlton (an American by birth, but a Canadian by adoption) are worth quoting: "I cannot retort," he said, "upon the hon. gentleman" (Sir Hector Langevin, who had previously claimed to have the entire French element at his back) "by telling him that the English are united, because they are not. They do not readily unite upon a matter of this kind. There are differences of opinion. They cannot readily be united for the purposes of maintaining race privileges and interests. There is too much magnanimity amongst them; they feel it would be an act of tyranny to unite on this matter, as the hon. gentleman claims the French of the country have done. But if that feeling is to govern the conduct of the French, members of this House, if they are to unite together on race lines, in the manner which the hon. gentleman told us they have done on this occasion, the natural result may possibly be that it will lead to union of the same kind of the other element; and this is certainly to be deprecated."

The effect produced by difference of languages in breeding different styles of thought in rendering an expression of opinion or an effective argument, in one tongue quite unintelligible in another; and in producing fatal misconceptions on both sides, was strongly insisted on by Lord Durham in his famous report. Any measure that emphasises the cleavages between races living in the same country and under the same government inevitably works for evil, and not for good. The late Sir John Macdonald, while opposing the bill brought forward by Mr. M'Carthy, acknowledged that the measure introduced by Mr. Pitt in 1790, by which the old province of Quebec was divided into two—Upper and Lower Canada—was most unwise. "It was thought that matters would be simplified by keeping the French in one corner of this vast country, and the English in another, and they divided the province of Quebec into two provinces. From that unwise measure came most of our troubles." The instances quoted of European countries (Turkey, Austro-Hungary, Greece, Bulgaria, and Servia), where a similar state of things has prevailed, or where religion has taken the place of nationality, are hardly encouraging examples to follow. Switzerland herself, and she is the typical illustration always adduced by advocates of the system under discussion, has been described by an Edinburgh Reviewer as a "confederacy made up of 22 cantons, each jealous of one another, and sympathising only in common jealousy of the federal power."

In one respect the advocates of the retention of the dual language system in Canada has a much stronger case than the advocates of its adoption in the newly annexed territories in South Africa. The system having been once adopted, any interference with it is more likely to excite jealousy and ill-feeling than would have arisen had the matter been effectually dealt with at its inception. This truth was practically acknowledged by speakers on both sides: "I am not ignorant of," said Mr. Laurier, "nor will I minimise the danger, which arises to Canada from the fact that we have here a duality of language and a duality of race. But the fact exists." "When a people are without education, literature, or history" (is it libellous to say that this description fits the Boers of to-day?) "the experiment of doing away with a language might be made with success," said another speaker in opposing the bill; while in his opening speech Mr. M'Carthy made use of these words: "I venture to say that if a constitution were framed for a new country it would never occur to any person to do so foolish a thing as to stipulate for two official languages." But it is in another remark made by the same speaker that the peculiar significance of the whole debate on the question that will shortly arise in the Transvaal is to be found. Mr. White, of Cardwell, had quoted the resolution passed at Capetown in 1888, that notices of motion and orders of the day, and all bills submitted to the Council, be printed in Dutch as well as English, and, in his reply, Mr. M'Carthy used these words: "Take another instance which we have had, take Cape Colony: I dare say some hon. gentlemen know more about Cape Colony than I do . . . but is it not a fact that the Dutch Boers, as they are called, have rebelled and have left the English colony, and have founded an independent republic on its borders? Have not, within recent times, the British arms suffered a defeat at their hands, and to-day (February, 1890) is there not very great trouble between the Dutch who remain in the English colony? Certainly it is the last example that I would expect to be given by any persons cognisant with the facts in support of a duality of language in any country."

SOCIAL OPTIMISM.

It is an interesting fact (the "Spectator" says) that while almost all the literature of to-day is pessimist in tone, the mass of political and social speculation is decidedly optimist—at least if we take the word in its modern meaning, for it has suffered within the last half century a curious and highly suggestive change. Fifty years ago an optimist was a man who, looking upon the things immediately around him, held them to be good, while to-day the optimist is the man who habitually expects good things in the future. Something of hope, which yet is not strictly hope, has forced itself into the word. In its new sense the majority, in this country at all events, are now optimists. The laudator temporis acti, once the bugbear of the thoughtful, has almost disappeared. The man who used to play that part, let us say the old Tory squire with a good income and a long pedigree, is now a contented being who, except when discussing family pretensions, looks backward very little, and is only doubtful about the future because he is not quite sure whether he will continue to feel so entirely comfortable. The world as it is exactly suits him, and he believes in the past as little as in the future. The majority go a step farther, and not leading quite such padded lives, ignore the past altogether, and people the future with bright though rather nebulous imaginings. Religion, they fancy, will very soon be stripped of dogma, and therefore lose all its gloom, and therefore be universal. War will die out, the nations discovering some tribunal without tipstaffs which they can trust to adjust all their differences without coercion. Science will kill epidemics, and to a great extent rid us of pain, even toothache disappearing before some wonderful cocaine. Education will make us all bright, will "mollify manners and not suffer them to be fierce," will abolish drinking, and will make mankind so unselfish that poverty in its more painful forms will become like religious persecution, an evil but rather shadowy memory of the past which quite amazes London when it reappears in China. There are countless people who really and sincerely believe these things, just as Mr. Hall Caine does, who in a recent lecture in the island which he has made his intellectual fief repeated them all and many more, one being that all race prejudices will die because they will be "confessions of our ignorance of life." We are unable, unfortunately, to place on Mr. Hall Caine as a novelist the value which he places on himself, and which his multitudinous readers place on him, holding, doubtless from prejudice that his popularity, like that of Marie Corelli, is one more proof of the defective literary judgment of the crowd; but we do not question his sincerity, and in this lecture he certainly gave voice to the nebulous belief of innumerable men, one which inspires most journals, and in one shape or another serves as mental food for whole divisions of the vast army of philanthropists. He is fortunate in so pleasant a creed, more especially as he is able to fix his period with greater accuracy than any interpreter of Daniel, and, so to speak, knows that it will begin with the new century which is now but a few days off; but we should like to know, as a purely intellectual relief, on what that creed is based.

To us it seems based not upon hope, for hope is rarely quite so confident or so detailed, and not upon confidence in God, for the submissive believer recognises the possibility of discipline, but upon a rather rash induction from insufficient premisses. Because the expiring century has brought some benefits to the Western world—benefits accompanied by a rather striking increase of envy, greed, and international malignity therefore the next one is to be replete with benefits to all humanity. Why? It may be so, no doubt, but on what ground do we assume that it will be so? Because, we shall be told, we are progressive, and being progressive must advance. Why should we not recede, being later in the ages and perhaps a little tired? There have been, as Mr. Caine will acknowledge, periods of stagnation, and why should the next century not be one of them? We should say, if we ventured in the presence of a prophet to have an opinion, that there are many signs of exhaustion visible in the West, that poetry is nearly silent, and literature decaying, that criticism is taking the place of production, and that the crop of great men without whose leadership there is no march shows symptoms of dying out. Exhaustion seems to us the note of the end of the century, and why should we assume that rejuvenation will be rapid? It is at present the young, not the old, who are so decadent. Or, granting that under the laws of the universe progress must be, though with the history of Asia before us that seems a rash assumption, why should the progress be towards happiness for the mass? Because, says Mr. Caine, there are mighty forces at work. Granted as a truth which has always been true—in the tenth century for example, when the misery of the masses of Europe reached a sort of climax—but why should those mighty forces be about to generate happiness? Why not misery? Some of the omens are not exactly favourable. There is the enormous increase of population, for example, and the consequent difficulty in finding enough of the material of happiness to go round. Multiplication without end has not made China happy, nor is it easy to believe that the struggle which so vexes us all will be easier when the United Kingdom has to feed 50 millions. There is the increase of doubt, which at least diminishes the serenity of all who think, and all who were accustomed to believe what they were told. There is the vast development of the reliance on military force, and the tendency to use that force, as we see in China, simply to slay inferiors. There is the danger, clearly visible in Japan, that Asia may learn enough of the manufacturing methods of Europe to beat her at her own game, and practically terminate the profits of associated toil and of transmarine commerce. Has it ever occurred to Mr. Caine to think of what Europe would be like if Asia undersold all her manufactures, her iron, and her coal? That revolution is perfectly possible in the immediate future, and if it occurred, Europe during the long struggle which must precede readjustment would be a hell on earth. Science, we are told, is to save us, but suppose science grows inhuman, as other creeds have by moments done, and calmly proclaims its belief that the survival of the fittest is part of the natural order, and that, therefore, the destruction of the less fit is to be encouraged. It is at least not certain that the better division of property to which we understand Mr. Caine to look forward, though he is only clear as regards property in land, may not be accomplished by violence, by a real "rising" in the old sense of millions who, hungering for more comfort and seeing it before them, may decide to take it by a snatch. The common assumption is that even if the "ugly rush" occurred it would be over in a moment, the rush being irresistible, but that belief is only possible to those who misread history. The "Haves" would buy all the science there is, and all the means of destruction, dynamite included, and myriads of soldiers besides. The struggle would be desperate; and it might end in a tyranny such as the world has never seen. People would be too good, thinks Mr. Caine, to permit such a result. Would they? The mass of the well-to-do are not so much better than Martin Luther, and will not be, and when in his time that very "ugly rush" occurred upon ample provocation, he advised the Princes and Knights to put it down by massacre—which they did, thereby stopping the progress of Germany towards freedom for at least a century.

We do not say that any of these mighty miseries will occur; most probably they will not, the great changes going on quietly and almost imperceptibly; but they may, a cataclysm being at least as possible as an apotheosis. The pious will say they trust in God, and they are right; but we do not know the purpose of the Almighty, and do know that it is consistent with long cycles of suffering for waste mankind. It was after Christianity had prevailed that the countries on the Mediterranean, the only civilised countries, endured for centuries the recurrent horrors of the barbarian invasion. It was not a barbarian State which was nearly wiped out by the thirty years war. Providence has allowed to the Turks a purely destructive career of 500 years, not compensated, as the invasions of Rome were, by any reinvigoration of the conquered populations. There are times when man has only to submit, and none of us know the law by which those times are fixed. It seems to us that there is danger in regarding progress towards general happiness as a kind of fate, danger to our caution, danger to our energy, danger, above all, to our perception of the necessity for reverent appeal to higher powers than our own. Cheerfulness is a good thing—and some trace of optimism, in its new sense, is essential to enterprise—but man when unduly exultant to our mind resembles too closely man when he is drunk. There is too much in the temper of the day of what St. John probably meant when he condemned the "pride of life," and it is kept up and fed by this constant reiteration of the dogma that we are all always advancing towards a happier condition.

Mrs. Tierney, Miss Dalrymple, Mr. Bates, and Mr. Alston will be the solo vocalists. Mr. Rivers Allpress will be leader, and Mr. J. Edward Sykes resumes his place at the organ.

WIRTH'S CIRCUS.

Wirth Brothers' Royal Circus and Menagerie attracted another crowded house last evening, when the spirited and enjoyable programme which has prevailed since the opening night was successfully repeated. An interesting feature of the entertainment was the appearance in the tiger cage of Miss Daisy Harcourt, the well-known soubrette actress, who entered with the trainer, and exhibited a nerve and coolness in the presence of the animals that earned for her the admiration of the spectators. An afternoon performance will be given to-day. This evening there will be a complete change of programme.

H.M.S. WALLAROO'S RETURN FROM CHINA.

AN INSULT TO A CONSUL RESENTED.

THE CRUISER DUE THIS WEEK.

One of the seven warships comprising the Australian Auxiliary Squadron, H.M.S. Wallaroo, is now on her way back to Sydney. Concerning her movements the following interesting letter is to hand. It is under date March 29 from Thursday Island. The correspondent says:—"When the trouble in China became serious, and it was found necessary to strengthen the fleet, H.M.S. Wallaroo was ordered to proceed with all despatch to Hongkong, shallow-draught ships being needed for river service. We reached Hongkong without mishap on July 30, and as soon as possible after our arrival we were ordered to Kiukiang, a port on the Yang-tsze Kiang, some 450 miles from the mouth of the river. On passing the river forts, which are very heavily armed with modern guns, every preparation was made against a possible attack, as owing to the report that the friendly Viceroy at Nankin had been poisoned there was some doubt as to whether the Yang-tsze Valley would remain neutral. But the forts were passive, and our destination was reached without any difficulty. We experienced no trouble at Kiukiang, except on one occasion, when the British Consul was assaulted by some Chinese soldiers. An armed landing party from the ship soon restored order, and the offenders were handed over to the Chinese officials, at whose hands they received exemplary punishment. Towards the end of the year the river began to fall so rapidly that we had to leave at once to avoid being blocked in until the spring. After a stay of two months at a port near the mouth of the river and a short visit to Japan we were sent to Amoy. While at this port we received orders to return to Hongkong, en route for Sydney."

The Wallaroo is in command of Captain F. C. M. Noel, who has with him Lieutenant B. W. Drummond, Lieutenant G. F. Youel, Lieutenant E. Secretan, Navigating-Lieutenant A. M. Dawson, Staff-surgeon J. C. Ferguson, Paymaster F. Belling, Fleet-engineer C. B. Steward, Assistant-engineer D. H. W. Bain, Clerks S. A. S. Bromley and F. R. A. Williams.

The Wallaroo was the only ship belonging to the Australian Auxiliary Squadron which left here during the excitement in connection with the Chinese trouble, though there were one or two other vessels sent from the station.

ACCIDENT TO THE PRINZ REGENT LUITPOLD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Prinz Regent Luitpold, which lost the use of one of her propellers off Gabo, arrived at Port Melbourne to-day. A diver, who was sent down to ascertain the damage, reported that there was a long fracture in the shaft extending lengthwise from the outside into the tube. The propeller itself was not lost thanks to the promptitude of the engineer shutting off steam when the jarring of the shaft became perceptible. The steamer will be floated into Alfred Graving Dock on Friday or Saturday.

NEWCASTLE COAL EXPORT TRADE.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The quantity of coal shipped at the Government hydraulic cranes at the Dyke for internal, inter-State and foreign consumption during the departmental week ended this morning was 50,873 tons, as compared with 58,346 tons during the corresponding week of last year—thus showing a decrease of 7473 tons. The reduction in the output is due solely to the Easter holidays. The amount of coke exported during the period under review was 97 tons as against 471 tons in the year 1900—a decrease of 374 tons.

The four-masted schooner H. D. Bendixson cleared at the Custom-house this afternoon for Honolulu with 1013 tons of coal, and the ship Godiva cleared for Callao with 3080 tons of Seaham coal. In the inter-State trade the only departure to-day was the steamship Zealandia for Auckland, via Sydney, with 850 tons of coal.

THE NATIVE RACES IN SOUTH AFRICA.

(BY THE "DAILY GRAPHIC" CORRESPONDENT.)

When the Governments of the South African Republic and Orange Free State "staggered humanity" by means of their historical ultimatum early in October, 1899, one serious question among many others presented itself to the minds of Englishmen in South Africa, "What will the natives do?" It was commonly accepted as a fact that the word had been passed around to the native chiefs, by the English Native Commissioners, that this was a white man's quarrel, and that they must stand aside. There was, however, a doubt in the first place as to whether this had been done or not, and also—if it had been done—whether the warlike chiefs would heed it. The doubt was absolutely justified, as I think everyone will admit, in view of subsequent events. Had the shortcomings, which had been so evident in the administrative branches of the British Army, also affected the Colonial Native Administration, there is every reason to believe that the black races of South Africa, who are never so happy as when they are fighting, would have "chipped in," either on one side or the other, or indiscriminately. The statement that the blacks "are never so happy as when they are fighting" may appear to many home readers as being an exaggeration. The idea that any human being actually enjoys fighting is, of course, absurd to the peace and order loving community which has never seen red blood. However lamentable it may appear, it is nevertheless a fact. It is also a fact which must obtain due recognition, and which entails provision being made to apply it to legitimate uses.

One striking illustration, among many other instances, came under my own observation four or five years ago. Christmas time was generally observed as holiday on the mines of the Witwatersrand among the white employees. The natives also, as a matter of course, were caused to keep "Kissmas" as work was suspended for the day. The event had previously been marked by sanguinary encounters among the various tribes, consequently a few days beforehand measures had been taken to disarm the "boys" along the reef of all their sticks, pick-handles, gas-pipe and iron-rod weapons. On one large mine, employing some 3000 "niggers," a deputation was appointed to wait on the compound manager to ascertain the purport of this disarmament. The spokesman had also been instructed to ask the "Baas" whether they might fight the Gold-mining Company's boys on "Kissmas" Day. Upon this scheme being emphatically negatived, the deputation stated that if they were not allowed to fight they would go to work. "What's the use of a holiday if we may not fight?" Many instances similar to the foregoing might be quoted if necessary, but I believe any one with experience of the native races in South Africa will agree with me. I will not go so far as to say that all the blacks share this love of fighting. The predominant tribes, the Zulus and the Basutos, undoubtedly do so in an eminent degree, and it is with these two magnificent races of men that we shall have to deal with in the future.

Since the power of Cetewayo was broken in 1879 the Zulu race has increased by leaps and bounds. With him disposed of, "smelling out" ceased. These periodical massacres had their uses from an anthropological point of view, as all the cripples and deformed persons were killed off, with the result that we now have a striking illustration of the merits of the "survival of the fittest" system in a race of magnificent physically formed men and women. Their old national fighting traditions are perforce dormant, but it is within the realms of possibility that, given the cause of opportunity and the leader, the old Adam may reassert himself in the Zulu breast. Estimates as to the number of able-bodied men among them are, of course, far from being concise, but a conservative approximation of their numbers gives us the result that there are at least 100,000 men capable of bearing arms.

The Zulu is a "foot slogger;" we come now to the Basuto, the mounted man. In the south-east corner of the Orange River Colony flows a stream that you have lately heard of in connection with the now famous De Wet, the Caledon River. Beyond this to the eastward lies a mountainous country, intersected by streams and fertile valleys, bounded on the east by the Drakensberg—the Mountains of the Dragon. A country the size of Ireland, fertile with a fertility which has procured for it the name of the granary of South Africa, populated with an unbeaten race of warrior horsemen, whose fighting strength cannot be less than 60,000, rich in minerals as yet untouched—such is Basutoland. A hard nut, with a rich kernel—a nut that we once tried to crack, with very ill success. Fortunately, the scheme of playing off one chief against another, which has stood us in good stead in other parts of the Empire, has kept the Basuto quiet for years past. The spectacle witnessed by the leading chiefs in Pretoria at the annexation parade had a good effect. On the other hand, the protracted game of hide and seek in the vicinity of their border, and in full view of their rocky fastnesses, which has been going on for so many months past between the wily Boer and the sometimes pursuing at other times retiring Briton, must have had considerable influence on their martial spirit. Though nominally forming a part of the British dominions in South Africa, the Basutos actually are an independent race. The Resident Commissioner of Basutoland, Sir Godfrey Lagden, advises and controls the chiefs to a great extent. His influence is purely moral. No white man may own ground or prospect or dig for minerals. Traders must be licensed to enter the country, and not even a gill of spirituous liquor may be taken over the border. The white settler who wishes to farm land must fulfil the same conditions as the native farmer does in the white man's country of the Orange River Colony or Transvaal. He tills the land and gives half the produce to the chief or owner by way of rent. In fact, the Basutos are an independent native race, inhabiting their own country, unbeaten in war, and controlled by moral suasion only.

Thus we have two great and warlike races of men constantly increasing in number, whose energies have of late years been directed to the accumulation of wealth, gained by tillage, and labour in the mines of the Witwatersrand and Kimberley, who strenuously resist all efforts to "civilise" or "Christianise" them, and yet are moral with a morality unknown among more "favoured" races. The Kaffirs of the Cape and Kaffraria proper, the Pondos of Pondoland, the Fingoes of the Eastern Province, the Griquas, Baralongs, Bataphis of Griqualand, and Bechuanaland—Khama's men—the Swazies of Swaziland—another warlike community numbering themselves by the tens of thousands—the Matabele and Mashonas, and the half dozen bastard tribes scattered throughout the Orange River Colony and Transvaal—these have all to be reckoned with. What shall we do with them? Constantly increasing, thriving in their own climate and on their native soil, what is their destiny? Shall we ever in years to come have to face a black danger? Is it nearer than we think? or is it so remote as to be improbable? It may be that the material lying to our hand will be made use of—that native South African regiments will some time be formed, which will be able to take their part in the garrisoning of the Empire. This would provide an outlet for that undoubtedly martial spirit existing in the Zulu, Basuto, and Swazie races, the existence of which, unemployed, constitutes no small menace to the peace of Africa.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM.

A correspondent writes to the "Daily Graphic":—Many people have a hazy notion that the National Anthem was composed expressly for Queen Victoria. The fact is that this famous anthem has undergone many mutations since it was first composed. From the memoirs of Madame de Crequy we gather that "God Save the King" is almost a literal translation of the daily cantique which was sung by the demoiselles de St. Cyr when Louis XIV. entered the chapel for morning prayers:—

Grand Dieu, sauve le Roi!
Grand Dieu, venge le Roi!
Vive le Roi!
Que toujours glorieux,
Louis victorieux!
Voye ses ennemis
Toujours soumis!
Grand Dieu, sauve le Roi!
Grand Dieu, sauve le Roi!
Vive le Roi!

The words were by M. de Brinon, and were said to have been translated by Carey, who was born in the year 1643, on behalf of George I., who began to reign in 1714. In "Raikes's Journal" we are told that the anthem appears to have been translated and adapted to the House of Hanover by Handel, the German composer. Originally the line "Frustrate their knavish tricks" was "Frustrate their Popish tricks," and was afterwards altered to spare the tender susceptibilities of English Roman Catholics.

PLUM PUDDINGS AND SULPHATE OF COPPER.

That any intimate connection exists between plum pudding and sulphate of copper may, to the majority of people, appear on the face of it, says "Engineering," inherently improbable, even where a statement to this effect is not at once put down to the distorted fancy of the speaker. Such misgivings, however, are but the product of ignorance, for the connection between the supply of dried fruit from Greece and sulphate of copper is a close one, though the present season is perhaps the first one in which the subject has been dragged from the arena of technology to form the subject matter of polite conversation. Without further parley we may proceed at once to say that the great failure of the currant crop in Greece this season has been attributed by those in a position to speak with authority on the matter to the ill-advised action of the currant growers in stinting the application of sulphate of copper to the plants, this chemical being now used on a large scale for combating the ravages of the Peronospora pest. We have just used the term "ill-advised," though perhaps false economy would more accurately fit the case, because it was solely owing to the rise in price of the insecticide that the failure to use it in sufficient quantity is due, and not to any idea that its application would be considered as superfluous. In conjunction with the rise of price of the metal the demand for sulphate of copper has largely increased in vine-growing countries. Italy, Spain, and Greece are now using large quantities of it for combating certain vine pests, of which the phylloxera is the best known, and probably the most destructive. There is then nothing surprising in the fact that the salt we are discussing has seen a rise from £15 per ton to £25, at which figure it is quoted to-day.

A telegram from Berne in the "Pall Mall Gazette" of March 1 states that there is a great exodus of Anabaptists from the Lower Emmenthal. The leaders of the sect have convinced themselves that Europe is on the brink of a general war, in which Switzerland will be invaded, and as their tenets prohibit the shedding of human blood they are emigrating en masse to the United States to escape the conflict.

The invitations issued in connection with the festivities to be held in honour of the Duke and Duchess of York are the subject of illustrations in this week's "Sydney Mail."—Advt.

HARBOUR REMOVALS.

The ship Glen Avon, which arrived from London on Monday, will to-day take up a discharging berth at Dalgety's new wharf.

The steamer Orestes was yesterday taken from Darling Island to the Central Wharf.

The steamer Jerome was yesterday removed from Mort's Dock to Berry's Bay, where her compasses were set. She proceeds to Newcastle to load coal for Western Australia.

The ship Cumberland was yesterday taken from Darling Island to the Federal Wharf.

A DRASTIC SHIPPING MEASURE.

Writing under date of San Francisco recently a correspondent reports:—It is understood that a measure will shortly be introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives to take effect from January 1, 1903, prohibiting entry at any port of the United States of foreign tonnage carrying products of any country other than that of its own flag. That such a measure as the foregoing, if offered in good faith, will meet with any general support hardly seems credible, particularly at this juncture, as such a drastic blow would hardly be tolerated by other nations largely interested in the deep-sea carrying trade without severe retaliatory measures. In fact, it would appear more reasonable to assume that the bill is fathered by active opponents of the Ship Subsidy Bill, with a view of embarrassing the House with the subject of shipping before the subsidy scheme comes before the House.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

Tuesday Evening.

Business after the holidays to-day was resumed, but it will take a few days before conditions are normal.

The amount of the clearances of the Sydney banks for the week ended yesterday was £2,162,178, compared with £2,853,642 and £2,630,846 in the corresponding weeks of 1900 and 1899 respectively. The total amounts since January 1, in comparison with the amounts for like periods for earlier years, were as follow:—

January 1 to April 8, 1895 ...	£28,218,670
January 1 to April 7, 1896 ...	29,119,423
January 1 to April 12, 1897 ...	34,615,449
January 1 to April 11, 1898 ...	33,328,594
January 1 to April 10, 1899 ...	34,996,867
January 1 to April 9, 1900 ...	40,892,798
January 1 to April 8, 1901 ...	41,583,736

To date so far since January 1 the clearances exceed those of last year by £700,938, or 1·7 per cent. In Melbourne to March 25 the bank clearances showed an increase of £4,014,022.

The Municipality of Campbelltown is advertising for a loan of £1700 for a period of three years.

The condition of the reserves of the banks of the United Kingdom comes in for periodical discussion. Undoubtedly the vast business of the mother country is financed with a very small amount of actual cash—much less than is used in France or most other countries; as will have been seen from the figures we quoted a day or two ago. But the experience of the past six months seems to show that it might have been better for the country, looked at all round, had there been more gold in the vaults of the banks, and the rates charged to merchants and others requiring monetary assistance had not been so high. Dear money may be a good thing for the banks, but it may be the opposite for those who have to pay them. At least, that is the theory held in France, where much more specie is used than in the United Kingdom. Some years back, when the Baring Brothers' firm was supported, the banks, as one point of improvement, agreed to publish monthly statements of their reserves. This is not as satisfactory as it should be; for if the banks happen to have slight reserves at the time they make a two days' effort called "window-dressing," showing reserves made up for the purposes. Among the proposals for permanently increasing the reserve are that a larger amount should be kept in the Bank of England under the condition that the other banks should keep larger balances with it; secondly, that the banks generally in their own vaults should keep a larger reserve; and, thirdly, that there should be a clearing-house reserve kept by an independent body as in New York. As to the first proposal, the banks generally are too jealous of the Bank of England taking advantage of the deposits to trade in competition with them. As to the second, it is said the banks are not generally provided with safe-keeping vaults. As to the third, there is not sufficient unanimity among them to adopt it. That, at least, has been the experience so far. Although two or three of the leading bankers in England have been discussing the propriety of the strengthening of the reserves, nothing has yet been done. Probably it will not be done until there is another crisis. It takes two or three sometimes to move a conservative people. In Japan, probably, a remedy would have been devised ere this, possibly in the United States. In Australia, after the crisis of 1893, great reforms were to be effected. Well, we have larger reserves, and doubtless our politicians and bankers would know better what to do in the case of trouble, which, in present conditions, seems a remote contingency; but still none of the projects for strengthening the situation by the concentration of the reserves by a coalition of which there was so much talk has yet been adopted. There are a good many things in Australia in the air. The city railway is one; we shall get that when a few score more lives have been sacrificed. Flood protection works have been talked of for a half-century on the Hunter and elsewhere. When crops to the value a few millions sterling have been destroyed some scheme costing a tenth of the amount will be adopted. And so banking reform will come perhaps after a calamity. What is wanted evidently in the country is the introduction of a few thousand enterprising Japs. They would impart a little of the element needed here.

The letter on life assurance by Mr. Nettheim in the "Herald" this morning, contains sound advice to persons intending to assure. At the same time there will always be people who prefer special forms of assurance, and the various offices may be expected to cater for all classes of business. Almost every table appeals to some, and if people will not assure under what is the best table for most, there is no good reason why they should not do so under any other which is good for them. While so much is said, it may be worth while to emphasise the main point insisted on by Mr. Nettheim, that the ordinary whole life table is the best for the great majority of people, as not only those who have assured under it, but others who have assured under a table providing for payment at 50 or 55 have found out, the latter sometimes to their regret; and it is this which gives the subject so much interest. On reaching those ages and receiving their money many would prefer to continue assurance, but are deterred by the higher rates required. Where at 25 years of age an annual payment of £10 13s 4d per annum sufficed for an assurance of £500, at 56 years of age £29 0s 6d is needed, and many persons do not care to pay the higher premium; and so the provision made for wives and children may, by coming into possession, be absorbed by creditors, or be frittered away to the detriment of a widow. But apart from that consideration £10 spent in a whole life policy will yield as much when the policy and bonuses are surrendered at 55 years as the like annual outlay on a policy definitely payable at 55 years. If an assurant wants a larger amount of assurance at the outset for a given amount of money, he can obtain it, by taking out a policy under the non-participating table. Under the three tables at the age of 25 years £10 will assure the following amounts:—

	Premium.	Sum assured.
Whole life assurance, without bonuses ..	£10	£612
Whole life, with bonuses ...	10	469
Payable at 55 years ...	10	325
Payable at 65 years ...	10	411

A man who for a payment of £10 assures under the non-participating system, gets a policy for £612, being £143 more than he obtains under the ordinary table, with bonuses. He takes a present bonus of £143, and if he dies within the first few years his heirs will benefit; but if he survives the time when the bonuses on the participating policy exceed £143 he suffers in the general result. The assurant under the whole life participating policy, if he survive to 55 years of age, has at least two options. He may allow his policy to remain in force at the low premiums, or he may surrender it and his bonuses, with probably an amount equal to what would be paid to the holder of the policy payable definitely at 55 years of age.

If there is any departure from the ordinary whole life policy it would probably be more to the advantage of the assurant to continue payment until 65 years of age, although the objection, as in the case of the 55 years' policy, is only minimised. The assurant would then have arrived at the age when the claims of inability arise. And if past experience can be repeated, as in the case of the oldest Australian life society, which has reported payments on policies maturing at 65 years, equal to accumulations of premiums at 4 per cent. compound interest, his annual premium of £10 per annum, besides giving him an assurance of from £411 to £988, or an average of £709, will give him from the £988 then payable an annuity of £103 per annum for the rest of his days without further payment. A premium of £5 per annum would of course give half that amount of assurance and annuity advantages. It may be fairly questioned, however, whether at the reduced earning rates of money premiums can be computed to yield an average of 4 per cent. in the next 40 years as they have in the past. If we reduce the yield by 1½ per cent., and anticipate 2½ per cent. as the return to be given on the premiums of 25 year age policies maturing at 65 years of age, then £690 will, at the recently reduced rates, give an annuity of £73. A comparatively small annual premium will do much more for the individual assurant than he can expect from reliance on a gratuitous pension by the Government. And if the effect of the old-age pension scheme should be in any way to relax self-dependence it will be anything but a good thing for the community.

BREADSTUFFS.

This market ruled quiet owing to the general unsettlement following the holidays. Prices remained as last quoted, viz., wheat at 2s 6d to 2s 7d for f.a.q. to prime Riverina grain and flour at £5 15s to £6 5s, according to quality and brand.

The receipts of wheat and flour by rail at Sydney, Clyde, Homebush, Burwood, Ashfield, Petersham, and Newtown during the week ended April 9, compared with those of the previous week and the corresponding week of last year, are as follow:—

	Wheat. Tons.	Flour. Tons.
Week ended April 9 ...	2,089	306
Previous week ...	4,004	969
Last year ...	780	433

The receipts of wheat and flour during the first fifteen weeks of the last nine years are as follow:—

	Wheat. Tons.	Flour. Tons.

The recent shipment of wheat from Sydney to Valparaiso is explained by the shortage of the Chilian crop this season. The output is the smallest on recent record, and instead of there being an exportable surplus Chili has had to import to meet a deficiency. The production, together with the shipments to the United Kingdom since 1893, has been as follows:—

	Production. Quarters.	Shipments to U.K. Quarters.
1893 ...	2,250,000	394,000
1894 ...	2,000,000	682,000
1895 ...	1,650,000	208,000
1896 ...	1,500,000	209,000
1897 ...	1,500,000	401,000
1898 ...	1,800,000	222,000
1899 ...	1,700,000	72,000
1900 ...	1,450,000	15,000
1901 ...	1,100,000

The Collector of Customs gives the exports of wheat from the port of Sydney during the week ended April 6 as 162,028 bushels, and the exports of flour as 986 tons. The imports of flour during the same period totalled 81 tons, there being no imports of wheat.

IMPORT MARKET.

Business has not yet settled down after the holidays. Consequently there was a paucity of wholesale transactions noticed. Merchants were busily engaged throughout the day attending to their outward mails, while distributors found their time too fully occupied with an accumulation of country orders to admit of their considering fresh purchases. Prices cannot be regarded as having quotably changed locally, nor have any cables been received from abroad indicating alterations in outside markets. The holiday season not being confined to the Southern Hemisphere, this lack of news is easily understood.

Tea.—Some fair sales were reported, including 150 chests of Ceylon broken pekoes at 7½d to 10d; 25 ditto at 11½d to 1s 0½d; 50 pekoes, 6½d to 7½d; 120 chests of pekoes and pekoe souchongs at 6d; and 400 chests of Indians, to arrive ex Bancoora, at 5½d to 7½d per lb. No tea auctions have been arranged for this week. Consequently it is expected that private business will be fairly brisk.

Groceries.—20 Tons of Colman's packet starch moved off to arrive ex a vessel close at hand at market rates. Keens' mustard and blue, Symington's coffee essence, and Fitzroy meats had steady attention at agents' prices. Ten tons of red rock salt were placed at 37s 6d per ton.

Liquors.—The demand was not very active in this department. Hennessy's brandy was quoted irregularly. Heddle's had a trade demand at agents' prices. Fifteen-bottle key gin was scarce and firm, 16's selling at 12s to 12s 3d, according to size of parcel. Lowndes' rum in lines was obtainable at 3s 9d, but holders secured 3s 10d to 3s 11d in small lots. Proprietary lines of whiskies, ales, and stouts sold regularly, while there was some demand for champagne.

The French vintage of 1900 is placed at 67,352,661 hectoliters, the biggest since 1875, and 19,444,981 hectoliters over 1899. The value of the harvest is estimated at 1,261,258,000 francs.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

A good extent of business was done in most lines of general produce to-day. The markets were quiet in tone, maize and potatoes being the only lines displaying any degree of buoyancy. With one or two exceptions supplies under offer proved ample for all requirements. The inquiry for maize continued brisk at 2s 9d for choice dry grain, while other qualities had good sale at 2s 8d per bushel. Oats were plentiful and difficult to place even at reduced rates. Best imported feed sorts made to 1s 11d, while local varieties were slow up to 1s 7d per bushel. Chickwheat moved steadily while barley and peas were more or less neglected. Both bran and pollard were in demand at prices much the same as those ruling at the close of last week. Under the hammer local chaff had ready sale, and, despite the large quantity forward, the market closed firm at slightly advanced rates. Imported makes were in request, up to £3 12s 6d for ordinary prime samples. Special choice green Adelaide chaff was offering at £4 without leading to business. Other forage lines had a fair amount of attention at late values. Owing to the smaller supplies received from Tasmania this week, the market for potatoes had a firm tone at higher rates. The inquiry was good, principally at £3 15s for best average sorts. Very choice lots were placed at £4 per ton. Onions were in moderate request, up to £6 10s for choice descriptions. In dairy produce a good turnover was transacted in all lines. Eggs continued scarce and dear. Prices, generally, underwent very little alteration.

REDFERN SALE.

At the Redfern railway terminus markets this morning a heavy supply of produce was offered for sale. There was a large attendance of buyers, who operated with a considerable amount of freedom in most lines. The inquiry for chaff was brisk at a slight advance on rates ruling at the close of last week. Oats were exceptionally plentiful and dull of sale at reduced values. Wheat was in quiet request, while lucerne and oaten hay commanded a fair amount of attention. Bran sold steadily, while pollard was offered without leading to business. Choice green chaff realised 3s 8d to 4s, ordinary prime 3s 3d to 3s 6d, medium 2s 9d to 3s 2d, and rough 2s to 2s 8d per cwt. Prime oaten hay made 3s 6d and indifferent quality 2s 5d per cwt. CITY YARDS.

Pigs.—To-day's sale was the first since Wednesday last, and despite a full yard of 643 head the number proved short of actual requirements. The market opened to a large and representative gathering of buyers, all of whom showed great eagerness to obtain supplies. Bidding generally was of a most spirited nature, the market on the whole being far and away the most satisfactory experienced for many a long day. It was hard to particularise any one class as selling best, for both baconers (light) and porkers made in many instances 5d per lb., and buyers eager to purchase at that. Sales finished up very solidly, and there is every reason to anticipate high rates for some sale days ahead. Quotations: Big heavy backfatters, 48s to 58s, extra choice to 70s; best pens of baconers to 54s 6d, good 44s to 49s, medium from 36s 6d, light from 32s; best pens of porkers to 31s 6d, good 22s 6d to 27s, light from 17s 6d; stores, best to 16s, good 11s 6d to 14s, others from 9s.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS COMMONWEALTH MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In the proposed State House, as suggested by Sir William Lyne, I believe it was intended that one part should be allotted for memorials of our citizen soldiers who had fallen in the South African war, and that H.R.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York should be asked to lay the foundation stone of the building. As the idea of a State House has now been abandoned, I think it a very opportune time to consider the question of a State memorial to those who may well be considered as the flower of Australian chivalry, I leave the question of what form the memorial should take to others to decide, but as it was intended that our own Royal visitor should lay the first stone of the State House, he may now very appropriately be asked to lay the first stone of the proposed memorial.

I am, &c.,

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW.

SIXTH DAY'S DISPLAY.

JUMPING CONTESTS.

SALES OF PEDIGREE HORSES AND CATTLE.

The attendance at the Royal Agricultural Society's show yesterday, considering it was the sixth day's display, was remarkably good. It far exceeded the expectations of the officers of the society, and was much larger than that recorded on the corresponding day of last year's show.

At an early hour in the morning that portion of the grounds set apart for the horses, cattle, sheep, and swine became a very busy scene in consequence of the large assemblage of intending buyers at the sales, that were conducted by several of the leading metropolitan stock and station agents. The sales were carried out with considerable animation during the whole of the morning and portion of the afternoon.

Considerable interest centred in the ring events, especially in the parade of buggy, tandem, and carriage teams for judging purposes. The parade of dogs was an interesting event, whilst the fast-travelling motor cars formed a most attractive display as they dashed along the circular asphalt track at a rapid pace. The Broadway ladies' driving competition was confined to two well-appointed buggy teams. The competitions must extend over two days before an award can be made. The high-jumping competition for lady riders was watched with keen interest by the spectators, who warmly cheered Mrs. Stace for her well-deserved win on Mr. H. D. Morton's flyer Desmond.

The consistent success of the show from a financial point of view was still further evidenced by the fact that the takings yesterday amounted to £565 11s 3d, or an increase of £289 19s 6d upon those for the corresponding day of last year's show. Up till last night the gate money receipts amounted to £7058 10s 2d, being an increase of £2821 10s 5d upon the amount received during the corresponding days of last year's display. To-day is the last day of the show, and a special "ring" attraction has been arranged for in the shape of a steeplechase water-jump for lady riders.

A conference of dairy farmers will be held on the ground at 3 p.m. to-day for the purpose of considering several matters of interest to the dairying industry. The Premier has been invited to take the chair, and if other engagements permit he will do so. Mr. O'Callaghan, the Government dairy expert, will read a paper, and a general discussion will follow.

The rabbit question—always an important matter with the owners and utilisers of the land—came prominently forward at the Show Ground yesterday afternoon. A meeting, attended by a large number of gentlemen prominent in agricultural and pastoral affairs, was held, and it was decided that a deputation should wait upon the Premier and the Minister for Lands to bring under their notice the following resolution, which was unanimously carried, on the motion of Mr. Fisher (Coonamble), seconded by Mr. T. Fitzpatrick, M.L.A. (The Murrumbidgee),—"That the Hon. the Minister for Lands be requested to declare all the districts suffering from the ravages of rabbits in New South Wales rabbit infested, so far as the compulsory killing clauses of the Act are concerned, and to arrange that sufficient inspectors shall be appointed to see that the destructive clauses are carried out simultaneously."

It was further resolved by the meeting, on the motion of Mr. S. Wilson, seconded by Mr. A. G. Humby,—"That the Government be asked to supply at cost price wire netting sufficient for each affected holding, to be delivered at the nearest railway station, cost of the same to be repayable in 20 yearly instalments, together with 3 per cent. interest. Further, we ask the State to take immediate steps to put tenants on vacant Crown lands on long leases at nominal rentals, on strict conditions to keep the pest in check, or failing which the Crown to take immediate steps to combat the pest."

It was also decided that the Premier should be requested to convoke Parliament for a short session in order that the rabbit question may be immediately dealt with.

JUMPING EVENTS.

During the afternoon a capital exhibition of jumping by lady riders was given. The first event was the equestrienne contest over hurdles. Practically speaking the jumping in this event was merely nominal in character, because the top rails of the 4ft. 6in. hurdles were removed, and the judges confined themselves solely to discriminating between the different styles of the riders with a view of placing them first, second, and third. In other words, it was the rider and not the horse that was judged. The contest for the ladies' high jump brought out seven competitors, namely, Exchange, Jupiter, Desmond, Mercadool, Andover, Skylark, and Gladys. Mrs. Elliott, whose riding throughout the show has been remarkably fine, piloted Exchange over the first jump, which stood at 5ft. 4in. Mr. J. J. Garvan's Jupiter, ridden by Miss Garvan, refused three times, and was put out of the competition. Mrs. Stace handled Mr. H. D. Morton's Desmond with great judgment, and the horse cleared the bar. Mr. H. A. Pottie's Mercadool with Mrs. Elliott in the saddle brought down the bar at each try, and retired. Miss Garvan essayed to take Mr. J. J. Garvan's Andover over the bar, and after two failures succeeded in doing so. Mr. J. Gilbert, jun.'s, Skylark carried Mrs. Elliott over the bar at the first trial, and it was clearly enough demonstrated to the spectators that the final struggle would rest between Desmond and Skylark. Mr. J. H. Wright's Gladys, with Mrs. Elliott up, failed to negotiate the fence, and retired.

For the second round the bar was raised to 5ft. 7in., and the contestants were reduced to Desmond, Skylark, and Andover. Skylark tried first and failed in two trials, but on the third one he got over with about an inch to spare. Andover baulked the first time, brought down the bar on the second trial, and baulked at the third go, consequently the horse retired. Mrs. Stace, on Desmond, cleared the bar beautifully on the first trial.

The third round was then entered upon by Skylark and Desmond, with the bar raised to 5ft. 9in. The former cleared the bar at the second try, whilst Desmond passed over it at the first go. The bar having been raised to 5ft. 10in., both Skylark and Desmond cleared it at the first trial amidst the loud cheers of the spectators. The bar was now raised to 6ft. In his first attempt Skylark brought down the bar. In the second trial he just touched it sufficiently to cause it to fall, and slightly stumbling on landing, threw Mrs. Elliott on to his neck, from which the rider made a wonderful recovery. In the third trial Skylark failed to clear the bar. It now rested with Desmond to win, if he could get over safely. He failed to do so at the first effort, but the next time he cleared it beautifully, thus winning the prize, and establishing a record for the highest lady's jump on that ground. The results of the contests are as follows:—

Equestrienne Contest over Hurdles, first prize 5 guineas, second prize 2 guineas, presented by the Commercial Union Assurance Company for the best equestrienne who has never won a prize at the society's show.—Mrs. W. J. Davis, 1; Miss Minnie Graham, 2; Miss H. Bartlett, 3.

A protest was entered against the winner, it being alleged that she had previously won a prize at one of the society's shows. The protest will be considered to-day.

Ladies' High Jump.—Special prize of £15, of which 5 guineas is presented by David Jones and Co.; second prize 7 guineas, third prize 3 guineas.—Mr. H. D. Morton's Desmond (Mrs. Stace), 6ft., 1; Mr. James Gilbert, jun.'s, Skylark (Mrs. Elliott), 5ft. 10in., 2; Mr. J. J. Garvan's Andover (Miss Garvan), 5ft. 4in., 3.

Mrs. Elliott was presented with a blue ribbon for her excellent riding over the 6ft. bar.

Bro. Clarke moved a resolution dealing with the necessity for pushing forward the work of temperance in the country districts.

The resolution was seconded by Bro. Glover, supported by Bros. Mitchell and Hampton, the Rev. J. Moody, Sister Burdett, and others, and carried unanimously.

Sister Burdett moved,—"That it is desirable that the Grand Lodge should publish a model programme for use by subordinate lodges in the arranging of entertainments."

Bro. Mitchell seconded the resolution, which was carried.

Sister Burdett, as convener of the State of the order committee, moved,—"That this Grand Lodge desires to place on record its high appreciation of the splendid services and self-denial exhibited by the Grand Chief Templar, the Rev. Canon Boyce, in connection with the furtherance of the objects of the order."

The motion was seconded by Bro. Mitchell, supported by several of the members, and carried unanimously.

Canon Boyce responded.

The Grand Superintendent of the Juvenile Temple brought under the notice of the lodge the necessity for increased efforts on the part of individual members to advance this particular branch of the order.

Several members supported the remarks of the Grand Superintendent, and it was resolved to make special efforts in the direction indicated.

Bro. Buckland presented his report in the matter of Sabbath schools being supplied with pledge cards. The report was adopted.

Bro. John T. Smith moved the following resolution:—"That two members of the executive represent this order at the meeting to be held to arrange for a temperance mission in this city to be conducted by Mr. Francis Murphy. That a committee be appointed to represent in regalia the order at all such mission meetings, to assist at pledge tables in taking the names and addresses of those signing, and endeavouring by appeal and visitation to bring them into the order. That this Grand Lodge vote the sum of £5 towards the expenses of such mission if required."

Bro. Gould seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Bro. H. J. Foreman moved,—"That in the opinion of this Grand Lodge it is highly desirable to so amend the licensing law as to prevent children under 16 years of age from being served by publicans."

GUTENBERG'S ACHIEVEMENT.

In the March "Century" Augustine Birrell thus characterises Gutenberg's epoch-making invention:—

The invention of movable types was the greatest distributive invention that ever was or probably ever can be made. It circulated knowledge among the children of men, and plays much the same part in human life as does the transmission of force in the world of physics. It was marvellous how quickly thought was circulated even in the age of manuscripts. A book like St. Augustine's "City of God" was soon copied thousands of times, and travelled through Europe after a quicker fashion than most printed books can to-day reasonably hope to do; but St. Augustine occupied a unique position, and hand-copying, though a great trade employing thousands of scribes, could never have fed the New Learning, or kept alive the Reformation. The age of Gutenberg was an age of ideas, and demanded books, just as our day is a day of mechanism, and demands cheap motion, telegraphy, and telephones. Gutenberg's first printing office is marked by a tablet. Go and gaze upon it, and think of the New York "Herald," the London "Times," and the Bible for twopence. The power of the press, coupled with the name of Johann Gensfleisch, commonly called Gutenberg, would be a fine toast, but I dare say Mr. Choate would respond to it after dinner in fitter terms than ever could the old-fashioned printer, who led a hard life and died dispossessed of his business and in poverty.

GREAT SAVING IN FUEL.

Peacock's Jam Factory, Alice-street, Newtown, 7th January, 1901.
The Secretary N.S.W. Fuel Economising Co., Ltd.
Dear Sir,—The Tubular Boiler which was set in brickwork a year ago according to your Patent System of Perfect Combustion gave me such perfect results that I gave you the order to rectify the brick setting of the other two similar boilers; these have now been completed some time ago. I am able to report my satisfaction at the results. One of the latter which had poor draught is now working equal to the best of them, and the smoke from both chimneys is practically consumed. I am justified to assume that after close testing of evaporative results the economy in fuel is at least 15 per cent. My demand for steam is so great that to be able to get a high efficiency from the boilers is very important, especially on a small consumption of fuel.
Yours faithfully,
GEO. B. EDWARDS, Managing Partner.

The Empire Electric Light Company, Limited, Sydney, 19th January, 1901.
The Secretary N.S.W. Fuel Economising Co., Ltd.
Dear Sir,—We regret being unable to furnish you with the details of the savings effected by the adoption of your system on our two boilers. We might say, however, that the combustion of our furnace gases is so complete as to rid us entirely of smoke from our chimney.
Yours truly,
THE EMPIRE ELECTRIC LIGHT CO., Ltd.

THE FEDERAL CITY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Is it to be a model city that Australia can be proud of, or a happy-go-lucky irregularity?

If it is seriously intended by the powers that be that the proposed city should be up to date, and avoid the insanitary conditions of cities erected before sanitation was thought of, then it is necessary to consider what has to be done in the planning out of a city that should be free from all the objectionable and unhealthy adjuncts that prevail in cities generally.

The site, being in New South Wales, should be at an elevation of at least 3000ft. above sea level, and higher if it can be obtained, as the climate at this altitude is healthy and bracing, and has the advantage of causing vegetable and tree growth that a lower level does not give. No doubt it will be found difficult to decide upon a suitable site, but if it should be found in its conformation and general features to allow for the following essentials it should be favourably considered. A good water supply is the first and most essential matter, and it should be an ample supply and capable of extension. It should be a gravitation supply, and of good quality with any minerals. The site should be situated so that the sewage from the city can be taken away to a sufficient distance so as not to cause any nuisance in the city, and be utilised on sewage farms and deodorised by the earth, and market gardens cultivated to take advantage of the moisture and fertilising portion of the sewage. The gasworks of the city should be placed so that the smoke nuisance should not pollute the atmosphere. The power-houses for trams and electric lighting should also be erected in a situation that the smoke from the chimney shafts should not vitiate the atmosphere, or they should be compelled to consume their own smoke. A suitable site is also required for a cemetery in such a position that the drainage from it should be away from and not towards the city. If the site provides for an eligible position for water, sewage, gas, electric power-house, cemetery, and garbage destructor, then the planning and laying out of the city should be proceeded with; but before all these things are done it would be advisable to have the proposed site or sites accurately surveyed, the conformation of the ground over the whole area carefully mapped out, every rise and depression minutely noted—the geological formation of the district stated, and the soils, subsoils, and strata below minutely proved and described—and good photographs taken of every portion of the territory to be utilised. Then, with all these particulars and any others thought desirable, it would be economy if the Federal Government were to offer a sum of £10,000 for the very best design that would suit the site and fulfil all the conditions imposed. No doubt it would be desirable that all competitors should see and examine the site, for a good comprehensive design would not only make the city a beautiful one, but [illegible] in the end the most economical, as no work would have to be done twice.

In laying out the city it is a question to consider whether the streets should not radiate from various centres outwards, these centres forming parks and recreation grounds, around which the numerous religious edifices should be artistically disposed, and the sewerage and water supply better arranged by this plan, as well as the electric tram service. The section allotted for Government offices and Parliamentary buildings should be centrally situated and placed picturesquely and artistically so as to please the eye as well as be convenient for communication. In order to avoid the evil of most cities—where it is little house, big house, hogstye, or barn sort of architecture—each street should have houses of similar accommodation, but not that the houses should be erected exactly alike, as room should be given for the talent of the architect, but no terraces should be allowed; and every house should have a garden both in front and back, and all houses detached. Some streets might have houses of larger accommodation and even larger grounds, but there should be regularity while allowing for various styles of architecture. All streets should be planted with shade trees, double lines on each side of the street, and all should be irrigated. At the elevation named the Oriental plane, elm, oak, horse chestnut, cedars, and pines would flourish and make the city a place of beauty, as many people [illegible] their summer residence. Every street should have a covered way under the centre, arched over and large enough to accommodate the sewers, water and gas pipes, telephone and power wires for trams, also wires for electric light and heat; every house should have a permanent pipe connected with the covered way for sewer, water, gas, electric light, and heat, all laid in such a manner that they can be got at for repairs without disturbing the sidewalk or road.

The sidewalks should be asphalted with mineral asphalt, and the roads laid with hardwood blocks resting on concrete foundations. No coal should be allowed throughout the city in any fireplace, only wood or coke, but cooking by electric heat preferred and promoted.

All the rainwater from roofs of houses to be utilised in watering trees or gardens, and the surplus allowed to flow to street gutters, but the overflow of baths, sinks, and other similar polluted water to be taken away with the sewage. All house garbage to be collected daily, as well as the sweepings of yards, stables, and paths, and carted away to the rubbish destructor and burnt forthwith.

By these means (with others that might be added) a federal city could be planned and constructed which, if properly grasped at the beginning and carried out, would in the end not only be the most economical but the most attractive and healthy city in the world.

I am, &c.,

JOHN YOUNG.

ARMOURED V. PROTECTIVE DECK CRUISERS.

"Engineering" says that the velocity of quick-firing guns has so greatly increased the penetration at long range, and the havoc they may do in the interior of a ship, that dependence could no longer be placed with confidence on the protective deck and minute sub-division of the interior of large cruisers. The metallurgist has, by the face hardening of armour, solved the difficulty formerly presented of allowing a sufficiency of weight for effective broadside armour protection without materially impairing the speed, which latter must always be more or less paramount in cruiser design. When the steel belt required to be 10in., as in the Australia class, the area had to be minimised because of the weight, and it was felt that a protective deck constituted a better compromise in the conflict between weight of armour and machinery for high speed. But first the Harvey, and next the Krupp, process of armour manufacture so hardened the steel that a 6-in. belting sufficed for most purposes in a cruiser, and here it may be said that experiments, notably those conducted by the United States Government, showed that with thicknesses under 5in. the Krupp plate gave a higher resisting power over the Harvey armour, relative to weight, than in the case of greater thicknesses; and the Admiralty have, therefore, been justified in reducing the thickness of armour in the later ships of the Kent class to 4in., especially as they get 23 knots on very moderate dimensions. These vessels are of 9800 tons displacement, but it is contended by some continental naval authorities that armour must be adopted in vessels of much smaller size, even down to 3000 tons displacement, and it remains to be seen whether this characteristic development of the moment will be extended to the vessels of the Challenger class—21-knot 5800-ton vessels, whose dimensions place them in the category of second-class cruisers. Speed must not be reduced, for there is no use of protection if the cruiser is too slow to overtake an indifferently armoured ship of the favourite commerce-destroying class of two or three years ago whose speed was the first great quality with gun power a close second. And the ship must not be too slow either to keep out of the reach of the heavily-armoured cruiser, whose presence she is to watch and report rather than to risk anything by engaging her. And this only brings one to the oft-repeated, but frequently forgotten, conclusion that in all cases the elements of design are dictated by the spirit of compromise.

THE LATE DROWNING FATALITY AT MURRIVERIE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A few words from an old resident at Bondi with a suggestion may not be deemed out of place at the present time. Amongst the earlier fishermen who frequented these old and favourite fishing grounds were David and James Pollock, who kept a dairy as far back as 1848 in Caledonia-street, Paddington; also a tanner named Shaw, who was employed at the Glenmore Tannery, Rushcutter Bay. These men (all expert fishermen, and men of powerful physique), the only regular frequenters of the spot at that time, commenced operations always by uncoiling a schnapper line, one end being fastened to a piece of wood tapering towards the handle, which could be flung out a distance of 30 or 40 yards, and which, floating, could be readily drawn in and out. The suggestion I have to make is that a couple of life-buoys with lines attached should be supplied by the Government (or local borough council) and placed in position at or near the wharf-like barrier of rock which forms the principal site of the Murriverie fishing grounds. There is abundance of shelter for such a purpose, and as for taking care of the articles in question the fishermen for their own sakes would paint and keep the tackle in order. The expense would be only the prime cost of the life-buoys and lines. I am inclined to think that if there had only been one of such life-buoys at hand when the above accident happened strenuous efforts would have been made by those on shore (who were placed in a most painful position) to rescue a man who, although unable to swim, yet managed to keep afloat, it is stated, for above a quarter of an hour.

I am, &c.,
F. O'BRIEN.

ANNUAL SESSION.

The twenty-first annual session of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales (Independent Order of Oddfellows) was commenced at the Oddfellows' Temple, Elizabeth-street, yesterday. The Grand Master, Bro. G. Fitzpatrick, presided. The following were also present:—Bro. G. Wunsch (Grand Warden), Bro. G. T. Clarke (Grand Secretary), Bro. J. T. Jay (Grand Treasurer), Bros. A. W. M'Kewon, J. W. Brightfield, and F. H. Barnett (Grand Lodge Trustees), Bro. W. Cornford (Grand Chaplain), Bro. R. J. S. Bryant (Grand Guardian), Bro. J. H. Hughes (Grand Conductor), Bro. M. Brennan (Junior Past Grand Master), and representatives from 73 lodges. An apology was received from Bro. G. Dyer (Deputy Grand Master). The Grand Master in calling the session to order delivered an address in which he referred to the auspicious occasion upon which they met, being the majority term of the order in the colony.

It was reported that charters had been granted to the following new lodges, viz.:—The United lodges, Golden Gate and Abon-Ben-Aden, with the title of Sydney Lodge, No. 1; Helensburgh, No. 81; Henty, No. 82; Wellington, No. 83; Lockhart, No. 84; Chatswood, No. 85; Culcairn, No. 86; and Ganmain, No. 87.

Bro. J. T. Finlay was appointed recording secretary.

Several communications were received and read by the Grand Secretary, including congratulatory letters from the Grand Lodges of South and Western Australia of the I.O.O.F., the Manchester Unity Order, I.O.O.F.; the Ancient Order of Foresters, and the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society.

The Grand Lodge was moved into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering the various reports. Bro. T. Casey was elected chairman.

The Grand Master's report, which was of considerable length, referred to the progress of the order, and to the interest taken by the members in keeping the order in the van of friendly societies. He was very pleased to state that their progress numerically had been second to no other friendly society in the State. Whilst they had had the pleasure of instituting seven new lodges, they had also had the pleasure of introducing into their fold a large number of gentlemen, amongst them being some of the foremost statesmen—Sir William Lyne (Premier) and the Hon. B. R. Wise (Attorney-General), as well as several other representative gentlemen. The introduction of gentlemen holding such high and honourable positions in the State into any friendly society augured well for the societies as a whole. It would be the means of educating those brothers up to the wants and requirements of the societies, and would prove invaluable to their institution whenever they sought the aid of the Parliament in legislation. It appeared to him that there was a strong prejudice in some quarters against institutions such as theirs, and the only effective way of wearing that prejudice out was to keep on until such time as the whole of the important legislators in the State were admitted into one society or the other. Then, and not till then, would they be able to get that measure of credit to which they were fairly entitled for the good work that they had done, and were continuing to do. References were made in the report to the dispute between the Grand Lodge of New South Wales and the Grand Lodge of Australasia, and the hope was expressed that justice would be done to the New South Wales Grand Lodge at the next session of the Grand Lodge of Australasia, to take place next year.

The report of the Grand Secretary stated that during the year five new lodges had been opened, and that it was anticipated that two others would be opened at an early date. During the year the following members were admitted, viz.:—By initiation, 1254; reinstated, 35; clearance, 62; total, 1351. During the same period, the following had ceased membership, viz.:—By arrears, 530; clearances, 96; death, 55; resignation and expulsion, 26; total 707. Deducting those who had dropped membership from those who had been admitted, the result to the order was a net gain of 644, being equal to 11·05 per cent. on the previous year's number. The numerical strength of the order in this jurisdiction was 6469. The revenue from all sources amounted to £26,409 14s 2d, made up as follows:—Grand Lodge, £5219 16s 5d, subordinate lodges, £21,141 8s 3d; degree lodges, £18 9s 6d. The expenditure of the Grand and subordinate lodges amounted to £21,228 9s 11½d, viz.:—Grand Lodge, £2875 5s 8d; and subordinate lodges, £18,353 3s 5½d. The total net funds of the jurisdiction now amounted to £52,495, being an increase of £4773 18s 1d upon the previous year, equal to 10 per cent. The total net funds equalled £8 1s 6d per member, which, considering the age of the order in the jurisdiction, was most satisfactory.

The mortality returns disclosed during the past year that there were 77 deaths, viz., 49 members and 28 members' wives. The reports of the grand treasurer, finance committee, and trustees were also presented.

It was resolved to refer the clauses in the Grand Secretary's report dealing with the initiatory work, the Australian Triple Links, investments, investment of subordinate lodge funds, the Friendly Societies Act, incidental fund indebtedness and expansion to the Grand Lodge session for further consideration. The other reports were adopted, and progress reported.

The Grand Lodge then resumed business. A vote of thanks was passed to the chairman of committees on the motion of Bro. H. Davis, seconded by Bro. A. Upton.

The following motions submitted by the Lambton Lodge, No. 4, were dealt with:—1. That section eight of constitution be amended by inserting after the word "an" in first line the word "bi-annually" instead of "annual." Negatived. That a guarantee society be established in connection with the order. The motion was under discussion when the proceedings were adjourned until 10 a.m. to-day.

SMOKE CONCERT.

There was a very large number of members of various friendly societies at the smoke concert which took place at the Oddfellow's Temple, Elizabeth-street, last evening. The Grand Master (Bro. G. Fitzpatrick) presided. Amongst those present were Bro. G. Dyer (Deputy Grand Master) and Bro. G. T. Clarke (Grand Secretary), Bro. J. M'Menemy (Past Grand Master), Bro. J. A. M'Keown (Past Grand Master), Bro. H. F. Barnett (Past Grand Master), and Bro. G. Wunsch, Grand Warden (I.O.O.F.); Bro. T. Kemp, Grand Secretary, I.O.O.F., (Manchester Unity); Bro. T. J. Iredale, Grand Secretary, (Protestant Alliance Friendly Society); Bro. Pope, Grand Master (National Independent Order of Oddfellows); Bro. T. Henderson, Acting-Grand Master (Protestant Alliance Friendly Society); Bro. W. Martin (Australian Natives' Association); Bro. W. Gates and Bro. F. Gates (Independent Order of Oddfellows).

Mr. W. Martin proposed the toast of "The Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F. New South Wales," and in doing so referred to the many advantages gained by becoming united to friendly societies, and the pleasure it gave him to hear of the progress of the order to which they belonged.

The toast was received with enthusiasm. The chairman, in replying to the toast, referred to the growth of the order during the first 21 years of its existence, which they were now celebrating. (Applause.) The speaker also spoke of the usefulness of friendly societies to the community, and the claims they had to Government recognition.

Mr. G. Dyer submitted the toast of "The Visitors," which was well received.

Messrs. T. Kemp, Pope, T. Henderson, and T. J. Iredale each acknowledged the compliment.

During the evening refreshments were provided, and a programme of music, songs, &c., was carried out under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Walker. Mr. M. Fitzgerald acted as accompanist.

TROUBLE ABOUT A NECKLET.

POLICE COURT PROCEEDINGS.

At the Water Police Court yesterday afternoon James Exton, 38, clerk, was charged that he did, at Sydney, on January 16 last, steal a necklet valued at £2, the property of Arthur Coningham.

The prosecutor conducted his own case.

Mr. Bull appeared for the accused.

Detective William Clough stated that on the morning of the 19th ultimo the accused went to the Water Police Court and gave himself up. Witness read a warrant to him, and charged him with the theft of a necklet, but he made no reply.

Constable William Thompson said that on the 19th ultimo by virtue of a searchwarrant he went to No. 199 Oxford-street, occupied by one Mr. Cummins. He went to a room occupied by Miss Sandeman, and she handed him a necklet, which Mr. Coningham claimed as his property.

Arthur Coningham said that he was residing at Jamieson-street, Sydney. The necklet (produced) was his, and he last saw it early in January. It was then in a large envelope in his portmanteau, which was in a room which he occupied at the accused's house. Witness left accused's house on March 11. He was writing in a room at accused's house on March 9, and Exton was lying on the couch. He made some remarks in connection with the necklet, and mentioned Miss Sandeman's name. Witness asked a few questions. On the following Tuesday or Wednesday, when he was in the Divorce Court, he saw an envelope which appeared to be the one the necklet was in, with some writing on it. He then applied for a search warrant, and, accompanied Constable Thompson, went to the house where Miss Sandeman was residing. They went into her room, and she went to a drawer and took out a necklet which was not the one. She then went to a box and took out the one produced, which witness claimed as his property. On the following morning witness went to the Water Police Court and claimed the necklet as his property, and applied for a warrant for Exton's arrest.

By Mr. Bull: He last saw the necklet early in January. He went to live at Exton's in October and remained there until the morning of March 11. Witness had a room there, and paid Exton's wife. About three months ago he was a traveller for the Widows' Fund, and he had earned about 50s a week. Besides that he had received gifts from friends. Witness was living with Exton when the first trial came on. He had not borrowed any money from Exton, and did not pay him any in December. When he left Exton's on March 11, he was fairly friendly with him. Witness did not know whether Exton had been subpoenaed by either side for the first divorce trial. It was the end of the first week that he knew that Exton was to be a witness for Dr. O'Haran in the second trial. He did not remember ever having asked Exton to pawn the necklet. He had not given the photos of himself and wife to Exton to sell to the newspapers.

Mr. Bull then showed witness a cheque. He said that the signature looked like his, but he did not remember having drawn the cheque. He had never told Mr. Abigail that he sold the necklet to Exton for 30s. He would swear that he had not had a conversation with him about the necklet.

Witness was then asked if he was carrying a revolver, and replied that he was not. He had no objection to being searched.

Ernestine Sandeman, a single woman, residing at No. 199 Oxford-street, said that she remembered Constable Thompson and Mr. Coningham going to her place on the 19th ultimo. The constable produced a document, and witness handed a necklet to him. She had received the necklet from Mr. Exton about four months ago.

By Mr. Bull: The necklet was left with her before Christmas. She had known Exton for about 18 months.

By Mr. Coningham: Exton had told her that the necklet belonged to his mother.

At this stage the case was adjourned until 2.30 p.m. to-day.

LITERARY AND DEBATING SOCIETIES' UNION.

COMMONWEALTH CONVENTION.

The second convention of the debating societies of the State was opened last evening at the New Masonic Hall, Castlereagh-street, when delegates from many debating societies attended to discuss matters affecting current politics. The election of officers was the first business, and the following were elected, while Mr. Frederick W. Landau presided:—President, Alderman S. E. Lees, M.L.A.; vice-presidents, Senator R. E. O'Connor, Messrs. G. H. Reid, K.C., M.H.R., J. E. Birt, W. H. Forrest, B.A., LL.B., P. J. Gandon; clerk of the House, Mr. A. A. Laird.

Senator R. E. O'Connor presided at the commencement of the debates, and expressed the hope that the convention might be extended so as to embrace the societies of the other States next year. The sentiment was applauded.

Mr. G. L. Anderson (Petersham) proposed,—"That any interference with the Constitution of the Legislative Council of the State of New South Wales would be detrimental to the interests of the people of the State."

Mr. P. J. Gandon (School of Arts, Sydney) opened the debate. He said that in this progressive age no one cared to admit that any institution existed which was not susceptible to reform. The press, the pulpit, and the platform were dealt with in turn. The jury system—even the Church itself—did not escape, and the modern democrat was nothing if not a constitution monger. With that class reform of the Upper House meant its abolition; yet he knew of no institution that had so conserved the interests and rights of the people more than the revising Chamber or Upper House. It was the elected assembly of England which endeavoured to overthrow the reasonable terms of the Restoration Settlement. It was the same body which closed the door on religious compromise, and drove from the Church multitudes of earnest, serious-minded Nonconformists, and it was the Lower House which was responsible for the persecution which followed. The speaker concluded with quotations from the resort of the Historical Commission of the House of Lords.

Mr. H. G. O'Leary (St. Francis', Paddington) proposed as an amendment,—"That membership of the Legislative Council should be for a term, and the election to the Chamber be on the same basis as election to the Legislative Assembly." He said that the Upper House had degenerated largely into a species of benevolent asylum for political waifs and strays, and a refuge for political derelicts in search of a hospitable shore. He considered that the people should be the only power to elect the Legislative Council, the members of which were at present appointed for life. He believed in a radical reform of the Upper House.

Mr. W. Stoddart (Crow's Nest) seconded the amendment, and said that the people at present had no check upon the members of the Upper House, who were out of touch with the wants of the people.

Senator R. E. O'Connor said he was at one time afraid during one speaker's address of being called upon to decide whether he himself was a political waif and stray or a derelict in search for a haven of rest, but Mr. O'Leary had qualified his statements and saved him. (Laughter.) The question was one to be decided on the principles underlying it, and one had to consider what purpose the Upper House served. In the Federal Constitution the Upper House or Senate represented the States as States, wherein the latter could receive effective representation. When unified legislation was considered other matters had to be dealt with. The development of the British Constitution was most interesting. At one time a large number of people were not represented at all, and the growth of representation had been gradual. The only real source of power should be the people themselves. He would not admit any disability of sex—(hear, hear)—the only disabilities which should exist were those which would act upon criminals, insane persons, or those under age. Every other adult should be represented in the power that made the laws. The Upper House was a check upon hasty legislation, but the nominee system was an anomaly, and in democratic communities an absurdity. He did not know if the elective Upper House of Victoria had been a success or not. (No, no.) No Upper House should represent a class. If elected, on the other hand, the Upper House would be on the same footing as the Lower, and an elaborate system for the solution of deadlocks would have to be devised. The Upper House was one of the most effective safeguards against hasty legislation, when it was not too strong to prevent the will of the people from being carried out. (Applause.)

Mr. J. E. Birt then took the chair.

Mr. W. H. Hammond (Summer Hill) asked what guarantee the people of England had that the members of the House of Lords were men of ability. He was convinced of the necessity for reform of the Upper House.

Miss Golding (Sydney Debating Club) said that a great number of the Upper Houses of America were elective. She would like to see the councillors elected for a fixed time, and be called upon to meet the electors, say every two years. At present the Upper House represented the frozen intellect of the State. It had mutilated the Municipal Bill and thrown out two democratic measures in the Coal Mines and Legal Practitioners' bills.

Mr. N. H. Walden (Sydney Debating Club) found it difficult to reconcile the anomalies existent between the two Houses. He favoured nominees for a term of years, and not for life, and emphasised the value of the legislative acumen displayed by the old members of the Upper House on many occasions.

Messrs. W. J. M'Encroe (Crow's Nest), J. G. MacLaren (Summer Hill), A. B. Adams (Petersham), S. A. Rose (Sydney Debating Club), Cunningham (Paddington and Woollahra), W. H. Webb (All Saints', Petersham), Miss B. Golding (Sydney Debating Club), P. T. Finnegan (Summer Hill), M'Court (Crow's Nest), T. O'Reilly (Sydney School of Arts), R. Wilson (Paddington and Woollahra), Dowell (Sydney Debating Club), P. E. Tighe (Summer Hill), H. A. Scott (Balmain), and R. E. Huntley also spoke.

Mr. Finnegan moved,—"That the only reform of the constitution acceptable to this constitution is the abolition of the Upper House and the introduction of the referendum." The motion was seconded. This motion was negatived after reply by Mr. Gandon.

Mr. O'Leary's motion was also decided in the negative by 20 to 17.

The original motion was then put, and on division it was negatived by 26 to 13.

It was decided to admit the public free to the conference in future.

The conference adjourned to the following day at 6.30 p.m.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of the Horticultural Society of New South Wales was held at the Queen's Hall, last night. Mr. C. Zeuch occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance. There was an excellent display of flowers, the chrysanthemums and roses being particularly fine.

The following awards were made:—

A Division.—Twelve miscellaneous blooms: Mrs. W. Sayers, 1. Twelve roses (continuous competition): Mr. A. Loudin, 38 points, 1; Mr. G. Kershaw, 35 points, 2. Twelve chrysanthemums: Mr. R. Harper, 1; Mr. S. Willetts, 2.

B Division.—Six miscellaneous blooms: Mr. J. Yorke, 1; Mrs. Drummond, 2. Six roses (continuous competition): Mr. N. Lockyer, 21 points, 1; Mrs. Drummond, 15½ points, 2. Six chrysanthemums: Mr. W. C. Fripps, 1; N. Marks, 2. Best spray (ladies): Mrs. and Miss Drummond, equal.

In the long competitive class the floral committee awarded special certificates to Mr. G. Karslake for two seedling cactus dahlias called "Midnight" and "Dairy Maid," and a similar certificate was granted for a seedling bouvardia designated "Countess of Hopetoun."

Mr. George Daniels, of Goulburn, sent down six seedling chrysanthemums, which were highly commended.

THE REGALIA.

What may be called the original Regalia of England (the London "World" writes) do not exist. They were defaced and broken up, and the materials of which they were composed were sold by the Roundheads during the Great Rebellion. On the Restoration an entirely new set of Royal ensigns and ornaments, with the exception, perhaps, of the ampulla and spoon employed in the ceremony of anointment, were manufactured for the coronation of Charles II. by Sir Robert Vyner, Lord Mayor of London, the King's goldsmith, under orders from Lord Sandwich, Master of the Great Wardrobe, and Sir Gilbert Talbot, Master of the Jewel House. But the ancient names were still retained by the modern reproductions, and thus historical continuity has been at any rate nominally preserved for them from the time of the Confessor. If fact rather than tradition were to be regarded, however, the chief among them would be associated not so much with the name of St. Edward as with that of the "Merry Monarch."

St. Edward's Crown is a golden crown of two arches crossing, and rising from a rim or circle of gold over a cap of crimson velvet lined with white taffeta and turned up with ermine. The bases of the arches on each side are covered with a cross patee, and between the crosses are fleur-de-lis of gold which rise out of the circle, the whole being splendidly enriched with precious stones. On the top at the intersection of the arches, which are somewhat depressed at that point, is a globe of gold surmounted by a cross patee adorned with jewels, and especially by three large oval pearls, one of which is on the top of the cross, and the others pendent from each limb. This crown has been more or less extensively altered for use by successive sovereigns, and Mr. Davenport says that, "whether it is actually worn or not, it would always be present at the coronation, as it is the 'official' Crown of England." On the accession of George IV. a new State crown was made. It was large, according to Mr. Jones, lodier, and more splendid than former crowns, in elevation 15in.; the arches instead of sinking in their centre were raised to a point, embossed and edged with brilliants, supporting an orb of brilliants 6in. in circumference, the whole valued at over £150,000. William IV. also seems to have had a State crown especially made for him; but it was much too large for Queen Victoria, and therefore another, and more beautiful, though smaller and lighter crown was constructed for her Majesty's coronation. Besides the State crowns there has always been, from the reign of Charles II. at least, a less weighty crown for the monarch to wear after the actual ceremonies of the coronation are over. St. Edith's crown, with which Queens-Consort are inaugurated, is named in remembrance of the Confessor's wife, but was really made for Mary of Modena, and altered for Mary II., the former the second wife, and the latter the eldest daughter of James II. It is of much the same form as the King's crown, being of two arches on a cap of purple velvet turned up with ermine or minever, and ornamented with diamonds of great value. The Queen-Consort has also a diadem or circlet which was made for Mary of Modena.

The Sceptre Royal or Sceptre with the Cross, which is carried by the King in his right hand at this coronation, is made of gold, and is about 2ft. 9in. long. At the bottom it is set with rubies, emeralds, and small diamonds, and the shaft is of burnished gold wreathed or twisted. The top formerly rose into a fleur-de-lis of six leaves, three of which were upright, and the others pendent, out of which issued a mound or globe formed of a large amethyst, ornamented around with diamonds, and on it is a cross patee of diamonds, with a large stone in the middle. But George IV. had an elaborate design in general form resembling an arched crown, jewelled with coloured gems and diamonds, substituted for the fleur-de-lis. The Rod with the Dove, or Virge, is about 3ft. 7in. in length. The pomel is set with a circle of diamonds, and the stem with various precious stones. At the top is a globe or mound encircled with diamonds surmounted by a cross, on which is placed a dove of white enamel with extended wings. This sceptre is delivered into the left hand of the King at the coronation. The Queen's sceptre with the cross is of gold set with diamonds and other precious stones, and is about 2ft. 10in. long. At the top is a mound surmounted by a cross patee issuing from a fleur-de-lis, but the stem is plain and not twisted. The Virge, or Rod of the Queen, which she bears in her left hand at the coronation, is nearly 3ft. 2in. long, and is made of ivory. The pomel and garniture and the mound and cross are of gold, and the dove is of white enamel. St. Edward's Staff, which is not carried by the King, but is borne before him going to and coming from his coronation, is a large golden staff 4ft. 7½in. in length, with a pike of steel at the lower end [illegible] in length, and at the top a mound and cross in gold.

The orb, or mound, is a ball of gold 6in. in diameter, encompassed by a fillet of pearls and precious stones, with a similar band crossing its upper hemisphere. From the middle of the last rises a large amethyst of oval shape, which forms the base of a cross patee adorned with jewels, with three large pearls at the extremities. The height of the orb and cross together is 11in. The first or principal sword which is borne before the King at his coronation is the Sword of Mercy, called Curtana, but whence the name was derived is matter of conjecture. It is a flat sword, the end of the blade being square, about 32in. long and 2in. broad. The handle is steel, covered with silver wire, with a cross at the end of gilded steel. The second sword is the Sword of Justice to the Spirituality, and is nearly like the former, but has an obtuse point; and the third sword, or Sword of Justice to the Temporality, is similar to the last, but has a sharp point. The Sword of State, with which the King is girded, is more richly ornamented than the others, and has a scabbard of crimson velvet with plates of gold on it bearing the Royal arms and badges. It is not, however, part of the Regalia, but belongs personally to the Sovereign. The King's ring, designated by some old writers the "Wedding Ring of England," is of plain gold set with a large table ruby, on which the Cross of St. George is engraved. The Queen's ring is also set with a large ruby and 16 smaller ones around it. The Royal spurs, known as St. George's spurs, are the emblems of Knighthood or Chivalry. They are made of gold curiously wrought, have no rowels, and have straps of crimson velvet embroidered in gold.

The ampulla, in which the holy oil for the anointment of the King and Queen-Consort is contained, is made in the form of an eagle with expanded wings standing on a pedestal. Mr. Davenport thinks that the body of the bird is old, and that Sir Robert Vyner added the pedestal and wings when he had to remake the Regalia for Charles II., and went over the whole surface of the figure with a graver. The head of the eagle unscrews so that the consecrated unguent can be poured into it, and it is poured out through an orifice in the beak. The spoon, into which the holy oil is dropped at the coronation, is also of gold, and bears indications of having been enamelled. It is extremely thin, and is supposed to be in part as old as the twelfth century. It and the ampulla, indeed, are the only objects among the Regalia which have any claim to antiquity, the ampulla having been used, it is believed, for the first time, at the coronation of Henry IV., in 1399.

THE WONDERFUL CAUCASUS.

From the Oxus to the Arctic Circle and from Kars to Kamschatka, the Czar rules many strange peoples and countries, but (Henry Norman, M.D., writes in "Scribner's") the Caucasus is the strangest of all. Indeed, anyone who averred that the Caucasus is the most interesting land of the world would be able to back his opinion with good reasons. The range is a wall across the narrow isthmus which joins Europe and Asia, and the Gorge of Dariel is the door in this wall through which have come almost all the migrating peoples between East and West since men began to move at all. From many of these migrations stragglers remained, some in one valley, some in another, and their new homes lent themselves so well to defence against all after-comers that the original settlers were able to increase and multiply and keep their race intact. Hence the Caucasus contains to-day the direct and not greatly changed descendants of peoples otherwise lost in the mists of remote antiquity. It is, in the words of Mr. Douglas Freshfield, the first explorer and climber of the mountains, "an ethnological museum where the invaders of Europe, as they travelled westward to be manufactured into nations, left behind samples of themselves in their raw condition." The Germans, destroyers of sacred and profane legend, do not accept this theory, and Professor Virchow declares that it is disproved by the fact that the Caucasus could not have been a highway when the icefields came down lower than they do now, and that the languages of the Caucasus are not related to languages elsewhere, as would have been the case if the speakers of them were remnants of greater nations that had passed on. But the [illegible] of human samples is so attractive, and the races of the Caucasus are so original and peculiar, that for my part I share on this occasion the willingness of the American humorist to "know some things that are not so."

Eight miles from Vladikavkaz is the posting station of Balta; 11 miles farther is Lars; and five miles farther is the world-famous Gorge of Dariel, the "Caucasus Gates" of Pliny, the dark and awful defile between Europe and Asia. Gradually, as we drive on, the hills rise and close in on us till at length they fall almost sheer to the edge of the rushing Terek and the narrow road, leaving only just room for these at the bottom of a rocky cleft, 5000ft. deep. The air strikes chill as a vault; not a ray of sunshine enters; the driver stoops low and lashes his horses; instinctively we lapse into silence. The geologist calls this gorge a "fault," for it is not a pass over the mountain chain, but a rent clear across it. To the imaginative traveller, however, it is a fit scene for the most wonderful highway in history. Seventy years ago it was a perilous road, for avalanches, or the sudden outburst of pent-up glacial streams, swept it from end to end, but the Russians have spent 20 million dollars upon it and made it safe. In 1877 nearly all their troops and stores for carrying the war into Turkey and Asia came by this road, and it will be used again for the same purpose, although to a much less degree, for there is now direct railway connection from Moscow to Baku, at one end of the Trans-Caucasian Railway, and therefore to Kars itself, via Tiflis; and equally to Kars from Batum, at the other end, to which fortified port steamers would bring troops and supplies from Odessa and Novorossisk in the Black Sea. The gorges of the Yang-tsze may be as impressive—I have not seen them—but there is nothing in Europe which produces so profound an effect of dread upon the mind as this lonely, silent, gloomy, cold abyss of Dariel. You do not wonder that any people holding it could bar the way to the rest of the world—the only ground for surprise is that before the present road was constructed anybody ever got through it at all. It even said, "Thus far and no farther," to Rome herself, and marked the limit of her dominion.

CHURCH NEWS.

ST. JOHN'S, PARRAMATTA.

The Easter Day services in this church were made unusually attractive. There were celebrations of the Holy Communion 7, 8, and 11 o'clock, all of which were largely attended, as well as those at the mission churches. Archdeacon Gunther conducted the morning service, being assisted by the Revs. A. H. Champion and J. Cooper, and preached on the Resurrection and its teachings. The music was under the direction of Mr. Alfred Barry, the anthem being "As it Began to Dawn," the "Te Deum" (Dyke's), and the "Benedictus" (Langdon's). At the evening service the anthem was "The Lord is my Strength," and a special solo was sung, "O Divine Redeemer." The church was crowded. The building was decorated throughout by the ladies of the parish.

LEICHHARDT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

A successful cake and lolly fair, organised by some of the senior girls of the Leichhardt Congregational Sunday-school, was held on Saturday afternoon and evening last. The stalls were nicely decorated, and were as follows:—Cake stall, No. 1, Misses L. Jeffreys and E. Ashton; cake stall, No. 2, Miss W. Ayling; lolly stall, Miss C. Salisbury; refreshment stall, Misses A. Ayling and A. Lewis. An interesting and amusing side show, consisting of cinematographs, electric battery, &c., was presided over by Misses Shewan and Messrs. Shewan and Stowe. A musical programme was contributed to by Misses Hodgkinson, Pidgeon, Hanson, and Morton, Mr. J. Stell, and Master Herring. The church renovation fund, to which the proceeds are to be devoted, should be materially augmented by the efforts of the young people.

The collection taken up on Easter Sunday, in aid of the new building fund in connection with St. Clement's Church, Mosman, amounted to £237.

ROYAL MOURNING.

In their deep, sincere sense of personal loss, and in their desire to pay every outward mark of reverence for the memory of their beloved Queen, the whole nation (the "Daily Graphic" of January 26 writes) had anticipated the Earl Marshal's intimation that all persons were expected to put themselves into deep mourning. No Sovereign, we may be certain, was ever more sincerely mourned than Queen Victoria, though there have been Royal deaths which have occasioned more violent outward demonstrations of grief. We have become a more self-restrained people than of yore. Formerly the news of a Queen's death and a Royal funeral were marked with loud weeping, groans, and even shrieks. When Queen Elizabeth was carried to her tomb the city of Westminster was thronged with crowds, not only in the streets and windows, but on the leads and gutters. The waxen effigy of the Queen was, according to old custom, laid on her coffin, and at the sight of it there was a burst of lamentation loud and continuous. So late as the death of the luckless Queen Caroline of Brunswick the women of her household upon hearing that she was really dead uttered piercing shrieks in the corridors adjoining the death chamber. The quietude of the last sad scene of our great Queen's life, and the mournful silence with which her people received the dreaded intelligence of their loss, contrast very favourably with the demonstrative exhibitions of former days, and symbolise a deeper sense of affliction and affection.

The period of public mourning has not at present been prescribed, and there is no fear that it will be deemed too long, as were sundry general mournings ordered by other Sovereigns. In 1768, for instance, the city of London sent a formal remonstrance to George III. on the lengthy Court mourning, which materially affected trade, and to this the King replied that he was pleased to order that in future the mourning should be shorter.

The mourning ordered for ladies and gentlemen of the Court has not very materially altered during the past 200 years, but it should be remembered that violet, and not black, was Royal mourning down to the reign of James II. Napoleon III. was the last European ruler to adopt this fashion. The commands issued for general mourning at the deaths of the Georges requested the people to put themselves "into the deepest mourning, Norwich crapes excepted." On the death of William IV. a change was made from "deepest" to "decent mourning," and this was the expression used for the mourning for the late Prince Consort; now the older form has been reverted to.

With the exception that the antiquated "bombasin" has been superseded by the term "woollen material," ladies at Court have now received practically the same orders for their first Court mourning as heretofore. The details have not been so minutely given in the latest order, but the black gowns trimmed with crape, relieved only by plain muslin or lawn, the chamois—or, as we now term it, suede—shoes and gloves, and the crape fans are still de rigueur. The "crape hoods" of yore have their modern equivalent in the crape toques or bonnets. The long crape veils, reaching to the foot, used to be part of the orthodox mourning for the Ladies in Waiting, and were worn by them at the Duchess of Kent's funeral. "Black paper fans" are mentioned in the Court mourning ordered for the Duke of Brunswick in 1815, and another quaint reading comes in the order for the change of Court mourning for Princess Charlotte, when ladies "in undress" were permitted to wear "grey or white lustrings, tabbies, or damask."

The history of Court mourning in various countries is very interesting and curious. Perhaps the most senseless of all customs was that which doomed French Royal widows to remain immured in a room draped with black and splashed over with white dots, symbolising tears. To attempt even to look out of a window during the 40 or 50 days of this enforced mourning was regarded as a grave breach of decorum, and one can only hope that the poor widows were provided with some form of entertainment to relieve the monotony of the dreary period. A distinctly precious contribution to Court mourning was the pure white attire donned by Henry VIII. for Anne Boleyn after he had beheaded her.

The heaviest Court mourning is suspended for a coronation or Royal marriage or christening, although her late Majesty never left off her mourning at either Royal christenings or weddings. This was, however, an exception to the rules prevailing in most countries, and all will recollect with what startling rapidity the weeds worn for the late Czar of Russia were thrown aside for magnificent raiment when his successor was married to Princess Alix soon after the prolonged burial of his father. At the ceremony the recently widowed Empress of Russia sacrificed her own inclinations in accordance with the custom of her adopted country, and in spite of her bereavement wore the gorgeous Court robes and superb jewels distinctive of the Russian Imperial Court—a splendour which she has ever since discarded for mourning.

Turning to our own country, it is surprising to learn that for one of the least appreciated of Queens—Catherine of Braganza—an entire year of Court mourning was observed, as has been ordered for our late Queen. Very stormy indeed were the scenes caused by a difference of opinion on the proper mourning to be worn for Queen Mary. Queen Elizabeth took upon herself to provide black cloth for cloaks for Sir Arthur Melville and M. Bourgoine, and also for the dresses of the ladies. These gowns were accepted, but when the masterful young Queen further occupied herself with sending a milliner to make "orthodox mourning headdresses" for the ladies instead of those they had provided, the said ladies flatly refused to don any but their own, and carried their point, following their mistress to her tomb in Peterborough Cathedral attired in their own style. A pretty item in the mourning worn by the ladies of her Court for Queen Anne was a heart-shaped locket, containing a "lock of the late Queen's fine silky hair."

Happily simpler tastes now prevail, and as far as the general public are concerned their mourning will be only such as is dictated by their deep and sincere love for the departed Queen.

ANCESTORS OF THE KING.

Despite the critical school we (the "Daily Graphic" of January 30 says) are now learning not to despise tradition. Mingled with a due proportion of fact, it supplies us with some remarkable results when applied to the Royal pedigree. For instance, few are perhaps aware that his Majesty can trace descent from Gyges the Lydian and Cyrus the Great. Now this is the way it is done. Fourth from Gyges in descent came Croesus, King of Lydia, who had a sister named Arienis. She married Astyages, King of Media, whose granddaughter Bardane married Cyrus the Great, B.C. 559. Of these two was descended Artaxerxes Mnemon, King of Persia, of whom came Arsaces Magnus Tiridates, King of Parthia; from whom Tiridates, King of Armenia, and of this house Basil, the Macedonian Emperor of Constantinople, claimed descent. A descendant of his was Luitgarda, daughter of Basil II., Emperor of the East, who married Arnolph, Count of Holland. From him the line is through the Royal House of France to Isabel of Angoulesme, who married King John of England, of whom the King is descended in the female line.

Further back than this the unblushing genealogist will probably hesitate to proceed, though there have been those who did not flinch from tracing the Royal House back to Noah through the ancient House of Norway, to say nothing of Elidure, King of Britain, B.C. 250, and the wonderful French pedigrees leading to Antenor, King of the Cimmerians, B.C. 443; while at the elaborate ingenuity of the Irish pedigree to Noah through Magog and Japhet even the most robust imagination stands aghast. Of more genuine interest, however, is the traditional strain leading from the house of the Emperor Trajan. Theodosius, Emperor of the East, claimed descent from the family of Ulpius Trajanus, though not, of course, from the great Emperor himself. Of him was descended Eudoxia, married first to Valentinian III., and afterwards to Genseric, the Vandal (a mistake probably for Eudoxia, the daughter, who actually did marry Huneric, the son of Genseric), whence came Dobrogera, who married Dieteric, of the line of Harderic, the Saxon, direct male ancestor of his present Majesty.

It is not necessary, however, to tread on such doubtful grounds to find many characters of interest among the ancestors of the Royal House. Charlemagne is, of course, led back to by more than one channel. Ruric, founder of the Russian Empire, sends a trickle of blood through the Royal Houses of Poland, Bohemia, and France; the Emperors Nicephorus and Michaels I., through the Counts of Cleve; Theodorus Lascaris, through the Royal House of Hungary, which in itself brings a descent from Attila the Hun and the Emperor Honorius, the Comneni and Angeli, through the House of Navarre while a thousand other Royal Families add their drops to the stream.

A QUESTION OF TWOPENCE.

At Southport County Court on February 26 (the "Westminster Gazette" says) Judge Butler gave his decision in an action brought by William Betterfield, a Blackburn chemist, against the Lancashire and Yorkshire railway. The plaintiff left a pair of gloves in a railway carriage, and when he went for them next day the company's officials demanded twopence as the lost luggage fee. This he refused, and he brought an action to recover the value of the gloves. The judge held that the company had a lien on the gloves, and found against the plaintiff, but gave leave to appeal.

Flowers and flower-culture are now to be added to the many tariff questions at issue between Germany and Italy. Hitherto the German market has been supplied by native growers, except in the cold season, when Italian blooms were imported. These are now gradually ousting those of German growth, even in the summer season, and a strong demand for protection against Italian floriculturists has become a prominent feature in the Agrarian movement.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL PROVIDENT SOCIETY.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—
I beg to inform you that I am again a CANDIDATE for the DIRECTORSHIP of your Society. Owing to my long and continuous occupation of the office of Speaker of the Legislative Assembly my health began to fail, and I determined to abandon politics altogether, and take the rest which I was advised long since to take, and which I am happy to say is gradually restoring me to my normal health. Having given up politics entirely, I shall be better able to attend to your interests than I have been even heretofore, and I trust that the confidence which you have bestowed upon me for so many years may be continued.
J. P. ABBOTT.

PAINLESS DENTISTRY,
by the aid of
"CATAPHORESIS."

TEETH can now be prepared for Filling Absolutely Without Pain by the above newly-invented process—even if the nerve is exposed.

To more fully reassure readers of this fact, I have shown the letters received from some of the Highest Officials in the colony upon whom I have used the "Cataphoresis" to representatives of the Sydney Morning Herald and the Daily Telegraph, which letters can be seen at my Chambers.

This announcement will naturally commend itself to those who have been too nervous to consult a Dentist for fear of the pain which has hitherto been inseparable from having a tooth filled.

St. James'-chambers, King-street, opposite the Queen's Statue.
